BRITAIN APPLIES PRESSURE FOR PLEBISCITE ON FRANCE IN EFFORT TO APPEASE HITLER

GENE TALMADGE NOTIFIES COUNTIES OF VOTE CONTESTS

Ex-Governor Informs Meriwether and Greene Democratic Executive Committees of Intention

CHARGES PADDING IN THIRTY COUNTIES

Contends There Is Too Great a Difference in Governor-Senate Totals.

By RALPH McGILL.

Ex-Governor Eugene Talmadge decided Saturday night to file contests in 30 counties over the results of Wednesday's election.

"I have found the evidence warrants this," he said, after taking out pencil and paper and describing what he called "indisputable evidence" of padding.

The ex-governor started right in filing notice of contest in each of the 30 counties. Meriwether and Greene were first.

"I am calling on my friends who know the facts to let me know them," said Talmadge.

J. E. B. Stewart, one of the Talmadge attorneys, explained last night that notices must be filed within five days after the election, and for this reason Talmadge leaders planned to file notices similar to that filed last night in Greensboro, Ga., in at least 30 counties by Monday. Stewart said the next step would be taken when the Democratic executive committees in the various counties notify Talmadge attorneys to proceed further.

Charges "Tampering."

"I can prove there was tampering with boxes in many counties," he said. "I can prove it by simple arithmetic. My office has checked the records for 20 years and never were there such differences as between the Governor's and senate races as this year.

"I know there was padding done both before and after the election. I know it from information at hand and I can tell it from these lists."

Taking the published record of the votes of last Wednesday, he turned to the figures on a north Georgia county.

"This is a county I carried," he said. "I won't contest it, naturally. But I can show padding there. The supporters of Senator George had been anxious to pile up a unit vote and a popular vote and they went to work in this county. They padded the tally there before the counting started. And I won it, anyhow.

"You can tell they padded it by the fact there was a difference of 258 votes cast in the senate race and that in the Governor's race."

In answer to the argument there always had been a difference in the total votes cast in the different races, people being more interested in one than the other, Talmadge said:

"The records for 20 years don't show it. They show a difference of from 5 to 35 votes. Rarely any more."

He then took the figures from a county which Senator George had carried and added them. They showed a difference of 572 more votes cast in the senate race than in the governor's race. This he said could be attributed to but one thing—padding. He refused to admit there were that many more people who were interested in the

Barbara Learns World Is Not So Cruel, After All

PEACHTREE SALE BRINGS $550,000

By PRESS HUDDLESTON.

Sale of a Peachtree street business house, involving more than a half million dollars—and the largest made in Atlanta in several years—was announced yesterday.

The property is the large two-story building at 197-199 Peachtree street, just north of and adjoining the S & W cafeteria, recently remodeled extensively and occupied by the F. W. Woolworth Company. It was sold by the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company to the Peachtree Realty Corporation, a New York corporation, the price paid being $550,000. Negotiations of the sale were handled by Forrest Adair, of Forrest and Frank Adair, realtors.

The price per front foot was slightly more than $9,100. Only one sale, according to records, reveals a sum in excess of this price for inside-block property. That was the sale in 1925 of the property now occupied by Thompson's restaurant, at 57 Peachtree, which brought about $10,000 per front foot.

The building just sold is under

Joan Blondell Plays Angel To Atlanta Tot

Sends 300 Pennies To Make Up for Theft of Girl's Life Savings.

By LUKE GREENE.

Pennies from Hollywood made life rosy again yesterday for 7-month-old Barbara Kay Marston, who was recently robbed of her entire life's savings—300 one-cent pieces which she kept in a teapot.

Learning of the child's misfortune through a picture which appeared in The Constitution, Joan Blondell, movie actress and wife of Actor Dick Powell, rounded up 300 shiny, brand-new pennies and sent them to Barbara as a gift from her four-month-old baby.

A special representative from Warner Brothers studios came to the Marston residence, 233 Hendrix avenue, S. W., yesterday and presented the pennies to Barbara's mother, Mrs. G. F. Marston. Barbara "cooed" as she had never "cooed" before. She kicked her chubby feet high in the air. She rolled over and over, and then as a climax she threw the pennies as high as she could and let them fall all around her.

"I never saw Barbara act this way before," Mrs. Marston said. "She just seemed to go wild, and

PRESIDENT LASHES AT FEAR-MONGERS

Is Followed by Republicans in a Series of Constitution Day Fetes.

By the Associated Press.

President Roosevelt expressed admiration yesterday for the leaders of America who throughout the years "have sought to make the constitution workable in the face of new problems and conditions that have faced the nation from year to year."

Soon after Mr. Roosevelt spoke, Republicans urged the country, in a series of addresses, to maintain "constant vigilance" lest the Roosevelt administration renew what they said were efforts to evade the constitution.

Mr. Roosevelt's words were directed by radio from the White House to those attending a constitutional day observance at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., commemorating the adoption of the constitution by the Philadelphia convention 151 years ago yesterday.

Drawing a parallel between those who fought ratification of the constitution and those of today who fear a strong national government, Mr. Roosevelt compared "the professional fear-mongers of 1938" to the "viewers of alarm" of 150 years ago.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, of Michigan, told a Chicago audience the "sole hope for preservation of our democracy" lay in the constitutional formula for "checked and balanced power." Loss of this, he said, would pave the way to dictatorship, "American style."

PROPOSES BARTER.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Mayor LaGuardia, of New York, disclosed today he had "suggested" that the United States barter with Latin-American countries in an effort to prevent "autocratic" nations from gaining a foothold.

President Roosevelt's Popularity Remains Strong Despite 'Purge'

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—In a month marked by three blunt defeats for his "purge" in South Carolina, Maryland and Georgia, President Roosevelt's own popularity has dipped slightly with the rank and file of American voters, the latest monthly presidential index of the American Institute of Public Opinion reveals today.

But the Institute index, which has been a continuous barometer of President Roosevelt's popularity for more than four and a half years, shows that the President is still popular with a substantial majority of voters.

In spite of the failure of the "purge" in the southern primaries, and in spite of the victory of the GOP ticket in Maine's general elections this week, President Roosevelt's popularity stands at 55.2 per cent of the major party vote today. While this is several points below the 62.5 per cent Roosevelt poled in the 1936 election, it is still a highly substantial personal indorsement.

A little more than a month ago, when President Roosevelt returned from his vacation fishing cruise,

ROOSEVELT FIRES ANOTHER SALVO AGAINST O'CONNOR

OPPONENT PRAISED IN DECLARATION

Early Restates Attitude of President in New York City Primary.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—(UP) Fighting to the end against conservative members of congress, President Roosevelt today fired a salvo against Representative John J. O'Connor, a New York city Democrat who ranks No. 3 among party leaders in the house of representatives.

Mr. Roosevelt's reiterated indorsement of James H. Fay, O'Connor's New Deal primary opponent, demonstrated that the so-called "purge" will continue despite uninterrupted reverses at the polls this year.

Senatorial Support.

Democratic senatorial strategists, however, ignored White House strategy today. Chairman Prentiss M. Brown, of the Democratic senatorial campaign committee, announced support of all party candidates, including those proscribed by the President.

Mr. Roosevelt's position is somewhat different. He would prefer Republican liberals to Democratic conservatives.

There will not be much opportunity in the November general election for him to support liberal Republicans against conservatives of his own party. But if opportunity offers, he is expected to take it. The drive against conservatives will carry through the 76th session of congress and into the 1940 presidential campaign.

Challenge Acceptance.

Conservatives will accept that challenge, too. Some observers believe they already discern an anti-third term or anti-New Deal candidate movement in the deep south. They would expect Vice President Garner and such leaders as Senators Harrison, Mississippi; Glass and Byrd, Virginia; Bailey, North Carolina, and Smith and Byrnes, S. C.—to name some of the standouts—to be deeply involved in such a movement.

Politicians are especially alert for indications that southern conservatives are moving toward concentration on a single stop-the-New Deal candidate for 1940. The traditional two-thirds rule veto power which the south long enjoyed in Democratic national conventions was abandoned under New Deal leadership. The only way the south can make itself felt in a big way would be to come up to the convention solidly behind some one candidate who would be sufficiently attractive to gain conservative support from other parts of the country.

Secretary Stephen T. Early restated Mr. Roosevelt's views on O'Connor's candidacy today in response to questions whether the President would speak in New York city before Tuesday's primary.

"The President believes," said Early, "that every voter in the 16th district (New York's midtown East Side) must know by now how he feels about that particular primary. He believes, knowing Mr. Fay, that he would truly represent the voters of his district. Of course he hopes Mr. Fay will win."

STATE OF EMERGENCY DECLARED BY CZECHS

Government Suspends Freedom of Assembly, Press and Person To Meet Any Eventuality.

BORDER KIDNAPING LAID TO GERMANS

'We Will Defend Every Inch of Our Territory,' Small Nation Pledges.

PRAGUE, Sunday, Sept. 18. (UP) — The Czechoslovak government declared a state of emergency over the entire nation today, concentrating its powers for any eventuality in the face of impending Franco-British demands that it yield to Adolf Hitler's program for the Sudeten German area.

The emergency decree suspended such constitutional guarantees as freedom of the press, freedom of the person and the right of assembly for three months.

Prepared to Fight.

It was issued by the parliamentary committee which was empowered to make laws when President Eduard Benes abruptly closed the session of parliament last Thursday.

Provincial presidents were empowered to go even further than the central government in taking emergency action if local conditions warrant.

The proclamation was another step in readying the nation to fight, if fight it must to maintain its determination not to give up an inch of territory to Germany.

Mobilization Seen.

A government spokesman this morning explained that the decision to suspend civil rights was a direct result of the critical international situation. Authoritative quarters added that it was probably a preliminary to even more drastic action including some sort of mobilization within the next few days if it should become necessary.

Responsible sources believed that the edict shows that danger of war may be even more imminent than is generally believed and casts into doubt the premise that nothing can happen until Chamberlain and Hitler meet again.

The government spokesman said the measure could not be construed as a sign of dictatorship.

"It is neither a dictatorship nor martial law but an emergency measure necessitated by threats from abroad," he said.

Czech Goes to London.

As indications of British pressure for the Czechs to accept a plebiscite increased, Minister of Public Welfare J. Necas left for London. Official sources said he would "confer with leading personalities," but the precise nature of his mission was not disclosed.

Along with the changing British and French attitude, the government faced the dangers arising from the formation in Germany of a "free corps" of armed Sudeten

'ANY PRICE' PEACE FOUGHT IN FRANCE

Settlement With Hitler Feared as Death Blow to Nation's Influence.

PARIS, Sept. 17.—(UP)—Threats of powerful opposition to any peace compromise sacrificing Czechoslovak territory to Germany arose tonight as Premier Edouard Daladier and Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet prepared to fly to London tomorrow for conferences on the Czech crisis.

Liberal cabinet members and political elements showed signs of impatience with the trend of events in Great Britain's diplomatic efforts to persuade Fuehrer Adolf Hitler against a war with the Czechs.

Express Grave Fears.

They insisted that French interest in a solution must normally be greater than Britain's because of Paris' military alliance with Prague and they expressed grave fears that Hitler was maneuvering Europe into a position from which he could:

1. Score a tremendously important diplomatic victory in which he would win the rich and strategically important Sudetenland mountains by annexation or a plebiscite with consent of Britain and France.

2. At the same time, wreck the basis of French collective security in one blow by breaking up Czechoslovakia, destroying the Little Entente (formed by the Czechs, Rumanians and Yugoslavs to oppose German expansion) and remove French political influence in central Europe.

Important financial groups also joined the opponents of Czech dismemberment and serious schisms were apparent in the ranks of LONDON, Sept. 17.—(UP) Peace in central Europe seemed more uncertain than ever tonight after the British cabinet had worked out a "compromise" solution of the Czech crisis for presentation — if France agrees—to Adolf Hitler.

The "compromise" was described as providing for a plebiscite to turn Czechoslovakia's Sudetenland over to Germany—a solution which the Czechs say would be no solution at all and which they assert they will fight to resist.

Daladier to Get Plan.

The British, however, were convinced that such a proposal is the minimum that Adolf Hitler would accept and hoped to persuade the Czechs to agree to it. On that basis they will lay it before French Premier Edouard Daladier and Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet, who are flying to London Sunday morning.

If the French agree, despite mounting liberal opposition in Paris to any deal that will deprive the Czechs of territory, the proposal will be carried to Hitler in the little Rhineland town of Godesberg next Tuesday. France and Italy may join the conference to make it a four-power parley.

Other Grim Factors.

But even should that program work out smoothly, there were other vital factors making the threat of war between Germany and the Czechs more grim every hour. They included:

1. A split in the British cabinet over what guarantees should be given Czechoslovakia, such as an international pledge that the republic should not be further dismembered, if the compromise is put through. The split forced the

Henlein Forms Sudet Free Corps To Battle Czechs in Event of War

BERLIN, Sept. 17.—(AP)—The German-Czechoslovak crisis was pushed one more dramatic step forward today as Konrad Henlein, outlawed Sudeten German party leader, announced formation along both sides of the German-Czechoslovak border of an armed "free corps" will be composed chiefly of men trained in the Czechoslovak army who have fled into Germany.

They will be drilled, armed, and organized against the day when they may be commanded to rush against the Czechoslovak army or police.

For the present, however, according to a spokesman at the German foreign office, their function will simply be that of letting the Sudeten German minority in Czechoslovakia know that "they haven't been forgotten."

The "free corps" will be formed along the border in Germany's provinces of Silesia, Saxony and Bavaria and, it was stated, in Czechoslovakia.

Newspapers carrying the first accounts of Henlein's action sold as fast as they appeared on streets throughout Berlin tonight.

parliamentary supporters of the cabinet.

The centrists led by Pierre Etienne Flandin lauded Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's efforts as "courageous, noble initiative" and asserted they would oppose a war to defend the present mosaic of minorities composing the Czech state. Communists retorted with demands for armed defense of Czechoslovakia.

Within the cabinet itself a majority of ministers were declared to be opposed to war despite the government's oft-repeated announcement of intention to fulfill promises to Czechoslovakia.

Writer Sees Ruin.

Rene Marcel, writing in the Journee Industrielle, charged that dissection of Czechoslovakia would be "economic hersey of the first magnitude." He said that the Czech nation formed an economic entity, that its industrial system would be thrown out of gear by dismemberment and that Germany eventually would be able to ruin Czech industry or force it within Germany's industrial system.

Daladier and Bonnet received the invitation to fly to England after a day of impatient waiting in which they had lunched with President Albert Lebrun and his state guest, King Boris, of Bulgaria. The statesmen will board a plane at Villacoublay airdrome Sunday morning and will return Sunday night or at least Monday morning.

The cabinet has been summoned into session to receive a report Monday. President Lebrun will attend.

President Eduard Benes, of Czechoslovakia, emphasized to the government again today through his minister to Paris that Prague will reject any solution of the crisis which fails to respect the full territorial integrity of the Czech nation.

Germany Orders Jewish Doctors To Stand Ready

BERLIN, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Many Jewish physicians, whose licenses had been ordered revoked, have been notified exactly to which military unit they must report in case of war, it was learned reliably today.

The report was taken to indicate the urgency with which Nazis regard the present crisis arising from German and Czechoslovak differences over minority rights.

(Approximately 6,000 to 7,000 Jewish doctors in Germany were forbidden in a decree August 20 to practice after September 30. There were few exceptions to the ban, which closed a chapter in a systematic drive against Jewish doctors which began December 29, 1937, when 3,000 were dropped from staffs of private hospitals.)

Jewish physicians applying for permission to leave the country have been denied such permission on the grounds that they were subject to military orders.

It was learned that the army simply insists there are not enough experienced non-Jewish doctors in Germany to cope with the situation.

EMERGENCY DECREE ISSUED BY CZECHS

fugitives for the announced purpose of protecting the Sudeten territory in Czechoslovakia from Czech "invasion."

(The Associated Press said that Germany's charge d'affaires tonight threatened Czechoslovakia with retaliation on Czechs living in Germany to offset moves against members of the Sudeten German minority in Czechoslovakia.

Czechs Protest.

(The charge, Andor Hencke, told Premier Hodza that just as many Czech subjects would be arrested in Germany as Sudeten Germans were taken into custody in Czechoslovakia where their party has been dissolved officially.

(In addition Hencke was reported unconfirmedly to have told the premier that if any executions of Sudeten Germans were carried out under courts-martial, the same number of Czechs would be executed in Germany.

(Almost at the same time the Czech legation in Berlin was lodging a protest against arrest of Czech subjects in numerous German cities and demanding the release of 40 gendarmes said to have been kidnaped near the Czech-German frontier by Sudetens and carried into Germany.)

Ready to Battle.

To a similar protest from Hungary, Krofta replied that the measures were normal and did not imply any hostility toward Hungary. Representatives of the Hungarian minority in Czechoslovakia met at Bratislava and decided to press for a plebiscite for their people.

As the state of emergency—a less extreme measure than the martial law already established in the Sudeten area—was declared, Czechoslovaks from the man in the street to the highest government official swore to fight to the end for preservation of the republic.

This hardening of attitude on the part of the Czechoslovaks was the most explosive element in Europe's fateful week-end developments, for it became manifest when Britain and France talked increasingly about trying to induce the Czechs to give up Sudentenland. Other developments here were:

1. New governmental measures to maintain order in rebellious frontier areas.

Bohemians Make Pledge.

2. A Sudeten German party proclamation urging members of the outlawed organization to keep their nerve and remain calm until their future is decided by London and Berlin.

3. A statement to President Edouard Benes by a delegation of Bohemian noble families declaring "faithfulness to the Bohemian state" and expressing hope that, coincident with strengthening of the Czech frontiers, the republic may provide a "common home" for German and Bohemian citizens.

4. Indications that the Czech army high command would prefer to fight now rather than later if a final solution of the minority crisis cannot be found. Experts estimated the army could hold off any German attack for several weeks, by which time all Europe might be embroiled.

The average man in the streets of Prague is suddenly getting tough about the war threats arising from Germany's demand for annexation of the mountainous Sudeten frontier area.

President Edouard Benes, Foreign Minister Kamil Krofta and the army high command also bent every effort toward convincing the world that order should be maintained in the Sudeten region and that, if an international bargain is made for partition of the republic, the Czechoslovaks will fight.

"There is only one answer to the latest developments," the foreign office spokesman said in reference to Great Britain's negotiations with Adolf Hitler in regard to a plebiscite or any other plan for division of Czechoslovakia.

"That answer is: We will defend every millimeter of territory that belongs to Czechoslovakia. We will fight if necessary. There will be no question about giving up part of our nation."

Thus the Czechs emphasized that—regardless of belief abroad that they might capitulate—they actually mean business. And to back up that attitude, they cracked down on the rebellious Sudeten leaders to restore order along the border.

A decree requiring surrender of all illegally held arms within 24 hours on penalty of imprisonment from six months to five years was extended to Pressburg, on the frontier of Hungary, and to two other districts.

Police searched Sudeten party headquarters throughout the nation, confiscating documents.

Ernst Kundt, deputy leader of Konrad Henlein's outlawed Sudeten party, issued a proclamation here stating that, due "to the short-sighted elements which still fail to realize before what grave decisions Europe stands today," the government has decided to suppress the party, but that Sudetens should not be misled by such action.

Urging that Sudetens keep "nerves of iron" and remain calm until conclusion of the British-German negotiations, Kundt said:

"Don't let yourselves be misled. It is not important today whether there is a party organization in Czechoslovakia. For us the only decisive thing is the further fate of our Sudeten Germans in the homeland. Remain faithful to our political ideals.

"In my capacity as leader of your parliamentary group, I advise you not to let yourselves be confused by this dissolution of the party. Remain within yourselves what you are. Keep waiting until Adolf Hitler and Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain have completed their fateful conversations.

"Until their decision is reached, remain strong. Keep your iron nerves. God is with us."

to discuss the latest development in the Czechoslovak crisis.

The Berliner Volkszeitung, an afternoon paper which seldom publishes more than two editions, had a fifth edition on the streets tonight emblazoning: "Sudeten Germans take up arms; Konrad Henlein calls out Sudeten Free Corps."

(United Press dispatches said formation of the army—some reports said as many as 25,000 men were already in the ranks—was considered to have given a new turn to events in the Czechoslovak crisis.

(Already its members, apparently of both German and Czechoslovak citizenship, and many of them war veterans, were doing vigilante service of various kinds near the Czech border.

"Decisive Importance."

(The newspaper Essen National Zeitung, owned by Field Marshal Hermann Goering, said "there can be no doubt" the army "will have decisive importance to Sudeten Germandom."

(Charging that the Sudeten Germans faced massacre, the newspaper said "it cannot be doubted but that this free corps will find an inexhaustible reservoir of recruits among all Sudeten Germans capable of carrying arms . . .")

Henlein announced formation of the armed force in a proclamation setting forth grievances against the Czechoslovak government and concluding:

"We therefore assume for ourselves emergency rights which nations have taken at all times by taking to arms and organizing a 'Sudeten Free Corps.'"

27,000 Refugees.

The proclamation was addressed to "tens of thousands of fellow countrymen" who were "forced to flee" to Germany. Proposed size of the corps was not immediately learned. Most recent figures published by the German press stated 27,000 refugees had entered Germany from Czechoslovakia, including, of course, women and children. The total has been mounting rapidly.

Henlein, sought by the Czechoslovak government as a traitor since his proclamation Thursday urging union of Germany and the Sudeten German regions, was understood to be in Germany, although the proclamation was dated at Asch, Czechoslovakia.

The "Free Corps" will try to avoid bloodshed, Wilhelm Sebekovsky, Sudeten party press chief, told a gathering of Berlin correspondents tonight when pressed for details as to how it would operate.

However, he said, the corps will pursue unswervingly the aim of "liberating" their country and "protecting" Sudeten Germans still in Czechoslovakia, especially "those who have been unable to seek refuge in Germany and the wives and families of those who had succeeded in escaping."

Prague Orders.

Formation of the "Free Corps" followed by one day the Prague government's dissolution of the Sudeten German party and came two days after Prague issued orders for Henlein's arrest as a traitor.

In his proclamation today Henlein mentioned efforts to reach an "equitable compromise with the Czech people" and then said:

"For five years Sudeten Germandom gave proof of this intention.

"Today it is necessary to state that all efforts to find this compromise in peaceful labor have failed on account of the Czech tyrants' unconciliatory will to destruction."

Bitterly attacking President Eduard Benes, of Czechoslovakia, the proclamation said "his last hope he sees in a European catastrophe."

The foreign office spokesman said formation of the corps "also is intended as a warning and counterbalancing measure to the Czech mobilization."

Many fugitives have reported troop activity on the Czechoslovak side of the frontier. Especially at Troppau, in northern Moravia, a few miles from the German border, the fugitives reported unusual activity. They said the city looked like a huge army camp.

From a nearby munitions depot at Ottendorf, they said, munitions were being brought up continuously into the frontier fortifications.

It was assumed here announcement of formation of the Free Corps would electrify the Sudeten Germans. Germans recall how the German Free Corps in 1919 fought Bolshevists in the Baltic states and also in Bavaria. General Franz von Epp, Chancellor Hitler's governor for Bavaria, was an officer of such a free corps.

Cease Crossing Border.

Almost simultaneously with announcement of establishment of the "free corps" came a statement from German passenger and freight lines operating on the Elbe river that they had ceased crossing the border to Czechoslovakia.

The Sudeten spokesman Sebekovsky in his interview tonight said continuation of the Sudeten Germans within the framework of the Czechoslovak republic had become impossible.

All Sudetens, he said, now solidly back Henlein's program of "back to the Reich." Efforts to find a peaceful solution have failed "owing to the dilatoriness of the Prague government," he said.

The fugitive situation lent itself to superlative color writing.

"27,000 Report Terror" is one dramatic headline tonight. The published number of homeless Sudeten Germans seeking refuge in Germany increased from 15,000 yesterday to 27,000 by noon today.

Refugee Camps.

The Nazi's party commissary department, which arranged for quarters and supplies of food for half a million Nazis during the Nuremberg party congress which ended Monday has been simply transferred to refugee duty.

Hundreds of camps, according to an official Nazi party communique, have been erected, there being 55 in Saxony alone. Silesia and Bavaria, too, are studded with such camps.

Today Germany is looking high and low for workers in view of the gigantic rearmament, road, and building construction program. As soon as able-bodied refugees arrive, therefore, they are rushed off to work, provided they are not needed in the "free corps."

Dearth of Manpower.

The dearth of manpower was best illustrated by news that thousands of housewives received orders to place themselves at the disposal of the "Air Protection Bund." This league, controlled by the air ministry, has charge of instructing the civilian population in the use of gas masks, arranging for bomb-proof cellars, etc.

These housewives are drafted for a three-day course in Red Cross work and the use of gas masks. Until recently there were enough males available for this duty.

BRITAIN FAVORS PLEBISCITE PLAN

Chamberlain Will Urge French Acceptance to Daladier Today.

2. The Czechoslovaks, both the government and the people, swore that they would fight to the last before accepting any plan for turning over to Germany an inch of territory—and particularly the rich and defensively important Sudetenland. Whether British and French pressure could change them was highly doubtful.

Henlein Forms Corps.

3. Konrad Henlein, leader of the outlawed Sudeten German party in Czechoslovakia, issued in Germany a proclamation establishing a "free corps" of Sudetens, presumably armed, along the German side of the Czech frontier. The action appeared to make new and far more dangerous border fighting almost inevitable.

4. Strong opposition to any plan that would "sell out" the Czechs began developing in some British political circles, although there was no definite indication that Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain could not get sufficient support for the program. At Birmingham, the Communist party congress denounced "the imposing of infamous concessions" on the Czechs. The powerful Labor party is on record against a plebiscite solution, as are many liberals.

Plan Sugar Coated.

To make it easier for the Czechs to accept, the cabinet took up the question of putting a sugar coating on the bitter pill by giving the Czechs an international guarantee of their sovereignty after loss of the Sudetenland.

Some cabinet members strongly opposed such a guarantee on the grounds that Britain could not afford to bind herself to fight for Czechoslovakia no matter what form the future state might take. They argued that it would give the Czechs a blank check on Britain's armed forces, possibly for use in a crisis in which British sympathies were not with Prague.

On that note of disagreement, the cabinet meetings suspended until after the conferences with the French leaders. The general impression was that Hitler was on the verge of a resounding diplomatic victory as a result of Chamberlain's unprecedented visit to Berchtesgaden. Instead of convincing Hitler that an attack on the Czechs would mean that Britain and France eventually would fight Germany, the British prime minister appeared to have confirmed the impression already held by Hitler—and supported by his Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop — that Britain was bluffing when she talked about going to war.

The cabinet sessions did not break the official silence in London regarding development of the crisis, but the trend was obvious.

It was believed that the British proposal, for which French support will be asked, would provide:

1. Agreement for some sort of plebiscite in Sudetenland on inclusion of that area within the frontiers of Greater Germany. A plebiscite would be certain to meet Hitler's demand for annexation.

2. United action by Britain and France to persuade Czechoslovakia to accept such a plebiscite regardless of Prague's present declarations that Czechs would fight to the last man rather than yield an inch of territory.

The extraordinary cabinet meetings—one this morning and another this afternoon—were held against a background of mounting dangers in Czechoslovakia and Germany; a wave of nervousness and uncertainty in Europe's capitals.

If Prague should still refuse to yield, the next move would then be up to Hitler. If he ordered German troops to march across the Czech frontier—they have worked out a plan to "pinch off" that area surrounded by Greater Germany—the Czech government presumably would appeal to France and Soviet Russia to fulfill their treaty obligations to give military aid.

Great Britain, under such circumstances, would probably be able to prevent her ally, France, from going to the aid of the Czechs. In any event, a determined effort would be made. The Soviets are not committed to aid the Czechs unless France does, but Moscow is much more determined that Hitler shall be frustrated than is France. There are many well-informed observers who believe the Russians would go alone to aid Prague if necessary.

Chamberlain, in outlining the situation to his cabinet, told them in frank, homely terms that Hitler demanded immediate secession of the Sudeten districts which have an overwhelming population and a cantonal system of government for other German populated Sudeten areas.

The prime minister believed, however, that the German Fuehrer would accept a compromise based on the plebiscite principle and therefore that plan appeared to be the most favored method of approach.

Wartime Shipping Crisis Is Studied

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Maritime Commission officials are giving serious consideration to the problem of transporting American commerce in the event of war in Europe.

Such a war undoubtedly would result in many foreign ships being withdrawn from service to this country, they said today, thus leaving to an inadequate American merchant marine the task of hauling this country's commerce.

One commission spokesman said more than 100 vessels in the government's laid-up fleet probably would be placed in service in the event of an emergency. This, however, would fall far short of providing all the tonnage needed.

Land reported to cost $736,965 was purchased for a new $5,000,000 housing project in Louisville, Ky.

TALMADGE DECIDES TO CONTEST VOTES IN THIRTY COUNTIES

Ex-Governor Serves Notice on Meriwether County's Committee.

senate race and ignored the governor's contest.

"That shows you what happened," he said. "That ought to be evidence enough to any fair-minded person."

Small Difference.

It was pointed out to him that in several counties, notably those he carried, there was a very small difference. In a south Georgia county which went into the Talmadge column, there was a difference of only two votes. In several others carried by Talmadge there was a difference of but a few votes.

Talmadge insisted there had been tampering in 30 counties carried by George. He admitted to a burning desire to see what was in the boxes.

"I believe I carried those counties," he said. "I had them late that night. The next morning they were padded for Senator George. I didn't go after the popular vote.

'POLITICAL MOVE,' GEORGE DECLARES

Senator George, commenting on the Talmadge assertions of irregularities in Wednesday's primary, said last night:

"I am satisfied election officials of the state are honest, that the election was fairly held, and no inquiry will upset the result as already announced.

"With a popular majority of nearly 40,000 over my nearest opponent and with a county unit majority of 36 above the 206 required to nominate, I have supreme confidence that the challenge to the integrity of the vote and voters is simply a political move with nothing whatever to sustain it."

I knew Gene Talmadge could get in his car and carry the unit votes. Gene Talmadge knows his Georgia. I stayed with the counties I needed and I had reports Wednesday night I had carried 222 counties and Senator George 178. (The final tabulation showed George 236 and Talmadge 148.

Total Margin Small.

The difference in the popular vote in the Governor and senate races was not very much considering the heavy vote. The vote was 319,110 in the governor's race and about 322,899 in the senate race, some few hundred votes for McRae not yet having been tabulated. He withdrew from the race two days before the primary and too late to get his name off the ballot. This left a difference of only 3,789.

In 1936 the difference was greater. The total senate vote in 1936, when Talmadge was defeated by Richard B. Russell, was 390,856. In the Governor's race there were 385,670 votes. This left a difference of 5,186.

Taking two of the counties mentioned this year by Talmadge and their record of 1936 in the primary of that year, there is found a difference of 130 votes in one county and in the other only three.

Many counties, however, in 1938 show a difference as small. For instance, in the primary of last week in one county the vote showed a difference of only four votes, 1,966 in the governor's race and 1,964 in the senate. In another the senate vote totaled 1,052 against 1,029 in the governor's race.

Talmadge definitely charges "padding" in 30 counties. That is to be his chief charge. He intends to support this with affidavits and with personal witnesses. He said that in his radio talk he purposely stayed away from this point, his chief one.

In his radio talk of Friday night, a complete text of which was carried in The Constitution of Saturday morning, he said in part:

"If I was honestly defeated, I would be the first man to admit it. But if there was trickery or fraud, the people should know about it . . . and if I am convinced after these investigations are terminated, I am going to show it to the people of Georgia. . . ."

He added, "As soon as I ascertain that this election is fair, I will be the first to congratulate Walter F. George."

'Buy Me Out.'

Talmadge reiterated a campaign charge that "the George backers went as far as to try to buy me out" and asserted that "from the evidence that I have, they went to the extreme limit—first to buy the state of Georgia, and when they failed, they tried by violating the election laws to claim the election."

Talmadge said returns Wednesday night indicated his election but that this apparent result was reversed in Thursday's reports.

Have to Contest.

Declaring election laws must be upheld, Talmadge asserted, "If you don't contest a few (elections) it gives unscrupulous parties all of the rope they want."

Talmadge said he did not "spend one dollar in Georgia to hire cars" and did not "hire a single election worker." He asserted George conducted an expensive campaign.

The 1938 turnout was materially higher than in 1932, at the start of the New Deal, when the figure was 60.4. In that year 458,007 were registered, 276,647 voted.

A dozen contests were in prospect in the state legislative races. In more than 20 counties, however, incumbents were returned without opposition.

SCIENCE CLASSES TO OPEN AT TECH

Three Types of Courses Offered for Night Study.

Fall term classes in the evening school of applied science at Georgia Tech will begin tomorrow night, Professor R. S. Howell, director, announced yesterday.

Registration indicates enrollment in the school will be the largest in its history, the director said. Largest classes will be in welding, electrical engineering and radio courses, he added.

Three types of courses are offered anyone interested in furthering his education by night study: (1) Regular trade courses, designed for those engaged in similar work during the day and lack sufficient preparation to take one of the more advanced courses (2) regular college courses in which the first three years of college work in engineering are offered, and (3) two-year certificate courses which offer the fundamental principles of engineering.

LIBRARY TO EXHIBIT PASTEL PAINTINGS

Group Depicts Manufacture of Steel.

A collection of 18 pastel paintings depicting the various steps in the manufacture of steel, will go on display at the Carnegie library for one month beginning Tuesday.

The group is by Frank Hartley Anderson, well-known Birmingham artist, who spent six months in plants of the United States Steel Corporation collecting his material.

Anderson and Mrs. Anderson, the youngest daughter of the late Colonel John P. Fort, recently completed a mural on the same general subject for the post office at Fairfield, Ala. It was the first contract of its kind let by the government in the state.

Anderson was awarded first prize for an exhibit of wood engravings at a display sponsored by the Southern States Art League at the High Museum last spring. He is founder and president of the Southern Print Makers and has exhibited his work all over this country as well as abroad.

DEAN WHITE TO SPEAK TO MEN'S FELLOWSHIP

Dean Goodrich C. White, recently returned from a six-month stay in Europe, will speak before the Men's Fellowship of Glenn Memorial church in the Emory University cafeteria at 6:30 o'clock Friday night.

Dean White's subject will be "My Impressions of the Europe I Saw." Reservations may be made through G. M. Goolsby and M. R. Duggan, members of the program committee. Dr. Paul Key is president of the Fellowship group.

FOUNDER'S SCIONS AT AGNES SCOTT

Five Great-Granddaughters of George W. Scott Enter Classes.

Five great-granddaughters of Colonel George W. Scott, founder of Agnes Scott College, will be among the students enrolling for the school's fiftieth annual session starting Wednesday.

Those in this group are Louise Sams, of Charleston, S. C.; Mary Louise Scott, of Atlanta; Mary Scott Wilds and Annie Wilds, of Hendersonville, S. C., and Edith Candler, of Decatur. They are the great-great-grandaughters of the original Agnes Scott for whom the college was named.

This year's freshman class of 175 students was selected from among more than 3,000 who wrote for literature or who were recommended for admission. They represent 37 states and several foreign countries.

The college recently acquired several acres of original forest just south of the campus along the South Decatur car line and has erected a camp on the site named for George W. Harrison Jr., of Atlanta, who recently left the school $20,000. The camp will be used for retreat purposes by the Student Government Association, the Christian Association, the Outing Club, the Hiking Club and other organizations.

The light of the sun reaches the earth in about 499 seconds, or somewhere more than 8 minutes.

Jewelers Hear Plan Unfolded To Put Gems in 'Science' Class

Speaker Proposes Guild Which Will Make Gem Experts of 'Tradesmen.'

Jewelers, like doctors and lawyers, must go to school if they want to be classed as professional men, in the opinion of Robert M. Shipley, recognized as an authority on gems throughout the world, who visited Atlanta last week.

He went further than expressing an opinion on his visit. President of the Gemological Institute of America, and director of the American Gem Society, he laid the groundwork for organization of a guild of the society in Atlanta and made plans to introduce gem courses in colleges here.

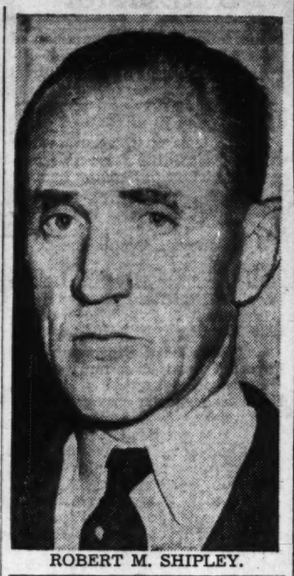

At a meeting in a downtown hotel Friday night, attended by many Atlanta jewelers, he demonstrated use of 10 instruments in the identification of precious stones. Jewelers showed more interest than schoolboys do in gym classes.

"The ultimate aim of the work of both the gemological institute and the gem society is to place jewelers in the limelight as professional men, rather than tradesmen," Mr. Shipley explained. "We are doing this by raising the standards and through education.

Should Know Gems.

"Once a man could open a store, learn how to make a fair profit out of selling jewels, then call himself a jeweler. This should not be so, unless he can actually tell the difference between a real and a spurious stone—and know the identification of the various stones.

"Knowing gems is not an art, or something one inherits. It's a science, and a science in which the microscope and other instruments are just as valuable as they are in other fields."

ROBERT M. SHIPLEY.

"Today, when a customer walks into some jewelry stores the 'jeweler' knows little more about jewels than does the customer. Twenty-five years from now, no jeweler will be practicing who does not know stones as well as physicians now know medicines."

So interested did Mr. Shipley become in jewels after working as a jeweler for 16 years, he went to Europe, studying under masters for two years. Then he returned to California, residing in Los Angeles, where he found there is more interest in precious stones than in any other place in America, except New York.

Founded Institute.

In 1931, he instigated the founding of the Gemological Institute and has been president of it since that time. The institute has specialized in training jewelers to learn all about stones—both from the standpoint of value and of identification.

To pass the course and receive a degree from the institute, a jeweler must study three years, then pass a rigorous examination. More than 600 men, representing the highest type of jewelers in the business today, are either preparing for or have passed the tests of the institute.

These men will be eligible for membership in the American Gem Society, formed in 1934 as an organization for professional men. It is restricted in membership and its by-laws, to jewelers, are as strict as those used by lawyers, doctors and other professional men in their various societies.

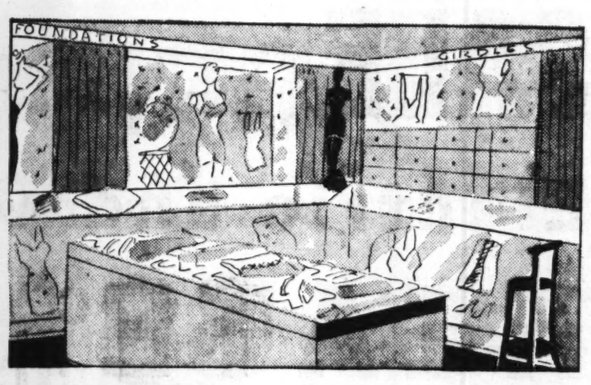

Mr. Shipley arrived in Atlanta Friday morning and departed last night. He is noted throughout the world as the author of several books, writer of numerous magazine articles and as a lecturer.

LAGRANGE ELECTION.

LAGRANGE, Ga., Sept. 17.—Albert Brooks, chairman of the LaGrange Democratic executive committee, has announced the annual city election will be held October 24, to fill vacancies caused by expiration of the terms of three councilmen and city recorder. Judge J. L. Spikes, recorder, has announced as a candidate for re-election, as has Paul Hammett, councilman. Others whose terms expire are James C. Quinn and Jack Talbert.

CITY BANK CLEARINGS REPORTED AT $58,100,000

Weekly bank clearings of $58,100,000 were reported yesterday by the Atlanta Clearing House Association. The check transactions were $6,600,000 less than they were for the corresponding week last year, when the association reported clearings totaling $64,700,000.

Yesterday's clearings totaled $9,700,000, down $300,000 from the corresponding day last year.

Republicans Favor Amendment To Bar Presidential Third Term

Most Americans Disapprove Re-Election of Roosevelt, But More Than Half Feel Amendment to Prohibit Would Be Unwise, Feeling One Might Be 'All Right.'

By THE AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF PUBLIC OPINION.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—Unless the whole controversy over a third term is settled by a word from President Roosevelt in the meanwhile, the next congress is likely to see the President's opponents taking definite steps to block one.

Senator Burke, of Nebraska, and Senator Holt, of West Virginia, both Democratic "insurgents," have said they will lead a fight against such a move, and some suggestions would go as far as amending the United States constitution to prohibit any President from serving a third term.

Equally Divided.

Today, as one of the potentially big issues of 1939 begins to take shape, a nation-wide survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion reveals that voter-sentiment divides into two camps of almost equal size over a constitutional amendment to prohibit third terms.

A slight majority of voters, the survey shows, are against such an amendment, even though most Americans do not favor a third term for President Roosevelt.

Republicans Favor Move.

The Institute put its question to a carefully selected cross-section of Democrats, Republicans and third party voters in all parts of the United States and in all walks of life:

"Would you favor a constitutional amendment prohibiting any President from serving a third term?"

The national vote is:

Yes 48%
No 52%

Public opinion on the question appears to be extremely stable. In another Institute survey, a year ago, there was a similarly even division of opinion.

Those favoring an amendment see a chance to "put the principles of Washington and Jefferson into the Constitution," or to "stop Roosevelt from trying for a third term."

Unwritten Law.

Those opposed to an amendment argue that "the unwritten tradition is strong enough," or that "there may be times when a third term would be all right."

To a large extent, however, opinions on a third-term amendment divide along party lines. Republican voters are prevailingly in favor of an amendment, while Democrats, with a Democratic President in office, are opposed to one.

The vote of major party voters is:

	Prohibit 3rd Terms? Yes	No
Republicans	72%	28%
Democrats	37	63

In a recent survey of third-term sentiment the Institute found that only 31 voters in a hundred, or less than one in three, favored a third-term for President Roosevelt.

F. D. R. POPULARITY REMAINS STRONG

tanned and ready to battle for "liberal" Democratic candidates, the Institute index showed him with 56 per cent of the major party vote. That was before the President struck out at "conservative" Senators Walter F. George, (Cotton Ed) Smith and Millard E. Tydings in their own backyards.

Personal Test Only.

The figures in today's survey refer to President Roosevelt's personal popularity—not to his strength as a candidate for a third term nor to the popularity of the New Deal itself. The recent trend of Roosevelt's popularity is:

Today	55.2%
Last month	56.0
Year ago	60.4

A great majority of Democrats throughout the country disapproved of the President's interference in this fashion. This was indicated in Institute surveys published in The Constitution before the "purge" came to a showdown. Democratic voters in the "purge" states underlined their disapproval at the polls.

And yet President Roosevelt's personal popularity in the southern states remains almost exactly what it was before the "purge" started. In other sections the drop has been slight.

Georgian's Comment.

One of the comments in today's survey which best reflects the average Democratic attitude comes from a Georgia white-collar worker:

"Sure, I'm for Roosevelt. I don't approve of his telling us how to vote in our own elections, and I'm not for everything that he has done. But he has the best interests of the country at heart, and there's nobody I'd rather have in the White House right now."

Other comments indicate that a small group of voters think Roosevelt is "the best man to be in charge" if war breaks out in Europe.

Section by section the vote in today's survey is:

	% of Major Party Vote for Roosevelt TODAY	AUG.	Points of Change Since August
New England States	47%	48%	—1
Middle Atlantic States	53	53	0
East Central States	51	52	—1
West Central States	55	56	—1
Southern States	67	67	0
Western States	64	65	—1

Congressional Elections.

Most observers think that the Democratic primaries, including the unsuccessful "purge," are only the opening guns of the struggle between New Dealers and conservative Democrats to dominate the 1940 convention and nominate a presidential candidate. If so, further Instiutte studies will indicate how the rank and file of the Democratic party are lining up.

A more immediate test o. President Roosevelt's influence, however, will be the November congressional elections, in which an entire house of representatives and a third of the senate will be elected.

Will Roosevelt's personal popularity rise or continue to fall between now and election day, November 8? It is interesting to note that the present survey is the first time in the Institute's four and a half years of measurement that President Roosevelt's popularity has turned downward between the adjournment of congress and a national election.

Republican Gain.

In a nation-wide survey of congressional prospects last July the Institute estimated a minimum gain of 58 seats in the house of representatives for the Republicans and a further survey will be reported next Sunday in The Constitution.

President Roosevelt's popularity in today's survey is, of course, not a measure of those who would vote for him for a third term, nor is it a gauge of the popularity of New Deal policies.

In test after test the Institute has found that voters take exceptions to a third term for Roosevel and challenge such New Deal items as the pump-priming spending program and the reorganization bill.

In today's survey the Institute used a staff of more thau 600 field investigators to interview a carefully selected cross-section of voters in all parts of the country and all walks of life. The Institute used the same principles of scientific sampling as in its surveys of four state primary contests, in Kentucky, South Carolina, Maryland and Georgia. In these four states, as a result of sampling cross-sections of the eligible voters, the Institute forecast the victories of Senator Barkley, Senator Smith, Senator Tydings and Senator George.

Political Barometer

The following is a summary of reported figures in American Institute of Public Opinion political surveys. These surveys are conducted among a typical cross-section of voters in all states.

In two tests of its accuracy this week the Institute correctly forecast the victory of Senator Tydings in the Maryland primary and the victory of Senator George in Georgia.

Roosevelt Popularity.

Percentage of major party vote for Roosevelt (today) 55.2%
Previous Institute survey (August) 56.0%
1936 Election 62.5%

Third-Term Sentiment.

Favoring third term for Roosevelt (August) 31%
Previous Institute survey (June) 30%

Congressional Seats.

Estimated net change in house if election were held today (July): Minimum GOP gain of 58 seats.

Popular Party Favorites.

Democrats (July): 1. Vice President Garner; 2. Postmaster General Farley; 3. Secretary Hull. Republicans (May): 1. Senator Vandenberg; 2. Herbert Hoover; 3. Alf M. Landon.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 17.—(UP)—The vanguard of 100,000 members of the American Legion, here from every state and from many foreign countries,, invaded Los Angeles tonight. The Legion's 20th annual national convention will open Monday.

RUSSELL E. GARDNER DIES.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 17.—(AP) Russell Eugene Gardner, 72, who made a fortune in the buggy business and later manufactured the old Gardner automobile, died at his home here today after a long illness.

EVANGELIST TELLS LIFE STORY TODAY

Former Woman Physician Leads Revival Here.

Dr. Helen L. Morrow, of Huntington, Ind., former woman physician who turned evangelist, will relate the story of her life at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Church of God on Sixth street, where she is conducting a series of revival services.

Taking up preaching 18 years ago when she was stricken with tuberculosis, Dr. Morrow has been in every state in the Union and several foreign countries.

The evangelist has now fully recovered from ill health and her tours have taken her from the barren wastes of Alaska to the burning deserts of Mexico.

She is accompanied by Miss Margaret Jones, co-worker.

During the World War, Dr. Morrow served as a Red Cross nurse in France. She is a graduate of Miami Medical University and Ohio University. She will continue her services here indefinitely.

COUNTY SCHOOLS TOP RECORD MARK

Enrollment Increases 1,281 to 20,939; High Schools Gain 303 Pupils.

The Fulton county school system closed the first week of the 1938-39 term with the largest enrollment in its history, 20,939, an increase of 1,281, over the 19,658 figure for the first week last year, it was announced yesterday by Jere A. Wells, superintendent.

Of the 50 white elementary schools, 35 showed increases and accounted for 623 more students than enrolled for the first week of the 1937-38 school term. A total of 12,741 students was listed. Negro elementary schools had 2,849, a gain of 355 students. White high schools had 4,952 students for a gain of 217, while negro high schools had 397 students, an increase of 86.

All high schools had an increase in enrollment except Russell High and Milton High in Alpharetta. Milton's decrease was seven.

Heaviest increases in high schools were at North Fulton High school, with an enrollment of 1,063, an increase of 103, and Fulton High school with an enrollment of 1,383, an increase of 77. Russell High school showed a decrease of 110 because a senior high school has been established in College Park and the 10th grade high school students in Hapeville have been retained. Heretofore they attended Russell High.

The largest increases in the elementary schools were shown at R. L. Hope with an enrollment of 614, an increase of 62; Chattahoochee an enrollment of 449, an increase of 59; Hemphill an enrollment of 172, an increase of 56; Warsaw an enrollment of 150, an increase of 54, and Central Park an enrollment of 583, an increase of 44. E. Rivers school, with an enrollment of 789, largest elementary school, showed a decrease of 26 children.

Half a dozen night schools will open in the Atlanta school system beginning tomorrow night, H. Reid Hunter, assistant superintendent of schools, announced.

The white night schools are Central and Fulton Bag & Cotton Mills, while the negro night schools are to be operated at Washington High, Howard, Johnson and Crogman.

49TH TERM TO BEGIN AT CONVERSE COLLEGE

Opening exercises of the forty-ninth session of Converse College, Spartanburg, S. C., will be held at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning in the college auditorium with Dr. Gillie A. Larew, of Randolph-Macon College, as principal speaker.

With an increased enrollment, the college has added to its dormitory accommodations and enlarged several classrooms. New faculty members appointed to the school of music are Dean Ernst Bacon, of San Francisco, Cal., and Alonzo F. Lape, of Little Rock, Arkansas.

ATLANTA LAW SCHOOL ENROLLMENT GAINS

A 10 per cent increase in the number of students enrolled in the Atlanta Law School was reported yesterday, following opening of the fall session of the school Friday night.

Dean Hamilton Douglas said 141 students were enrolled and that registration is to continue until September 25. He announced publication of a series of new case books for use by the students, first of which, titled "Conflict of Laws," was written by John H. Boman Jr., member of the school's faculty.

ATLANTA TERMED 'ECONOMIC PROSPECT NO. 1' AS CHAMBER CITES 82 NEW BUSINESSES

HUNGRY HUNDREDS TURNED AWAY BY FULTON'S AGENCY

2,747 Applications on File But Board Is Unable To Do Anything About It for Lack of Resources.

BURDEN INCREASES BUT FUNDS DON'T

Average Individual Allowance Is Less Than $4 a Month, Report Says.

By WILLARD COPE.

The plight of Atlanta's unemployed and needy is set forth graphically in a special report of the Fulton county board of public welfare to the county commission—a report of foreboding for the winter months just ahead.

Although couched in temperate language and composed largely of statistics, the report does, however, assert that "the main purpose of civilization, of society, is the protection, development and conservation of a superior mankind," and goes on to declare:

"Surely we must meet this challenging situation."

It was prepared to support the board's appeal for an additional $50,000 from Fulton county for the remainder of this year and a tentative suggestion that an increase of $130,000 would be needed in 1939.

The present budget consists chiefly of $25,000 monthly from the county and $18,485 monthly from the city, although there are receipts from the state for social security payments, for 90 per cent of administrative costs and like purposes.

The report is a story of mounting demands upon the resources of the board, and a consequent inability to meet the situation. For example, the board now has 2,747 applications for direct relief which it has been unable to meet.

"We know that at least 60 per cent of these are in dire distress," says the report, "but we have no money with which to help them."

And, again, the report reveals: "The number of unfortunates who are utterly unemployable and utterly without means to buy food, clothing or shelter has steadily increased since the first of the year."

No Surprise.

The situation did not develop as a surprise to the board. It is pointed out in the communication to the county commission:

"Last February we advised that the appropriation by the city and the county would be inadequate unless there was definite improvement in business through spring and summer, but that we would make every effort to get by on the amounts budgeted. Unfortunately, business conditions became very definitely worse, and the demands for assistance of every kind have tremendously multiplied."

The state's financial inability to accept certification of hundreds of persons eligible for old-age pensions further complicates the problem facing the board. The report sets forth:

"Adding to the number on direct relief is the fact that we have today 8,929 applications for aid under the social security act which have not yet been investigated. More than 800 of these are receiving direct relief, although practically all of the 800 are eligible for federal and state aid under the act.

"Taking these off the direct relief rolls would permit our giving that much more help to unemployables in dire distress. But the state department does not have funds to match the federal funds and so will not accept any more certifications from us."

VOLUNTEER WORKERS' COURSE STARTS ON 27TH

The importance of volunteer workers in making effective the service of Atlanta's welfare agencies will be presented to several hundred men and women at a special study course September 27 and 28 at St. Luke's Episcopal church.

Planned by the agencies under the auspices of the Social Welfare Council, the course will bring together volunteer workers for the first time to consider the total community welfare picture.

South Heads Nation In New Relief Jobs

Southern states led the remainder of the nation in the number of new relief jobs created by Works Progress Administration during the week ending September 3, the Washington office has reported. Of the 18,809 relief workers added during the week, 9,500 were in the south. The Georgia increase for the week was 976.

Blooms in Fall—Weather Man Says It's O. K.

September scooped April yesterday when a dogwood tree was found blooming at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Z. Johnson at 2045 North Decatur road. Miss Mary Wooten posed yesterday amid the blooms which naturally bloom in April and which have given Atlanta the title of the "Dogwood City."

Big Dogwood Bursts Into Fall Bloom

Druid Hills Foliage Answers the False Alarm of Spring.

Atlanta's "off season" blooming month gained another entry yesterday in the form of a dogwood tree in full bloom in a Druid Hills front yard.

The tree is at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. Z. Johnson at 2045 North Decatur road. A cherry tree in full bloom, six months ahead of schedule, was revealed Thursday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Avery on Hartford place, southwest.

Both trees normally bloom in March or early April. The cherry tree bears fruit in May. Neither have ever bloomed in September before.

Atlantans yesterday tried to solve Nature's latest mystery.

Uncle Sam's weather bureau officials spoke for Mother Nature, saying that plants, trees and shrubbery misinterpreted a fall dressed in spring attire. Said O. M. Hadley, of the bureau.

"This condition often follows after a hot, dry season, such as we have had. All trees, plants and vegetation go into a partially dormant state due to the dry weather and the abnormal temperature. This weather is followed by a period of humid condition and showers.

"The trees, shrubs and vegetation seem to awaken from their partial sleep and begin to think of spring and growth and burst into bloom. It seems to be a revival of nature after showers and lower temperatures. The state of the atmosphere after this period is somewhat comparable to the late spring, when trees bloom naturally."

The trees now in bloom should bloom again in the spring, with no apparent harm from their September appearance, he said.

The dogwood tree discovered yesterday is five years old and according to Johnson, it is the first time that blooms have appeared off season. The tree grows among a row in the Johnson front yard.

PWA FUND ALLOWS TECH 4 BUILDINGS

Record Grant Permits Erection of Needed Structures on Campus.

Approval of Georgia Tech's plans for construction of four buildings at a cost of $320,000 with aid of $164,000 in PWA funds was announced yesterday by H. T. Cole, PWA regional director.

The grant was the largest made to the university system, and brought total PWA allocations to the Board of Regents in 1938 to $704,838 for a building program totaling $1,565,755.

The buildings and their estimated costs are: Two dormitories, adjacent to the dining hall and facing Williams street, to be built at a cost of $98,067 each. An annex to the chemistry building, facing Third street will be constructed at a cost of $48,408. An engineering experiment station costing $75,458 will be erected at Fourth and Cherry streets.

Chancellor S. V. Sanford, of the university system, said yesterday that construction will begin at the earliest possible date to take care of the largest enrollment in the history of Georgia Tech. The erection of the four buildings, he remarked, is in line with the plan of the regents to make Tech the outstanding engineering school in the United States.

The Board of Regents recently accepted two buildings at Tech, costing $300,000, and built with federal aid. One building is for the civil engineering department and the other for the mechanical drawing department. Both are now in use. In addition, a gymnasium costing approximately $148,000, is nearing completion, and construction of a $130,000 swimming pool has begun.

Next to today's grant, the largest amount given the university system, Cole said, was $141,402 to build a $314,277 library on the campus in Athens. Other grants made to the Board of Regents have been for improvements in Dahlonega, Americus, Cochran, Tifton, Carrollton, Americus, Augusta and Douglas.

Animal, Reptile Kingdoms Revolt, Send Four for Grady Treatment

A flareup in the animal and reptile kingdoms yesterday sent four persons to Grady hospital.

Two brothers received dog bites in a futile attempt to save the life of a pet puppy; a youth suffered a rattlesnake bite, and a young man claimed he was bitten by a worm.

The brothers, James Ansley Wilson, 17, of 38 Atlanta avenue, S. E., and Charles Edward Wilson, 13, ran into the street near their home after the dog, a collie pup, was struck by an automobile.

Frenzied with pain, the animal bit the brothers as they tried to pick him up. The injured dog was killed humanely.

Marion A. Hardin, 18, of 611 Dunlap avenue, East Point, told attaches at Grady hospital he was hoeing in the garden of his home when he saw a rattler.

He struck the snake with the hoe, decapitating it. However, the head flew into the air and struck him on the right hand. The reptile sank its fangs into Hardin's hand, in reflex action. Hardin was admitted to the hospital, after anti-venom serum was administered.

John Thomas White, 26, of 15 Pecan drive, Lakewood, a carpenter, applied for treatment at the hospital, stating a worm had bitten him on the right arm.

"I saw the worm on my arm," he said, "but didn't pay any attention to it. When I looked again, there was a red streak. It bit me all right."

PATROL OFFICERS ORDERED TO CURB AUTOIST SPEEDERS

Drivers Face Rigid Application of All Rules of Road Beginning This Month, Says Brewster.

CARS MUST HAVE HEAD, TAIL LIGHTS

Plan To Stop All Preventable Accidents, Says Safety Commissioner.

Rigid enforcement of highway traffic rules will be started this month by the Georgia State Highway Patrol to prevent the seasonal rise in automobile deaths and injuries, Major Phil Brewster, safety commissioner, said yesterday.

He ordered patrolmen to curb "mile-a-minute motorists" and to enforce the rules regarding proper head and tail lights on cars and trucks.

Every year the death toll of Georgia highways climbs during October, November and December—due to weather conditions, increased travel and poorer visibility.

"We have a fine record so far," said Brewster, "we are well under the totals of last year. We do not intend to have additional deaths which are preventable.

"Speed must be curbed, because we find it the primary cause in a majority of deaths and injuries on highways. Passing on curves and hills or anywhere with insufficient space ahead, is the second most frequent cause.

"Lack of a tail light, improper lights and failure to dim headlights are third.

He pointed out that 40 miles per hour is the speed limit on the highways, but said the patrol does not make arrests for technical violations—only when speed appears to be endangering life.

Advising motorists to carry spare light bulbs and fuses, Brewster asserted the patrolmen are "going to start being more severe" with motorists without two good headlights and a good taillight.

GUN, KNIFE BRAWL DRAWS BIG CROWD

General Melee Flares at Bankhead and Marietta Street at Midnight.

A gun and knife brawl which drew between 300 and 500 spectators sent two men to Grady hospital with stab wounds and resulted in the arrest of two other men at the scene, Bankhead avenue and Marietta street, at about 11:30 o'clock last night. Several shots were fired.

Six patrol cars responded to frantic telephone calls to police headquarters from residents.

Arrival of police scattered the crowd and ended the brief, but furious, general melee, Radio Patrolmen J. M. Jackson and A. D. Hornsby, first to arrive on the scene, reported.

The injured men were listed as Julius Williams, 29, of 16 Glendale place, N. W., and Curtis Odoms, 29, of 763 Chestnut street, northwest.

Williams suffered a fractured skull and scalp injuries. He was admitted to Grady hospital after being treated at West Side hospital. Police said he had probably been hit on the head with a blunt instrument.

Odoms suffered a deep stab wound of the right arm, and also was cut in the abdomen. He suffered a possible skull fracture. Police said both men will be charged with disorderly conduct and fighting, when they leave the hospital.

The men arrested were listed as Jim Postell, 55, and Herschel Moody, 23, of a Bankhead avenue address. They were charged with stabbing, assault, drunkenness and disorderly conduct. Police are also seeking a third man.

DEATH OF WOMAN HELD ACCIDENTAL

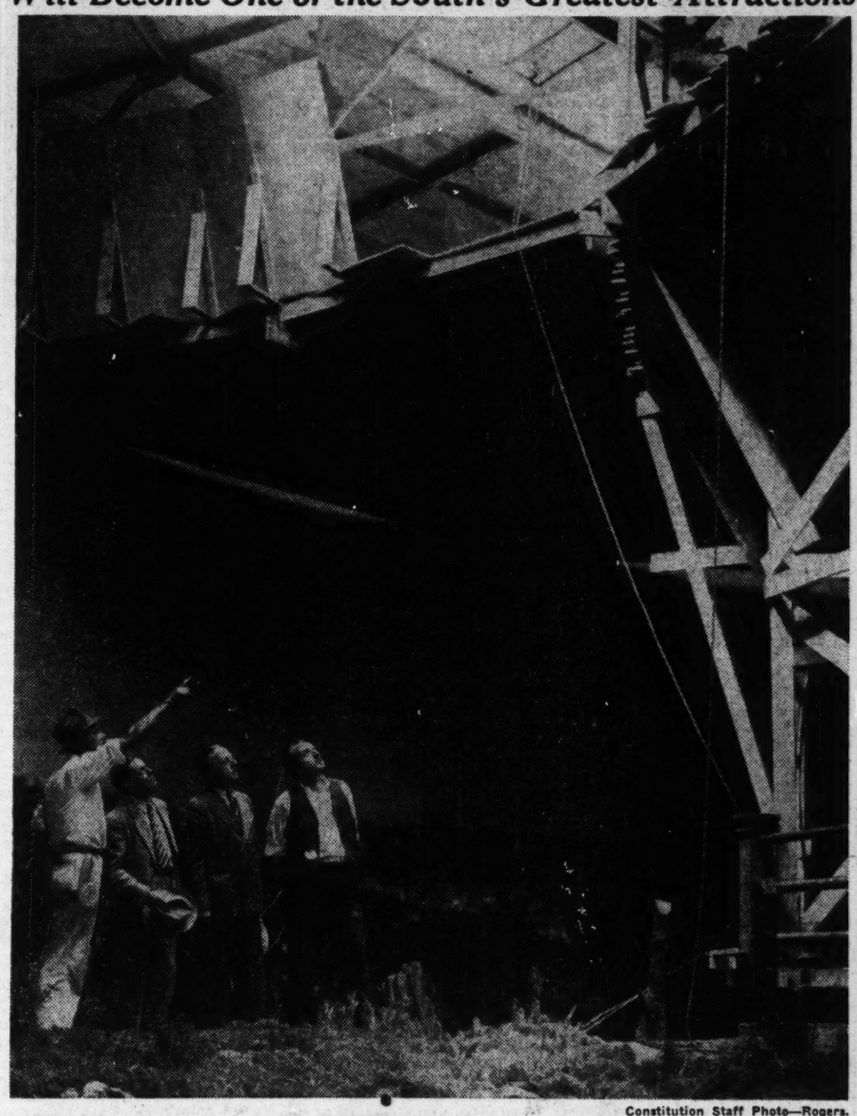

Man Who Found Wife's Body in Tub Is Released.

D. G. Jones, 52, roofing salesman, was released by police yesterday after being questioned in connection with his discovery of the body of his wife, Mary Nell Jones, 44, in the bathtub at their apartment at 485 Wabash avenue, N. E., Friday night.

Detectives M. B. Johnson and J. L. Taylor said they were convinced the death of Mrs. Jones, a saleswoman in a downtown department store, was accidental.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at Mt. Carmel church, near Hall Station, with burial in the churchyard.

Will Become One of the South's Greatest Attractions

Constitution Staff Photo—Rogers.

Atlanta's famous cyclorama will become one of the greatest historic attractions in the south when workmen complete a new $37,000 project designed to put life into the painting. A modern system of lighting will be installed to create movement on the canvas along with many other improvements. Officials inspecting a swing scaffold to prevent any damage to the painting are, left to right, J. T. Butler, foreman; Burt Wellborn, technician in charge of the work; George I. Simons, city parks manager, and Weiss Snell, sculptor.

Parents Warned of Diphtheria; Official Urges Immunization

Citing again the necessity for immunization against diphtheria, particularly of school children, Dr. T. F. Abercrombie, director of the State Department of Public Health, urges all parents who have not already had their children immunized, to do so at once, because of the invariable increase of the number of cases of diphtheria after the opening of the school term.

"Without variation, the percentage of the number of cases of diphtheria always increases a few weeks after school begins. This will be the case this year, yet diphtheria is nearly 100 per cent preventable, so there is no excuse or reason for a child to have this disease," the health director stated.

There were 325 cases of diphtheria reported to the State Health Department in 1937, and already this year through September 1, a total of 423 cases has been reported.

"Suffering, anxiety and death from diphtheria are easly avoided in 90 per cent of the cases by one dose of toxoid, which may be administered to the baby about the time he is six months of age. If the parent wants to be doubly sure of the baby's immunity after having given him the toxoid, the Schick test may be given about 6 or 8 months after the baby has received the toxoid, as it takes about this length of time for the child to develop immunity against the disease," he said.

Declaring that the first three years of a child's life is the danger period from diphtheria, Dr. Abercrombie advises that all babies should be immunized early in life. However, if toxoid is not administered during babyhood, parents should have their children immunized at once, since the disease is so often fatal in children.

Medical Leaders Upset Tradition In Revisions of Welfare Policies

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—The American Medical Association today upset tradition by adopting revisions of its policy on health and welfare which some members of its house of delegates termed "progressive and almost revolutionary."

The delegates, meeting in a special session here for the past two days, approved with few dissenting votes or objections five recommendations which agreed in most major principles with the national health program outlined two months ago by President Roosevelt's interdepartmental committee on health and welfare.

That committee had declared that the health of the people was a direct concern of the federal government. The Medical Association agreed today that the health of impoverished persons should be protected with the use of state and federal funds when necessary.

The President's committee urged establishment of a federal department of health, the secretary of which would be a member of the cabinet. The association agreed with the provision that "he must be a physician."

On the expansion of public health and maternal and child welfare services the association agreed with the committee.

The delegates backed the committee in its indorsement of better use of existing hospital facilities but opposed the building of additional hospitals where they are not needed. They also indorsed plans for hospital service insurance and cash indemnity insurance policies which remunerate a person during prolonged illness.

RALPH T. JONES TO ADDRESS LIONS

Will Talk on Inside Workings of Newspaper.

Ralph T. Jones, associate editor of The Constitution, will address the Atlanta Lions Club at 12:30 o'clock tomorrow at the Henry Grady hotel.

Jones, who conducts the daily column "Silhouettes" in The Constitution, will speak on "The Inside Workings of a Daily Newspaper." Charles Beeland will act as chairman of the program and John Paul Jones will give a response to the address.

ATLANTA BATTLE WILL RAGE AGAIN

Workmen Busy Giving 'Not Gaudy' Realism to Famous Cyclorama.

By LUKE GREENE.

The Battle of Atlanta will come to life again about next November 10.

Although more than seven decades have passed since the guns stopped booming in one of the most historic battles of the War Between the States, their echoes will be all but audible when a project on Atlanta's famous cyclorama is completed.

Yesterday workmen were busy on the $37,000 project which is designed to make the cyclorama one of the principal show places in the south.

Thousands who have obtained their knowledge of the battle from the dry pages of history books, will see the smoke from cannon and guns as it drifts across the battlefield. They'll see white clouds floating lazily across a blue July sky, and they'll see streams trickling through the war-torn countryside.

To Stimulate Reality.

It's an effort to put more life in the painting which has attracted the attention of visitors from all over the world.

Burt Wellborn, technician in charge of the project, explained that the painting will not be damaged in any way. A swinging scaffold has been erected so as to protect the canvas as well as

House That Cost Man Mayor's Post Will Be Open for Friends Today

The house that ousted C. P. Vaughn from his position as mayor of Roswell will be open to his friends from 2 o'clock this afternoon until 9 o'clock tonight.

Vaughn, who resigned as mayor when he discovered his new home on Magnolia drive was six feet beyond the city limits, extended the open-house invitation yesterday.

"We are now living in the new house," he said, "and I want all my friends to come see us. I expect a good crowd, because I believe I have a lot of friends. They'll all be welcome."

It was early last month, when the house was being completed, that Vaughn learned the house was outside the city limits, although part of the grounds are within the Roswell limits.

Under an old Georgia law, to be eligible for municipal office a person "must sleep within the city limits and have his washing done there."

Vaughn resigned and C. G. Webb, bank cashier, was elected to succeed him. Vaughn had served five one-year terms as mayor of Roswell. He is 48 years old, married, and the father of two sons and a daughter.

His new home contains 10 rooms and a basement, and is of the rambling, colonial type, about 90 feet long.

INDUSTRIAL AIDES REVEAL ADDITIONS HERE THIS YEAR

775 Employed With Annual Pay Roll of $1,155,500 by Companies Established in 8 Months.

FEW FACTORIES IN CITY VACANT

Forty-Seven Representatives of Out-of-Town Firms Also Locate Here.

Atlanta is not an "economic problem No. 1," reports of the industrial bureau of the Chamber of Commerce revealed yesterday in a report that 82 new businesses and 47 resident representatives of out-of-town firms located here in the first eight months of 1938.

The companies and representatives employ 775 persons and have an annual pay roll totaling $1,155,500, Ivan Allen, chairman of the industrial bureau, said.

Georgia's capital, rather than being a problem, is termed the south's "economic prospect No. 1" by chamber officials.

Few Vacant Factories.

Nearly every factory building and plant is occupied, Allen said.

"This report of the bureau covering the first eight months of this year shows that Atlanta is no 'economic problem No. 1'," he asserted. "Eighty-two new concerns have been established here in this period, including 11 new factories. Also, 47 resident representatives of out-of-town concerns have come here to serve the southeast out of Atlanta.

"It has been the custom of this bureau to do much of its survey and statistical work, which is used for supplying correct data to industrial prospects, during the usual 'summer lull.'

"There has been no lull in our work this past summer. It has been the most active summer period we have ever experienced from the standpoint of new business and inquiries and visits from industrial prospects. Thirty new factory prospects have been added to our list already this year.

Recovery Period.

"Economic and political influences are combining to inject new life into business and this year should prove the beginning of a period of recovery," he stated.

A breakdown of the types of new business compiled by the bureau shows that Atlanta's attraction along this line is general—not only to particular types of business.

Eleven of the new concerns were manufactories; 11 were wholesale and warehousing; one was wholesale and retail; 27 were sales offices; three were retail establishments; three were public service companies; one was an engineering or contracting firm; five were service organizations, and 20 were sales offices with warehouses.

Three vacant factories were occupied, 13 vacant warehouses were taken, 23 took ground-floor stores, and two purchased sites. Thirty-eight took space in office buildings.

30 New Prospects.

The general industrial appeal of the city is reflected in the 30 new prospects too. Included in the number are manufacturers producing dinnerware, household appliances, paper and fabrication, rubber products, food, ink, photographic material, buttons, textiles, electrical machinery, furniture, toys, dress patterns, knit goods, garments, glassware, and pens and pencils.

The industrial bureau pointed to its part in obtaining for Atlanta two new air line routes, its efforts to locate an aircraft factory here, and its work toward getting pulp and paper and newsprint industry executives interested in establishing plants here.

As a means of promoting better fellowship among members of the Chamber of Commerce and of acquainting its members with "the inside" of factories, the bureau suggested invitational visits to various Atlanta plants.

LADY CARNARVON TO WED.

LONDON, Sept. 17.—(AP)—American-born Lady Carnarvon, formerly Catherine Wendell, and Goeffrey Grenfell, of London, will be married this month, it was announced today.

U. S. Livestock Kings, Queens Show at Southeastern Fair

Exhibits Will Be Housed in $30,000 Palace October 2d to 9th.

By LUKE GREENE.

Kings and queens of livestock from all over the country will be entertained in a new palace during their sojourn at the Southeastern Fair, October 2-9.

Sophisticated cattle, hogs and sheep who are accustomed to the best in everything, will no longer be chagrined by having to live in the old dilapidated barns that formerly housed the livestock during the week of the fair. A modern building, specially equipped and befitting royalty, has been provided for this year's entries.

More than $10,000 worth of modern livestock equipment has been installed in the $300,000 exhibit building which will be a permanent home for the National Livestock Show.

Standing at the entrance of the new building, the visitor sees row after row of freshly-painted, sanitary stalls where the animals will be kept during the week they are on exhibit. The floor is cement and fresh water flows through pipes to each stall. Already the building is decorated for the big event, with orange crepe paper hanging from the ceiling and special signs designating the sections of the building where the different types of livestock can be found.

Guests at Buffet Supper.

Directors of the fair, the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, Georgia Press Association and members of the National Livestock Show committee got a preview of the building Friday night when they were entertained at a buffet supper.

One of the officials, commenting upon the luxurious furnishings, jokingly remarked that the animals also should be provided with soft mattresses.

Special emphasis is being placed on livestock this year, and some of the finest breeds in the country will be entered. W. S. Hamer, of the Hurricane Hill Farms, in Dyersburg, Tenn., has entered a herd of Hereford beef cattle which will be one of the outstanding exhibits. In addition there will be Hairy cattle from the Jersey Island Farms, at Columbus, and Berry Schools, Rome. There also will be poultry and 4-H Club exhibits.

Tuesday, October 4, has been designated as Livestock Day, and Wednesday, October 5, as Farmers' and 4-H Club Day.

The National Farm and Home Hour program will be broadcast from the livestock building Monday, October 3, and possibly on another day. The program will be directed by Everett Mitchell.

Midway Attractions.

Rubin and Cherry shows will occupy the midway with many new attractions, and there will be the usual automobile races. Mickey Martin's hell drivers will give exhibits on both Sundays during the fair and on Wednesday and Saturday during the week.

Guests at the buffet supper and preview Friday night included:

Alfred Newell, Lambdin Kay, E. D. Shirey, J. N. Armour, Ivan Allen, Walter C. Hendrix, W. J. Davis Jr., Robert A. Clarke, E. S. Papy, Roy LeCraw, A. L. Belle Isle, Faber Bollinger, George I. Simons, Cecil W. Hester, George F. Longino, S. D. Truitt, W. A. Horne Jr., W. R. Ulrich, Tap Bennett, Charles Clay, Roger Clay, George Reinhardt, Roy McMillan, F. B. Steward, Mike Benton, Virgil Meigs, E. W. Gottenstrater, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Helfrish, Milton Fleetwood, Cartersville; Rich Paul, Miss Pansy Bugg, Miss Jeannette Sherwood, Fred Dunn, and Perry Bechtel and his orchestra.

Livestock was the principal concern of directors of the Southeastern Fair Association, Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, Georgia Press Association and National Livestock Show committee Friday night as they were entertained at a buffet supper in the new livestock building on the fair grounds. Since the cattle had not arrived for the fair, the officials had to be content with this miniature model. Seated, left to right, are Mike Benton, president of the fair association, and Ivan Allen, director of the Chamber of Commerce. Standing are S. D. Truitt, Fulton county agent; Tap Bennett, director of the show, and Alfred Newell.

Fall Enrollment Breaks Record At University

New term enrollment for the University System of Georgia broke all records, the figure being 20,754 students, Chancellor S. V. Sanford announced. A total of 18,384 were enrolled for the last school year.

These figures did not include 6,470 students of the extension department, Atlanta. Commenting on the enrollment, Chancellor Sanford estimated a 50 per cent increase since the organization of the Board of Regents in 1932.

"This large enrollment is evidence that the University System is serving the people of the state of Georgia," he added.

The University of Georgia led all institutions with a total enrollment of 5,928. Georgia Tech was second with 3,049. Other senior institution enrollment was: Georgia State College for Women, Milledgeville, 2,561; Atlanta Extension Center, 1,881; South Georgia Teachers' College, Statesboro, 1,663; University of Georgia Medical School, Augusta, 156; Georgia State Woman's College, Valdosta, 553.

A total of 2 33 attended secondary schools throughout the state, and 2,200 enrolled at various negro institutions, making a grand total of 20,754 for all institutions of the system.

DEMOCRATIC GROUP TO SEE NEW FACES

Four Gain Executive Committee Membership in Primary.

There will be four new faces on the 76-man Fulton county Democratic executive committee as a result of Wednesday's election, it was announced yesterday.

E. E. Redd will succeed W. A. Jones and George T. Johnson will succeed Paul S. Pause in the Center Hill district, while W. F. Brandt succeeds Joseph W. Crews and W. M. Anderson succeeds R. C. Foster in Poole's district.

In other contested races Marvin P. Floyd and W. T. Harwell won from the first ward; F. F. Allen was unopposed for one of the third ward positions, and O. Lee White won his seat in a contest in that ward. C. M. Bolen and T. Frank Callaway won elections from the fourth ward.

In addition to the contests in five of the wards or districts the following won their seats for another term without opposition:

Atlanta—second ward, J. F. Aldred, T. L. Simpson; fifth ward, Thomas M. Stubbs, A. C. White; sixth ward, O. C. Puckett Sr., George H. Sims.

CAUSE IS NOT LOST, HUGH HOWELL SAYS

Georgia Will 'Swing Back Into Her True Course,' Lawyer Asserts.

Asserting the cause for which he fought was not lost, Hugh Howell, candidate for governor in Wednesday's primary, yesterday thanked the people of Georgia for their support in his campaign. His statement follows:

I shall never forget or cease to appreciate the splendid work and loyal support of more than 135,000 noble Georgians in the campaign just closed.

This great host of God-fearing men and women who made such a brave fight against such tremendous odds to restore sanity, honesty and economy in our government have my everlasting admiration.

Rivers had unlimited money; he had the support of the great Georgia dailies; he spent more than $100,000 extra tax money with the newspapers of our state in the closing days of the campaign to influence the press, in complete violation of the law; he had more people on the state pay roll than ever before, and he promised more jobs, roads, bridges and buildings than he can possibly fulfill.

The noble cause for which we fought was not lost and will never die; and to the upright men and women of this state who made such a splendid fight, I say, look forward with faith to the coming of another day, when the real result of this work will be seen. Old Georgia will swing back into her true course within the next two years. Mark this prediction: It will come sooner than any of us expect.

SPY CASE CONVICT'S APPEAL IS DELAYED

Depositions From Government Witnesses Are Awaited Here.

Hearing on John Semar Farnsworth's second move for release from the Atlanta federal penitentiary on a writ of habeas corpus was continued yesterday by United States District Judge E. Marvin Underwood until depositions from government witnesses in Washington arrive.

Farnsworth, a former lieutenant commander in the navy, is serving a term for conspiring with others to sell naval secrets to Japan. He charges he is unlawfully imprisoned—because, he says, he was sentenced by a court which lacked jurisdiction in his case and he was coerced into entering a plea of nolo contendere. Later, according to Farnsworth, a motion filed to change his plea to not guilty was unjustly refused by the court. A previous plea to be freed was denied by Judge Underwood.

Farnsworth was met at the courtroom by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Farnsworth, of Norwood, Ohio, and his attorney, George S. Hawke, of Cincinnati. Both parents testified their son had told them he was not guilty, and if he was offered a pardon from the President to plead guilty, he would "throw it in the lake."

Taking the stand, Farnsworth reviewed the events of his imprisonment and his commitment by the court. He charged his first set of attorneys with "ignorance and incompetence" and said they had not the slightest conception of his case. He claimed that after planning to plead not guilty, he was tricked into pleading nolo contendere, when his lawyers told him he could later withdraw it. When he did file a motion to withdraw his first plea and enter a second plea of not guilty, it was overruled by the judge, he said.

When his first counsel withdrew from the case, he retained another lawyer, who he charged with neglect by not appealing the judge's overruling motion to a higher court, and not filing a writ of habeas corpus in an "unprejudiced" court, as he had promised. Hawke is the third attorney to represent him.

H. H. Tysinger, assistant United States district attorney, is handling the case for the government.

Urban League

By JESSE O. THOMAS

The purpose of the Bulletin is to chronicle the worthwhile things done for, by, and with the Negro, as a basis of increasing inter-racial good-will and understanding.

Welcome greetings are extended to the hundreds of young people who are entering or re-entering the several institutions of learning in the Gate City. They have come from many parts of the world, which is another indication of the direct influence Atlanta exerts upon state, national and world culture.

The twenty-eighth annual convention of the National Urban League was held at Green Pastures Camp, Mich., September 3, 4 and 5. This camp site is the gift of Senator Cousins, of Michigan, to the Detroit Urban League for the recreational development and pleasure of the underprivileged negro children in Detroit and Wayne county. The camp represents an investment of approximately $100,000.

It is situated some 80 miles from Detroit and approximately 15 miles from Jackson, Mich., in the hilly section of the state. It is well elevated and slopes down to a lake, which is utilized by the hundreds of children who go to the camp each summer as a bathing beach. Fishing and boating are other forms of recreation which this lake affords. At the base of the other slope of the hill is a large recreation field where softball, baseball and croquet may be played simultaneously.

The children's fund of Michigan allocates $12,000 a year for the operating expenses of this camp. The camp is in operation 12 weeks during the summer months, which means that $1,000 a week is spent in providing food, shelter and other necessities of life for the large number of children who are rotated on a two-week basis to the camp.

This is the second conference of the National Urban League held at this camp and the first session that has been confined to staff and board members of the league. Some 30 members of the executive board of the Pittsburgh Urban League were in attendance. The next local organization having the largest number of board members attending was the Detroit Urban League. From one to three members of the board of other local branches were among the conference delegates.

Another innovation in the program of the convention was the annexing of the clerical personnel as an organic part of the convention. One entire morning session was utilized by the clerical staff in offering constructive criticism and suggestions as to how their duties and responsibilities might be enhanced by a more clearly sympathetic understanding and working intelligence on the part of the executive secretary.

The theme of the conference was "The Urban League Looks Forward." Dr. Eugene Kinckle Jones, executive secretary, who was first to appear on the program, outlined a five-year plan which would double the number of league branches now in existence and increase the influence and usefulness of the organization to the American people 100 per cent. Several foundations have been approached with the request that such a plan as outlined might be included in any scheme to improve the economic wellbeing of negroes in the United States within the period indicated above.

Some of the subtopics discussed were "Expanding the Job Field," by T. Arnold Hill, director, department of industrial relations, National Urban League; "The Southern Outlook," by the southern field director of the National Urban League; "Planning for Personnel Efficiency," by R. Maurice Moss, executive secretary of the Pittsburgh Urban League; "The Board, the Executive and the Community," by William R. Conners, executive secretary of the Negro Welfare League, Cleveland, Ohio; "The Importance of the Office Secretary to the Proper Administration of a Social Work Agency," by Mrs. Philitus W. Joyce, assistant to the executive, National Urban League; "The Secretary, the Employer and Their Work," by Mrs. Christina F. Jeffries, assistant to the executive, Pittsburgh Urban League; "The Mechanics of the Job," by Miss Ann Tanneyhill, secretary to the director, department of industrial relations, National Urban League; "The Organization's Responsibility to the Clerical Staff," by Mrs. Theresa A. Greene, office secretary, Memorial Center and Urban League, Buffalo, N. Y.

"Public Interpretation and Publicity Methods," by Elmer Anderson Carter, editor Opportunity magazine and member social security board, New York state; "Block-Unit as a Means of Organizing the Community," by John T. Clark, executive secretary, Urban League of St. Louis; "Co-ordinating Public Service — Civil Service, Advisory Boards, Appointive Positions," by Robert J. Elzy, executive secretary, Brooklyn Urban League, and J. Harvey Kerns, director, division of negro welfare, Community Chests of Cincinnati and Hamilton county; "Job-Getting Through Pressure and Through Co-operation," by Sidney R. Williams, industrial secretary, Urban League of St. Louis, and A. L. Foster, executive secretary, Chicago Urban League; "Workers' Council—Urban League Relationships," by Lester B. Granger, secretary workers' bureau, National Urban League; "Importance and Function of Youth Movements," by Miss Pauline Redmond, director youth activities, Chicago Urban League; "Employment and Shelter in the Federal Housing Program," by Howard D. Gould, industrial secretary, Chicago Urban League, and Edward S. Lewis, executive secretary, Baltimore Urban League; "Public Health and the Negro," by Dr. M. O. Bousfield, director for negro health, Julius Rosenwald Fund, Chicago; "Labor Legislation and the Negro Worker," by Wayne L. Hopkins, executive secretary, Armstrong Association, Philadelphia.

Among the discussion leaders were J. S. Himes Jr., director of research, Columbus, Ohio, Urban League; J. A. Thomas, executive secretary Louisville Urban League; Wiley A. Hall, executive secretary, Richmond Urban League; William V. Kelley, executive secretary, Milwaukee Urban League, and John C. Dancy, executive secretary, Detroit Urban League.

From the point of view of attendance, discussion and scientific presentation of subjects assigned, this was probably the most fruitful and productive convention the league has held in its history.

Transparent Woman To Be Shown By Medical Society at Fair Here

Will Make First Trip South for Exhibition at Southeastern.

The Camp Transparent Woman, a figure constructed to show every organ and function of the female body, will make her first trip south next month.

According to an announcement made yesterday, the Transparent Woman, who has been viewed by thousands of persons, will feature the Hall of Health exhibit sponsored by the Fulton County Medical Society at the Southeastern Fair and National Livestock Show October 2 to 9.

The purpose of the exhibit is to "bring to the minds of the public the need of good health and how to obtain it," the announcement stated.

The Hall of Health will be in the educational building, and will occupy a fourth of the lower floor, with space for exhibits 90 by 25 feet. There will be displays on care of the body, teeth, medicines, public health, tuberculosis and cancer control, diet and nutrition, nursing, etc.

A lecturer will demonstrate various parts of the body of the Transparent Woman.

The following allied health agencies will have exhibits: The Department of Public Health of the state of Georgia, the American Medical Association, the Medical Association of Georgia, Fulton County Medical Society, the Georgia and Atlanta Tuberculosis Associations, the Atlanta Hospital Association, the Atlanta Dietetic Association, the Fifth District Nurses' Association, the medical schools of Emory University and University of Georgia, the county and city health departments, the department of Cancer Control of Georgia, the Fifth District Dental Society, the Fifth District Druggists Association.

Tech To Observe 50th Anniversary; Two Days of Festivities Planned

Plans for a celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of Georgia Tech were announced yesterday as faculty members and alumni put finishing touches on the details of a program on which committees have been working for a year.

The institution's half-century birthday is October 8, a half century to the day since public subscription by prominent Atlantans and financial aid from the state made it possible for Georgia to establish a technical school.

Dean William G. Perry, chairman of the Fiftieth Anniversary Committee, announced that two days, October 7 and 8, have been set aside for the observance of the event.

A highlight of the program will be an academic procession on October 8 to the naval armory where Governor Rivers, the Board of Regents and others prominent in state and academic circles will join in commemorating the anniversary.

Stars in Action.

Athletic events will feature the first day's program on October 7. Bobby Jones, of the class of 1922; Charlie Yates, of the class of 1935, and Watts Gunn, of the class of 1927, will play an exhibition golf match at East Lake, and Russell Bobbitt, now a Tech sophomore, will play Bryan Grant on the Tech tennis courts.

The same afternoon Governor and Mrs. Rivers will entertain official delegates, faculty members and their wives at a reception in the executive mansion, and a tea dance, the first of four scheduled for the week end, will be held in the naval armory.

President M. L. Brittain will be host to the alumni at a dinner that night at which representatives from all graduating classes will be heard. Another dance at the armory will complete the first day's program.

Dr. Brittain To Entertain.

After the commemoration exercises on the morning of the second day, President Brittain will entertain official delegates from other colleges and societies in the Tech dining hall.

The Tech-Notre Dame football game will feature the afternoon program after which all fraternities will hold open house for alumni and visitors.

The campus will be open to the public for the full two days and all departments will present exhibits of technical and scientific interest. A display of "scientific magic" will be shown in the physics department by members of the faculty.

Committee Members.

Members of the committees in charge of arrangements are:

President Brittain, chairman ex-officio; Dean Perry, co-chairman; Dean W. V. Skiles, Dean G. H. Boggs and Registrar H. H. Caldwell, advisory committee; President Frank M. Spratlin, Secretary R. J. Thiesen, William H. Glenn, Frank H. Neely, Robert Gregg and Robert L. McDougall, alumni committee.

Subcommittee chairmen are H. A. Wyckoff, commemoration exercises; F. B. Wenn, alumni dinner; R. L. Sweigert, industrial display; H. B. Friedman, dances; H. K. Fulmer, finances; D. M. Cox, publicity; R. P. Black, motor tour; Captain R. M. Fawell and Colonel T. H. Jones, marshals of the day; G. W. Rainey, J. A. Griffin and William Van Houten, reception.

TWO HURT IN CRASH.

LAGRANGE, Ga., Sept. 17.—Bartow Florence, 17, of Jones Cross Roads, was seriously injured, and his brother, George, 19, received minor cuts and bruises today when the car in which they were riding struck the rear of a truck parked on the Whitesville road, near here. Hospital attaches said the younger Florence received deep scalp wounds and facial abrasions.

Will Seek Aid for China.

DR. FRANK W. PRICE.

DR. FRANK W. PRICE TO ARRIVE TODAY

Presbyterian Missionary To Aid for China.

Dr. Frank W. Price, southern Presbyterian missionary on furlough from Nanking Theological Seminary, Nanking, China, will arrive in Atlanta today to aid in setting up state and city committees and a regional office for the newly organized interdenominational Church Committee for China Relief.

Coming to Atlanta from Richmond, Va., Dr. Price will be here through Tuesday at the home of Dr. and Mrs. T. Bolling Gay. He will return to China in a few weeks after an extended furlough.

The Church Committee for China Relief represents a co-operative effort of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, the Foreign Missions Conference of North America, and the China Famine Relief U. S. A. Inc., and will hereafter serve as the single agency of all American churches in securing funds for China relief.

HAMILTON, HUIET THANK SUPPORTERS

James C. Wilson Also Expresses Gratitude Despite His Defeat.

George B. Hamilton, renominated in Wednesday's primary as state treasurer, and Ben T. Huiet, winner as commissioner of labor, yesterday issued statements of appreciation.

Hamilton said:

May I express my deep and sincere appreciation to the host of friends who so ardently supported me in the recent primary and made possible my renomination for the office of state treasurer? I never could bring myself to ask the people of Georgia to elect me to any office on the demerits or merits of my opponent, but based my entire campaign upon the record I had made in public office.

To those who supported me and made possible my renomination, I am eternally grateful. Now that the smoke of the political battlefields is fading away, may we not all lay aside factional differences and shoulder to shoulder as Georgians march forward to victory for a greater state. I can but pledge to you in the coming two years the same honest and conscientious service as your state treasurer that I have tried to the best of my ability to render to you in the past.

Huiet said:

We have finished the fight, we have fought a good race; let's push forward and give Georgia the best administration she has ever had and make it a better place in which to live. I feel a deep sense of humbleness in the signal honor that has been given me. To my friends scattered throughout the state I give all the credit and am deeply grateful for their loyalty. I have always tried to apply the Golden Rule in my dealings with my fellowman and shall continue to do so upon assuming my new duties as commissioner of labor. I hold malice towards none, am at peace with God and my fellowman. The doors to my office will be open at all times. You are assured a cordial reception. Come to see me.

James C. Wilson, defeated Fulton county candidate for the legislature, said:

I have not words to express my gratitude and appreciation to the nearly 15,000 citizens who voted for me Wednesday for the house of representatives. It was an honor of which any man could justly be proud and I shall ever cherish it accordingly. To those friends who worked in my behalf without reward or compensation, I owe an everlasting debt of gratitude. Mrs. Mankin will go back to the house of representatives for a second term with my very best wishes, and I shall stand ready to assist her if the opportunity should present itself.

RAMSPECK THANKS GEORGIA VOTERS

Congressman 'Deeply Grateful' to Supporters.

Congressman Robert Ramspeck yesterday expressed his gratitude to Georgia voters for their support in Wednesday's Democratic primary and promised to continue his service in the interest of the people. His statement follows:

I am deeply grateful to those who supported me in Wednesday's primary and have no ill feeling toward those who opposed me.

My sincerest gratitude goes to the many friends whose efforts made possible the great majority which I received.

The result serves to inspire me to justify the faith of the voters by giving all of the people of our district faithful service in the future, as I have endeavored to do at all times.

YEOMAN THANKS HIS SUPPORTERS

Re-Nominated Attorney General Issues Statement.

M. J. Yeoman, renominated Wednesday for the post of attorney general of Georgia, yesterday expressed his appreciation to the people of the state for indorsing him for another term. His statement follows:

"I desire to thank the people of Georgia for the substantial majorities of both county unit and popular votes given me in Wednesday's primary in my race for re-election as attorney general.

"I shall continue to serve the people as their attorney general to the best of my ability."

What About Mixing Period Furniture?

The living room is the place where the family takes its ease and comfort; where father puts on his slippers to read the evening paper, and mother can sit and darn those socks in comfort. Furniture for this room should be chosen with the end of comfort as well as beauty and durability in mind. There is no point in filling the room with furniture of a particular "period" in order to achieve beauty: in fact, a room furnished thus would offer very little comfort.

Many combinations are harmonious and pleasing to the eye. But, it is impossible to create harmony by combining the heavier styles such as the pre-Gregorian English, the Italian and French Renaissance and the Spanish with the more delicately designed Sheraton, Hepplewhite, Duncan Phyfe and Colonial periods.

A complete discussion of interior decoration, choice of furniture, treatment of walls and floors, color schemes, draperies, etc., is contained in the booklet INTERIOR DECORATION, available for a dime, with the coupon below.

BONDS VOTE DATE TO BE CONSIDERED BY CITY, COUNTY

Council Meets Tomorrow, Commissioners Wednesday for Improvement.

While the city administration yesterday prepared to submit an ordinance authorizing a $4,000,000 bond issue election October 26 to council tomorrow afternoon, members of the Fulton county commission set for Wednesday a meeting to consider a $2,000,000 county issue to further a $15,000,000 development program.

It was anticipated the report of the citizens' co-ordinating committee will be studied by the commission and that action will be taken during the week to expedite start of the program, the largest ever contemplated by the governments.

Fund Pleas Amended.

First step in the county's participation in the program was taken yesterday when County Attorney Walter C. Hendrix filed amendments to county requests for federal funds providing that the county contribution be made from bond funds instead of current revenue.

Fulton asked $1,000,000 for a courthouse annex, $600,000 for construction of four prison camps and $100,000 for erection of an almshouse in the original applications. Participation in the broadened program will include other improvements.

Major recommendations of the co-ordinating group are that Fulton county take over the entire cost of relief in Fulton county and assume one-half the cost of the operation of Grady hospital.

3-Mill Tax Increase.

Commissioners yesterday discussed a referendum on a three-mill tax increase to meet these expenses, which would be submitted to the people with the bond issue election.

Commissioners asserted the cost of relief is about $700,000 a year and that it will have cost $547,000 to operate Grady hospital.

This would require an annual outlay of $973,500 if Grady is operated on its present basis, it was said, an expenditure which is "prohibitive under the present financial status of the county."

Commissioners pointed out that the city now levies a one-mill tax for relief and that under present plans this would be assessed by the county instead of the city.

The three mills were claimed necessary if the county were to make contributions asked.

The 1938 tax rate set at a special meeting of the county commission Friday afternoon raised the 1937 levy of 10 mills to 12.5 mills, providing approximately $690,000 in new revenues for the year.

This action balanced the county budget, and insured that the county's credit will not be impaired, officials said.

Administration Study.

A study of the county administration in general also will be made Wednesday, commissioners said. Commissioners said the bond election should be held on the day of the city balloting.

Mayor Hartsfield and a special council committee have approved the $4,000,000 issue provided the county takes over the cost of relief and half the operating expenses of Grady hospital.

Inclusion of $150,000 in the city-county funds for erection of a national guard headquarters will be proposed in council tomorrow, it was said.

Ernest Brewer, member of the city board of education, yesterday appealed to council to increase the amount of bonds for schools—including enough to build a new junior high school in the Sylvan Hills-Capitol View section.

Board Member Accused.

He wrote: "The schools building and grounds committee chairman must have been asleep, or playing politics" not to have included the new junior high in the school's program. Mrs. Z. V. Peterson is chairman of the committee.

A steering committee to publicize the proposed city bond issue will be sought by Councilman John A. White.

His resolution would authorize appointment by the mayor of members of council, the school board and representative citizens on the steering committee.

Also to be considered by council are 10 more retail whisky license applications, approved by the police committee.

Hartsfield yesterday asserted, "We already have too many liquor stores and I think council should put a limit on the number."

147 Retailers Licensed.

There have been 147 retail licenses issued, City Clerk Joe Richardson said.

A resolution authorized by the board of education asking council to force the power company to provide better transportation facilities for school children is to come up. The board said it would consider operating its own buses if the streetcar and bus company did not improve schedules and routings for various schools.

Two vetoes by the mayor will be considered also. One was an ordinance by Councilman George Lyle to prevent the employment by the city of persons not residents and taxpayers of Atlanta for at least two years. The other was a measure by Alderman I. Gloer Hailey calling for the city to install stop signs on each side of all grade crossings in the city.

Policemen Must Add a Clear Voice to Strong Back

"How's your radio voice?" asked Police Lieutenant C. E. McCrary of Patrolman U. G. (Dusty) Oakes as the two started out last night in a car equipped with two-way radio set. Police officials hope to equip all cars with sets enabling them to receive and send messages. Chief Hornsby thinks elocution lessons, to teach the men to speak clearly and distinctly, may become part of routine training. Six two-way radio cars went into service last week, and six more will go into service this week.

Text of Speech of the President To N. Y. Ratification Celebrants

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—(AP) Here is the text, as released in advance of delivery, of President Roosevelt's radio address today in connection with an observance at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., commemorating the 150th anniversary of New York's ratification of the constitution:

It is with deep personal disappointment that I find the affairs of the world such that I cannot be with my neighbors in Poughkeepsie today.

That my great-great-grandfather, Isaac Roosevelt, sat in the little old courthouse there 150 years ago and cast his vote with the slim majority in favor of ratification of the federal constitution is a family tradition of which I am proud.

There are two words in the English language which in the heat of political controversy are often forgotten or abused — the words "faith" and "confidence." It is well for us to remember that a very large minority of the inhabitants of the original 13 states were opposed to the adoption of the constitution. They had witnessed the complete failure of government under the Articles of Confederation — yet they were opposed to a real union because they believed those leaders who viewed with alarm any effort to think and act in national terms instead of state and local terms.

FEARMONGERS OF PRESENT DAY

And, believe me, the viewers with alarm, the patrons of ghosts and hobgoblins in those days had little to learn from the professional fearmongers of 1938.

I wish that all of you might read the dusty newspapers and pamphlets and handbills of 1788. Feelings ran high. Vituperation and invective were the rule. The state of New York would cease to exist and its people would be squeezed to death between the cold-blooded Yankees of New England on the one side and the passionate aristocracy of the south on the other—if you believed one type of publicity. The people of the state of New York would be ruined by interstate tariffs and as a weak independent nation would be reconquered by George the Third, if you read the publicity of the other party.

Washington, Adams, Hamilton and Clinton were labeled traitors and dictators.

In the midst of these diatribes this constitutional convention in Poughkeepsie was faced with the problem of saying "yes" or "no." Then, as now, there were men and women afraid of the future—distrustful of their own ability to meet changed conditions; short-sighted in their dog-in-the-manger conception of local and national needs. They were afraid of democracy; afraid of the trend toward unity; afraid of 13 states becoming one nation.

NO BILL OF RIGHTS IN CONSTITUTION

As the weeks went on and an insufficient number of states had approved the constitution to put it into effect, its opponents at this convention, realizing more and more that the very existence of that paper organization known as the United States of America was at stake and that public opinion was swinging against them, narrowed their opposition to the fact that the constitution contained no bill of rights.

They held a slim majority against ratification, but at that moment a small group of delegates, in which I am glad to say Dutchess county was well represented, came forward with an appeal to the "faith and confidence" of the convention. They agreed that a permanent constitution for the United States should contain a bill of rights—and they proposed ratification by the state of New York "in full faith and confidence" that a bill of rights would be promptly submitted to the several states by the first congress to meet under the constitution.

You and I know today that it was this proposal which won final adherence by a small margin; and more than that—that this proposal of "full faith and confidence" was in fact carried out by the congress of the United States when it assembled.

I do not know that it is necessary to elaborate on this parable or text. It is perhaps sufficient for me to say that when in almost every generation between 1788 and 1938 the American people have been faced with similar decisions, they have in the long run expressed their "full faith and confidence" in the integrity and safety of the national concept.

It required great patience between 1783 and 1788 to bring home the realization that 13 separate colonies, become 13 separate states, could not survive as 13 separate nationalities. Leadership toward the thought of a united nation had to be patient and was. Perseverance of leadership combined with patience has always won.

Once ratified the constitution presented the outline of a form of government. To become a workable instrument of government its words needed men in every succeeding generation to administer it as great as the men who wrote it.

And the greatest of them have been the men who have sought to make the constitution workable in the face of the new problems and conditions that have faced the nation from year to year.

Yes, the greatest of them have been those who have not said—"It will not work; it cannot be done; it must be changed"—but rather those who have applied to the constitution of the United States the spirit of "full faith and confidence" which has come down to us from the convention which met here in the summer of 1788.

MRS. SWINGLEY, 44, CIVIC WORKER, DIES

Funeral Services Will Be Held at 10 O'Clock Tomorrow.

Mrs. Marion Robb Swingley, 44, died yesterday at the home of her father, Ellis D. Robb, 620 East Morningside drive, N. E., after an extended illness.

Funeral services will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning at Spring Hill with the Rev. R. Wiley Scott officiating. Burial will be in West View cemetery.

A native of Eldora, Iowa, Mrs. Swingley moved to Atlanta from Washington in 1927.

Mrs. Swingley was a member of the Central Congregational church, the Atlanta Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, the League of Women Voters, Better Films Committee, Atlanta Federation of Churches and the Georgia Chapter of the Colonial Dames of the Seventeenth Century.

CRASH DRIVER TO FACE MANSLAUGHTER TRIAL

Marshal Shirley, charged with manslaughter as a result of a fatal automobile accident in which Mrs. Georgia Rainwater was killed last April, will face a jury in Fulton county superior court tomorrow, according to the court calendar.

Shirley's car is alleged to have struck Mrs. Rainwater and he is said to have kept on driving. The accident occurred on Hemphill avenue.

Two negro murder cases also are slated for trial during the week.

POLICE MAY SCAN ELOCUTION LESSONS

Two-Way Radio Installations Require Clear Voice for Officers.

Elocution lessons may become part of the training of Atlanta policemen.

"Now that two-way radio cars are patrolling the city," said Chief of Police M. A. Hornsby, "and the men are able to talk to headquarters, it might not be a bad idea for them to learn how to speak more clearly, especially numbers."

For, according to the chief, installation of two-way sets in every radio car is the department's aim, and requirements of the men who operate the cars will be a good voice, as well as a strong back and a sound mind.

Policemen today must announce as well as listen, continued the chief. The clarity of their speech and the correct pronunciation of words is important. A few elocution lessons might help, believes the chief.

However, he added that he "didn't know when this eventuality would come to pass."

The police announcing means the capture of criminals more quickly than ever. The two-way sets, six of which went into service last week, enable patrolmen to know the position of fellow-officers during a chase. The sets also enable the men to talk directly to headquarters, which, in turn, can send other cars to head off the pursued.

The cars which went into service last week supplemented two similarly equipped cars. Six more will be placed in service this week, the chief said.

the objects and ground underneath.

Three levels of ceiling will be installed, and, between each of these, concealed lights will play on the painting. Specially constructed machines will give the illusion of movement on the canvas.

"Some people think we are going to ruin the painting by making it look gaudy," Wellborn said. "That is not our purpose at all. This is a gorgeous painting, but we want to put life into it. It's a shame to leave it as cold and dead as it is."

Very Little Motion Needed.

The technician pointed out that only the slightest bit of motion will be required to change the painting into something that will live. He pointed to a cannon that evidently had just been fired and was partly concealed with smoke.

"See that smoke. We'll give it just enough motion to make you think the shell has just exploded. There'll be no actual noise, but you'll think there was when you see the smoke drifting slowly away. As a matter of fact, the movement will be so slight that a person will have to look two or three times before he becomes conscious of motion, but it will leave a deeper impression on him than if the movements were more pronounced."

Wellborn said the clouds will seem to move so lazily that two or three persons may argue as to whether they actually are moving. That is the secret of the plans.

Object to Water.

"People have also objected to the idea of using water in the ditches that lead off from the streams in the painting," Wellborn said. "However, you can easily see that the dirt is deteriorating. What it needs is some moisture. Of course, it is not our intention to have water gushing all over the place. We'll merely have streams trickling along as they are supposed to, and in so doing we'll be serving two purposes—providing an added attraction for the visitors and protecting the soil."

George I. Simons, city parks manager, said the work was scheduled to be completed in about 50 days, or about November 10.

As Simons and Wellborn talked about the progress of the work, beside them a Confederate soldier, still clutching his gun, lay in a ditch, a look of agony written on his face. Beside him another lay dying. But there was little about them that was life-like. They were just there.

When the project is completed, every figure in the painting and those that are not on the painting, will become human beings. They'll be fighting the Battle of Atlanta all over again.

Atlanta Boys Described as Lonely By Scout Executive in Legion Talk Hearts Are Yearning for Comradeship of Real Men, Dobson Declares.

Atlanta's boys are lonely.

That opinion was expressed yesterday by W. A. Dobson, regional Scout executive, in an address before members of Atlanta Post No. 1, American Legion, on the dividends they could derive from taking an increased interest in the youth of the city.

"The hearts of our boys are yearning for the comradeship of a real man," he declared. "Their hero worship is being starved because our fathers have ceased to be sociological and have become only biological dads."

Male Leadership.

Asserting his belief that a boy is something more than "a noise covered with dirt," he said the youngsters are waiting for the right kind of men to lead them. He explained that most of the people the boys come in contact with in school, Sunday school and elsewhere are women, but added they like to associate with men on common ground.

"And unless you men who believe in true Americanism talk to them, other people with their Communism and many other kinds of 'isms' will do the job for you," he warned.

Dobson said Atlanta and the nation need to develop young people who have a sense of responsibility, pointing out that today the popular idea seems to be to shun responsibility.

"It's easy to talk about citizenship and patriotism, but if you're going to get it you've got to practice it," he declared.

Co-operation Needed.

Citing another need, the Scout executive said fathers should encourage their boys to develop the spirit of co-operation.

"We are made for co-operation," he said. "We have hands and feet that are alike and we have upper and lower teeth. Yet you can show me any city council or any organization and I'll show you a group of men who are fighting against each other."

Through the various boys' agencies he explained that Atlanta men can produce a generation that will be sounder physically, mentally and morally than the previous generation.

"Get your boys out where the chiggers bite—out into God's great university," he pleaded.

Spiritual Illiteracy.

Warning that there is a danger of boys in Atlanta becoming "spiritually illiterate," he said the youths "need some wholesome men to instill in them a deep and abiding sense of spirituality."

"You and I and our boys can't hope to be happy unless we have a sense of spirituality in our lives," he said.

The Scout executive agreed with the theme of a current movie—that there are no bad boys. "They may be headed in the wrong direction sometimes, but actually there are no bad boys," he said.

RAIL RATE POLICY CHANGES OPPOSED

McDonald Says Georgia Commission Is Against C. I. & L. Reorganization.

By the Associated Press.

Chairman Walter McDonald announced yesterday the Georgia Public Service Commission has joined in opposition to a proposed reorganization of the Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville Railway Company.

He asked extension until October 15 the time limit for filing exceptions to the reorganization proposed by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

"In the public interest," McDonald declared, "no change in the traffic policy or the rate making policy" is desired. He said that under the reorganization "the common stock, majority of which is owned jointly by the Louisville & Nashville railroad and the Southern Railway, is found without value.

"The common stock control by southern lines should not be wiped out because the policy of the southern lines ownership has been to accord southern shippers competitive freight rates on competitive commodities reaching that part of the official classification territory served by the Monon (C. I. (AP) L.) and, to the extent that this policy or adjustment may be impaired, the recommended reorganization is incompatible with the public interest."

The Georgia commission enlisted support of industrial organizations and other state commissioners throughout the south in taking similar action against reorganization. The Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce and the Alabama Public Service Commission already has taken action.

"If the principles of rate-making advocated in the southern Governors' rate case now pending were effective," McDonald added, "the public interest here involved would not be in jeopardy and for that reason it may be that counsel for the southern Governors will also protest." The Monon property is valued at about $34,000,000 in the reorganization proposal.

CZECH ARMY IS EUROPE'S MOST EFFICIENT WAR MACHINE

Acme Photo.

These three photographs show the kind of men and equipment that make the Czechoslovakian army what military authorities consider to be the most efficient war machine in Europe. Above are three of the 1,750,000 warriors at President Benes' command—members of a tank unit coming up for air.

This Czech soldier is loaded with clips of bullets, bullets Czechoslovakians from high government officials to men on the street threaten will be used against anyone who tries to take their land.

Born in war, Czechoslovakia is determined that if she perishes the dismemberment, too, will be by the sword, or more accurately by the modern methods of mass slaughter rather than under diplomatic anesthesia. This photo shows Czech machine-gunners concealed in a stack of grain.

BUSINESSMEN FEAR LONG-TERM EFFECT OF EUROPEAN WAR

No 'Boom' Expected, But Aftermath May Be Worse Than in 20's.

By HENRY PAYNTER,
Associated Press Business Writer.

NEW YORK, Spet. 17.—(AP)—With the world intent upon war clouds over Europe, the big question facing American business is: "How would we be affected if major foreign powers fight?"

A canvass of several Wall Street banking and business authorities and experts shows opinion confused, but leaning toward the conclusion that a vast European conflict, while it lasted, might stimulate American business, and the shock at the onset would be markedly less severe than that experienced in 1914.

Result in Chaos.

But it was generally thought war would bring no business "boom" to the United States of 1916-18 proportions; and its conclusion, if it lasted long, might leave a major portion of the world in such impoverished and chaotic condition as to have depressing, perhaps grave, repercussions here.

All analysts consulted crossed their fingers, figuratively, for several reasons:

1. Whether the United States government enforces neutrality laws (forbidding war shipments) and the Johnson act (prohibiting loans to defaulted countries, including England and France) to the letter of the laws (which have admitted gaping loopholes) or to the strict spirit of their intent, they felt, would depend upon public opinion.

2. If American public opinion favored support to the democracies in event of war, the administration might ignore the loopholes; congress might even amend or repeal the laws. If, on the other hand, the country be swept by a wave of vocal anti-war sentiment the administration might in effect clamp down an embargo on supplies and credits and congress might plug existing loopholes.

3. Should America become involved in a general European war—"all bets are off;" none of the prognosticators would venture to predict the effect upon business, because of the possibility of much greater governmental control than in 1917-1918.

Calculations made, therefore, would apply only to the period of a general European war in which the United States would not participate. Consensus canvassed was:

1. The immediate effect would be only a temporary shock, which American business could take in its stride. In 1914 American business generally, and especially commodities, were almost harder hit than American finance and banking. Every one believed then that the European war would cause complete disruption of American business because: a Europe would not be in the market; b. sea commerce would be interfered with by hostile navies; c. Europe, then banker for American industry, would want its money back at once. The "buy-a-bale-of-cotton" campaign was an effort to save the south from ruin. The middle west suffered crushing blows.

Today, on the other hand, Europe as a whole, would probably want as much as the United State government would let her buy; England would control the seas and serious interference with American shipping would be unlikely especially because of the strength of the American navy; European investments or orders are no longer an essential mainstay to American business; grains and most other commodities would be in demand almost from the outset and there is evidence that any setback to cotton would likely be no more than temporary for many reasons. Some said the government has ample existing machinery to cope with such a dislocation.

2. The long-term effect (while the United States remained out of the war) would be stimulating but not of the "boom" type, because the United States would become almost overnight, an outstanding supplier of manufactured goods, machines, and many essentials to all of the nations of the world not engaged in war, because of the disruption war would bring to commerce and shipping of major industrial countries engaged in it. The United States would also supply as much of commodities, machines and manufactured goods to the warring nations as the United States would permit, and as the buyers could arrange to pay for.

However, in considering the importance of potential United States trade with the warring nations, it was explained the following should be considered:

All the major countries have made elaborate preparations for war; a fact not true in 1914. England and France have recently laid in great stores of food and war essentials; the totalitarian nations have for years attempted to make themselves as self-sufficient as possible. Hence, for months to come, demands of warring nations might not be as great as might be supposed, on a 1916-18 basis of calculation.

Quite apart from U. S. government restrictions, European nations, and those in the Orient, too, have a greatly altered credit status, compared with 1916-1918. United States dealings with Japan for some time have been approaching a cash-and-carry basis. It was considered likely, therefore, that unless the United States government attitude changes markedly that warring nations would not obtain from the United States any more than they could pay for in gold, acceptable foreign exchange, or by some device of barter. Visible potential credit base of England and France is comparatively much smaller proportionately than it was in 1914 and succeeding years.

United States bankers, consequently, would be unlikely, without federal approval which would take the form of an implied promise to underwrite the dealings, to indorse business exports except on short term credits, or practically cash and carry basis.

In the World War, excess of United States exports over imports in 1914 dropped to something over $300,000,000, less than half of the previous year because of the paralysis which the war first brought to business. In 1916, this surplus totaled more than $3,000,000,000, nearly ten times the 1914 amount. Surplus of United States exports over imports for the years 1916, 1917 and 1918 totaled $8,148,125,000, a figure some find interesting to compare with the total funded World War debt owed the United States of more than eleven billions, not including interest. Export bankers generally would be inclined to be cautious about foreign credit. This attitude in view of bitter experience, might be expected to prevail in trade with neutrals as well as combatants.

Government officials consulted thought it unlikely that warring nations through neutrals, could buy or borrow very much from the United States without this government learning of it. Although existing laws would make it possible for a neutral nation to set up a credit or buy munitions, for a warring power, any great increase over normal requirements would be at once noticed.

Recently, high administration officials have emphasized the government's desire to lean backward to avoid entangling the United States in European war. If this view prevails, trade with the warring nations presumably would be kept within bounds, and the result of such increase in foreign trade as occurred would be measured primarily only in its priming effect upon general business, which has already shown signs in many quarters of a pickup.

Should, however, sentiment swing to favor help to one faction in Europe, and the United States government, in consequence, permitted or even encouraged trade with combatants, some analysts, although believing such an expansion of foreign trade would result in near-boom conditions for a period, fear that the eventual results, including possible embroilment of this country and long-time disarrangement of the entire world's business, would be so disastrous, they do not even like to talk about it.

HATRED IS FANNED IN SUDETEN AREAS

Czech Bayonets Keep Border Towns Submissive as Fugitives Hide.

By EDWARD W. BEATTIE JR.
(Copyright, 1938, by the United Press.)

EGER, (Sudetenland) Czechoslovakia., Sept. 17.—(UP)—This land of the Sudeten Germans in Czechoslovakia seemed gripped tonight in the torpor of a man dying of fever.

During four days of touring the worst sore sports of this area of almost fanatical hatred for Czechoslovakia, I visited once prosperous market towns, stopped in villages where bloody fighting followed Fuehrer Adolf Hitler's Nuremberg address, or where battles were averted only by the lightning-fast appearance of Czech armored cars and infantry.

Everywhere the story was the same.

Hitler's speech brought a burst of white-hot nationalism, an awakened feeling of national consciousness that sent crowds rushing through the streets to "heil Der Fuehrer." And to blanket their house fronts with swastikas brought f rom garret hiding places.

Shootings followed in a dozen places—usually, according to neutral observers, because the crowds menaced police or pelted them with rocks and stones. In a few cases the police seemed to have been responsible for outbreaks.

Sudetens Fled.

Then the army moved in to enforce martial law. The most radical Sudetens fled. Some at the extreme border took to woodland paths and reached the Reich in safety. Others went into hiding in the deep woods or in abandoned mines. Others still are living as fugitives in woods and mine shafts, unable to get past Czech border patrols to sanctuary in Germany.

Within the towns rules the army, supported by gendarmes who ceaselessly patrol each street with bayonets fixed. In most villages no shops are open. Many stores owned by Czechs or "Marxist traitors" have been smashed. There is almost no transportation to and from these cities save for trains running hours behind schedule because of the pressure of refugees heading for the interior of Czechoslovakia with every possession they can carry.

Everything is at a standstill. Any gathering of more than three in towns like Eger is considered a "crowd" and instantly dispersed by the police. In villages like Haberspirk—scene of a pitched battle hours long—the only signs of life are soldiers and gendarmes who move around police headquarters under the shadow of guns atop armored cars. With them are a handful of Czech residents and German Communists and Socialists who tell you sadly that they have been unable to find work for years; that they have been constantly threatened with physical injuries—or death.

Many of them hid for the first two days following Hitler's address. They remained in the woods until word was brought them that police control was secure.

Blight of Hatred.

Underneath this torpor burns the hatred which has blighted the Sudeten belt for years and which rose to the danger point with Germany's annexation of Austria.

The Sudetens, many of whom are aghast at the possibility of war which would strike them first, tell how the years of "deliberate economic and political oppression" have impoverished their area. They add that this "oppression" has made 400,000 Sudetens out of a population of 3,500,000 jobless, and they relate from 100 to 1,000 of their number have been forced to cross into Germany daily in search of jobs.

Few—very few—still believe that a solution to their problem might be reached within the framework of Czechoslovakia.

These Germans say that Czechs always receive the preference for government or private jobs. And, with the Czechs, they agree that present conditions cannot be allowed to endure.

No one who has spent even a few hours in the dismal, discouraged atmosphere of Sudeten Germany would dispute them. The army now is in complete control. The population is without leadership worthy of the name, and without arms.

The slightest spark of new trouble, or even a continuation of present uncertainties, might again bring them into the streets, like the screaming mobs of the French revolution, to do battle with the Czechoslovak army.

(The Associated Press said many Sudeten Germans surrendered their arms today to Czechoslovak authorities. Throughout the border region the Sudetens trooped into police and gendarmerie stations with old guns and vicious looking knives, some with shiny pearl handles, in compliance with a government order that arms be turned in within six hours.

(In Eger, a city of 34,000 population, 250 persons turned in one or more firearms. Some old soldiers among them brought along cases full of weapons.)

Il Duce Expected To Demand Vote For Sudeten 'Self-Determination'

Rome Sources Reveal Mussolini Will Advance Program Today as Necessary To Save Europe From General War.

ROME, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Premier Benito Mussolini set out today for Trieste to deliver a speech tomorrow in which he was expected to emphasize Italy's view that the Sudeten Germans of Czechoslovakia must be given the right of "self-determination."

Il Duce will advance the program as necessary to save Europe from war, it was expected.

The United Press said Premier Mussolini will insist on prompt acceptance of Germany's demands in the Czechoslovak crisis and urge Great Britain to scrap that part of the Versailles treaty under which Czechoslovakia was created, according to reports in reliable Fascist circles.

(Political observers commented that Hitler's reported four-point demands represented 90 per cent of the suggestions offered by Mussolini in published articles earlier this week. Il Duce suggested cession of all Czechoslovak districts with clearly defined nationalities such as the Sudeten German, Hungarian and Polish minorities; cantonization of districts with mixed nationalities and reduction of the present Czech state to the proportions of the historic kingdom of Bohemia.)

He will speak in a territory, which, like Czechoslovakia, was a part of Austro-Hungary before the World War.

(Mussolini has Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's pledge that Germany will not attempt to regain this one-time part of Austria.)

Trieste is the most Jewish of any Italian city and Il Duce was expected to deal also with Italy's anti-Semitic campaign and to discuss the city's economic condition.

The entire Fascist press again presented the apparently inspired demand for a plebiscite in which the Sudeten Germans would vote on union with Germany. An open letter to Viscount Runciman, British mediator in the Czechoslovak crisis, advocating Czechoslovakia be divided into racial states, appeared Wednesday in Mussolini's Milan newspaper Il Popolo d'Italia and was generally credited to Il Duce.

Union of the Sudeten German districts with Germany was the principal point of the proposal.

Mussolini will arrive at Trieste tomorrow morning from Venice aboard the destroyer Camigia Nera, escorted by eight war vessels. Twenty special telephone lines were run into Trieste to facilitate world-wide dissemination of his address.

Virginio Gayda, authoritative Fascist editor, wrote today in the newspaper Il Giornale d'Italia that telegrams to Il Duce from heads of the Slovak council and the Hungarian Revisionist League proved the minority problem in Czechoslovakia was not confined to Sudetens and demanded "full solution on all fronts."

"These peoples are all alive, individual and today in revolt," Gayda wrote. "They are not moved by ideology but by national consciousness."

HUNGARY TROOPS SENT TO FRONTIER

Reports Tell of Soldiers on Way to Front.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Sept. 17. (AP)—Hungary has taken counter measures to alleged Czechoslovak troop concentrations along the Hungarian border and has drawn up troops on her side of the line, well-informed sources said today.

Reports from travelers and other sources said passenger trains in Czechoslovakia were greatly delayed because of the tremendous military transport.

Hungary protested yesterday against alleged massing of troops along her boundary, and activity of Czech airplanes this side of the border.

Last night, reliable sources said, Hungarian troops entered positions opposite the Czech fortified zone, moving through villages darkened by military order.

Many Hungarians were called to the colors and manufacturers received orders to report immediately all men they want exempted.

FEAR SUDDEN ORDER.

LONDON, Sept. 17.—(UP)—G. Ward Price, Daily Mail correspondent, who is regarded as an intimate of many Nazi officials, reported today from Berchtesgaden that continue outbreaks of violence in the Sudeten area might precipitate "a sudden order" even before the next meeting of Adolf Hitler and Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain.

SUDETENS SADDENED.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—(UP) Officials at the Czech legation said reports from Prague indicated that many Czech Sudeten Germans who crossed the border into the reich were bitterly disappointed at their reception.

U. S. WAR CHIEF CANCELS JOURNEY

Roosevelt Wires Regrets to Chickamauga Celebration Committee.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—(AP) Harry H. Woodring, secretary of war, canceled a west coast speaking engagement today on the grounds of pressing government business.

His announcement that he would remain in the capital, instead of going to Los Angeles to address the national American Legion convention Monday, was taken widely to mean that President Roosevelt might call another cabinet meeting soon to discuss the European crisis.

The gravity of the foreign situation impelled the President himself to cancel a speaking engagment earlier in the day.

Mr. Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull were in close touch throughout the day. Presidential aides said Hull and other State Department officials had been given right of way into the President's office at any time. Secretary Hull was unusually grave when he met correspondents at his press conference.

He disclosed there had been informal discussions relative to the United States taking over Czechoslovakian interests in Germany in case of war. Hull said no formal step had been taken by the Czech government.

The secretary declined any comment on other phases of the foreign situation. He said the department had not taken up the question of possible revision of the neutrality act or of the Johnson act, which denies credit in this country to governments which still owe us war debts.

President Roosevelt canceled an engagement at Chattanooga, Tenn., where he was scheduled to speak Tuesday at a celebration commemorating the Battle of Chickamauga. He previously had canceled another engagement today at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., after his hurried dash back to Washington from Minnesota to be in touch with developments abroad.

F. D. R. TELEGRAPHS HIS REGRETS

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Sept. 17.—(AP)—A committee representing the national Chickamauga celebration, which is being held here, left here for Washington tonight to ask President Roosevelt to reconsider his decision to cancel a scheduled address here Tuesday because "of the international situation."

The President today telegraphed Representative Sam D. McReynolds, an official of the celebration commission, saying:

"Since talking with you I regret that it continues inadvisable for me to leave Washington at this time. It is a real disappointment for me for I had been looking forward to being with you, but in view of the international situation, I have no choice."

SENATOR NYE RAPS U. S. FOREIGN POLICY

He Criticizes Administrations Defense Programs.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(UP)—Senator Gerald P. Nye, Republican, North Dakota, a member of the senate foreign affairs committee and chairman of the munitions investigating committee, criticized the foreign policy of the Roosevelt administration tonight and warned the United States against becoming embroiled in the European crisis.

He remarked he had learned on "good authority" that the recent record run of the Queen Mary was in realty a speed test for war emergency when the ship would be converted into a troop transport for the movement of American soldiers.

Nye criticized as "utterly insane" the administration's national defense program, which he said was obviously a program for engagement in a foreign war. He also deplored the "insistence" of the State Department that it be informed of "every move by certain European powers and the concern with which those powers seem to seek our approval of their steps."

Czech Bayonets, Steel and Forts Guard Borders Against Invasion

Guards at Frontier Barrier Halt All Traffic for Rigid Inspection, Armed Infantrymen Escort Travelers as Surveillance Grows More Strict.

REICHENBERG, Czechoslovakia (Near the German Frontier), Sept. 17.—(AP)—A frontier bristling with soldiers, steel and fortifications guarded Czechoslovakia's independence tonight against possible invasion.

One kilometer (three-fifths of a mile) from the red and white barrier at Hradek, which marks the line between Germany and Sudetenland, guards with fixed bayonets halted all traffic for rigid inspection.

Travelers wishing to go to the frontier line were required to be accompanied by an armed infantryman.

Surveillance was stricter today because last night a soldier who was on duty near a textile factory in a fortified zone was shot and killed.

Men who heard shots hastened to the scene, but the guard was dead. The authorities said there was no indication of the identity of the attacker or attackers. The shooting occurred within 200 yards of the border.

Inside the border town of Hradek, sentries carrying rifles paced the streets near the branch railway line to Reichenberg.

Machine Guns Mounted.

Mounted machine guns poked dull black noses out of second-floor windows commanding main streets and the town square.

The number of troops was not impressive, but their precision and attention to duty showed strict military control throughout the zone.

The political dispute in Reichenberg, one of the communities under martial law, has faded into the background with what residents called the "flight" of Konrad Henlein, Sudeten German leader, into Germany.

They said there had been no disorders for days and only "small arguments" between groups of Sudeten Germans and German Social Democrats.

The general strike called in Reichenberg Thursday virtually has died away. Street cars were running, stores were open and factories were operating.

A hotel proprietor laughed when asked by a French tourist if any restaurants were open.

Dugouts of Concrete.

"No one missed anything because of the strike," he said. "It still is in effect, but you would never know it."

In addition to border fortification—some underground and some in plain sight—military engineering squads were hastily constructing auxiliary lines more than three miles behind the border.

Most of the new positions are machine-gun nests with reinforced concrete dugouts and heavy wooden abutments. Their sloping fronts are camouflaged and are placed at angles to the paved highway leading from the border.

Engineering detachments were working openly in the fields. A young Czech officer explained:

"For 20 years our government has been rebuilding this part of Czechoslovakia. More money has gone into the so-called Sudeten area than anywhere else.

Roads, Schools Built.

"We have built roads and schools. We have re-established Bohemia as an industrial and agricultural center, as it was for hundreds of years before.

"We are not going to give it away to anyone or let anyone take it from us if we can help it."

One of the few evidences of martial law in Reichenberg was the number of recruits among the state police. Men between 25 and 30 years of age have been enrolled and put on patrol duty.

There were only a few soldiers on duty in Reichenberg during the day and a few more went on duty after 7 p. m.

No civilians are allowed on the streets after 8 p. m. unless they have special passes from the military authorities.

Special police make regular inspections of all hotels at night. Travelers must show passports or other identification.

DUKE OF WINDSOR PLAYS GOLF, SWIMS.

CANNES, France, Sept. 17.—(AP)—The Duke of Windsor has taken no public cognizance of the European crisis.

For weeks the Duke's daily routine has been golf and swimming. His evenings are spent quietly with the Duchess at their Cap d'Antibes chateau.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman H. Rogers, American friends of the Duke and Duchess, have been their frequent companions.

The Windsors are expected to go to Paris soon to stay until Christmas when they will return to the Riviera for the winter season.

Gladys Swarthout Will Be Soloist On 'Sunday Evening Hour' Tonight

Olympe Bradna and Gene Autry Guests During Don Ameche Variety Hour.

GLADYS SWARTHOUT.

Returning from a six-week vacation abroad, Gladys Swarthout, famous Metropolitan Opera soprano and star of concert, radio and motion pictures, will appear as soloist on the season's second Sunday Evening Hour broadcast from Detroit to be heard over WGST at 8 o'clock tonight.

The program, featuring the symphony orchestra and chorus conducted by Eugene Ormandy, will be the first in which the famous singer will appear this autumn. Her only appearance abroad this summer was a private recital with Fritz Kreisler during her recent sojourn in London.

The program includes:

Overture to "Euryanthe," by Von Weber (orchestra).

Che Faro Senza Euridice from "Orpheus and Euridice," by Gluck (Miss Swarthout and orchestra).

Interlude and dance from "La Vida Breve," by De Falla (orchestra).

"Come Again, Sweet Love," by Dowland (Miss Swarthout and orchestra).

"Velvet Shoes," by Thompson (Miss Swarthout and orchestra).

"O That It Were So," by Bridge (Miss Swarthout and orchestra).

Farandole from "L'Arlesienne Suite," by Bizet (orchestra).

"Finlandia," by Sibellius (orchestra).

"God That Madest Earth and Heaven." (chorus, audience and orchestra).

VARIETY.

Two guest stars from the films will join Charlie McGarthy on the Don Ameche Variety Hour to be heard over WSB at 7 o'clock tonight. They are Olympe Bradna, promising young ingenue, and Gene Autry, the screen's leading cowboy star.

Nelson Eddy, Dorothy Lamour, the Stroud Twins and Robert Armbruster's orchestra, besides Don, Edgar Bergen and Charlie, will all have a part in the show. Miss Bradna will be heard with Ameche in the dramatic feature of the broadcast.

Program music includes:

"Jerum, Jerum," from "Die Meistersinger," by Wagner.

"Trees," by Oscar Rosbach.

"Sailor Men," by Jacques Wolf.

"Rose Marie," by Rudolf Friml.

CONCERT.

The premiere of a composition written to order for radio and the appearance of a Duluth pianist in a reciprocal guest performance are the interesting features to be presented by Howard Barlow, conductor of the Columbia Broadcasting Symphony, in his "Everybody's Music" program to be heard over WGST at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

"Tall Story," by Jerome Moross, youngest of the six American musicians writing for the second Columbia composers commission, will be given its first public hearing. Preceding that Elsa Anneke is to join Barlow and the orchestra in Cesar Franck's Symphonic Variations.

The program includes:

Haydn's "London" Symphony.

"Tall Story."

MAGIC KEY.

A recital by Efrem Zimbalist, world-famous concert violinist; a working demonstration of a seeing eye dog maneuvering in heavy traffic; the network debut of a young and talented singer, Joan Briton, and swing by an expert, Artie Shaw, with his orchestra and popular vocalist, Billie Halliday, will be the unusual attractions of the Magic Key program to be heard over WAGA at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

Dr. Frank Black and the Magic Key orchestra will background the program of distinctive entertainment and variety in which Clifton Fadiman, literary critic and wit, will be heard as master of ceremonies.

PICKETS RELEASE N. Y. FOOD TRUCKS

Threat of Shortage in Manhattan Dissipated.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Manhattan's millions were told by an insurgent labor leader tonight that they "may have to go naked," but the threat of a food shortage in the city's three-day-old "outlaw" trucking strike was dissipated when pickets waved food trucks through an attempted blockade of bridges, tunnels and ferry entrances.

"We don't intend to starve the public," said John Strong, a member of the strikers' rank and file committee.

"They may have to go naked. That's up to the bosses. We'll see that they are well fed."

JOB PLACEMENTS IN U. S. REACH PEAK

August Figures Highest, Secretary Perkins Says.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Employment conditions improved throughout the country in August, Secretary of Labor Perkins announced today.

Reporting on operations of the United States Employment Service last month, she said:

"Placements reached the highest point of the year, 265,975 jobs being filled, of which two-thirds were with private employers.

"This is the first time in the history of the present employment service that private placements in August exceeded those in May, the usual seasonal peak."

The favorable trend was not confined to any particular regions, she said.

WHAT TO DO WITH TRIO PUZZLES PATROLMEN

DeKalb county police still are wondering just what to do about three Birmingham men arrested Tuesday after a chase through Druid Hills.

At present John Charles Velekis, 23; Clyde Robertson, 30, and Nick Montos, 22, are being held on charges of possessing burglar tools. But DeKalb authorities are investigating further.

Word from Birmingham indicated all have police records there but it was not shown whether Alabama wanted them back.

LAWYERS TO HEAR NEW COURT RULES

Institute To Open Here on Changed U. S. Civil Procedure.

Advance registrations for the Institute on new rules of civil procedure in federal district courts, to be held here September 30 and October 1, indicate that several hundred lawyers, judges, law professors and students from the southeast will attend, E. Smythe Gambrell, the director, said yesterday.

Because of the heavy registration, he urged all attorneys desiring to attend the meetings to register as soon as possible.

The Institute, sponsored by the Atlanta Bar Association in co-operation with the Lamar School of Law of Emory University, is to familiarize southeastern lawyers with the new rules of federal procedure which went into effect September 16.

Lectures on the new procedure, prepared by the supreme court, will be given by Judge Joseph C. Hutcheson Jr., Houston, Texas, member of the fifth circuit court of appeals; Federal Judge E. Marvin Underwood, of Atlanta; Dean Charles E. Clark, of Yale University school of law, and Monte M. Lemann, New Orleans, member of the supreme court advisory committee.

President Frank J. Hogan, of the American Bar Association, will be principal speaker at a banquet the first night of the Institute. Sessions of the Institute will be held in the United States district courtroom in the old Post Office building.

Rats Steal $12,350 From Aged Recluse

NEWTON, N. J., Sept. 17.—(UP)—Police today recovered $12,350 in cash and securities which had been stolen from an elderly woman recluse by rats.

The woman, whose name was withheld, had withdrawn her life's savings—$12,000 in bonds and $350 in currency—from a bank last July and hidden them in an ashtrap under the living room fireplace, where they disappeared.

A detective probed in the pipe and found the missing fortune. The rats had chewed up $150 in currency.

RIVERS AIDE SEEKS HOUSE CLERKSHIP

By The Associated Press.

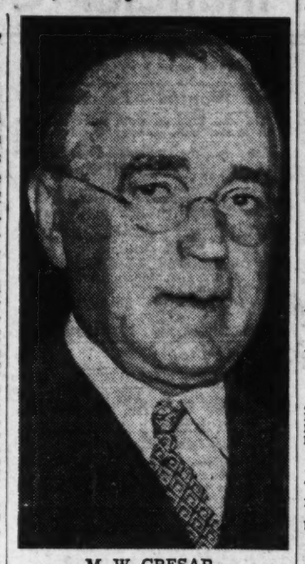

John W. Greer Jr., of Lakeland, yesterday announced he would offer for the clerkship of the house of representatives. Joe Boone, of Irwinton, was clerk of the last house.

Greer served as purchasing agent of the State Highway Department for more than a year, resigning that place early the past summer to assist Governor Rivers in his campaign for renomination.

Prior to his connection with the highway department, Greer taught in the public schools of Tift county, and later operated a newspaper at Lakeland and Homerville.

Steady Climb in U. S. Business Seen Despite War Crisis, Says Visitor

M. W. Cresap, Widely Known Businessman of Chicago, Here.

M. W. CRESAP.

Predicting a substantial and continuous upturn in American business and praising Atlanta's airport as "one of the best in the entire country," M. W. Cresap, of Chicago, nationally-known businessman and leader in educational and aviation circles, visited Atlanta yesterday.

He is chairman of the board and president of Hart Shaffner & Marx Clothing Company. For 20 years he has been a trustee of Northwestern University, his Alma Mater. He also is a director of the First National Bank, Chicago, and a director of United Air Lines.

"If a European war breaks out, it will not arrest the steady climb of business and the general increased prosperity or progress of our country," he said. "It may slow it down for a few months, but the march is forward. The war, however, will cause an increase in interest rates.

Mr. Cresap, who has visited the south many times, said he is impressed by the fact that the depression and the recession failed to adversely affect the south as much as it did other sections of the country.

"The south has been blessed by a comparatively mild climate," he added. "It has a diversity of enterprises, including industry, which makes it able to withstand economic upheavels better than some other sections of America. It has had no protracted drouths or floods.

"The progress and prosperity which we are no entering is not a boom, but a genuine improvement of conditions. It is not solely attributable to any specific cause, even government spending. Several factors enter into it and government spending is only one of them.

"There is a building boom, which will be reflected in all lines of endeavor. I anticipate the best next 12 months which the country has experienced in many years. Conditions are ripe for it."

Aviation Enthusiast.

Mr. Cresap was accompanied to Atlanta by Ray Manning and was the guest of A. L. Zachry. The party also included J. Edgar Chancellor, of Columbus, Ga.

For the past 10 years, Mr. Cresap has been an aviation enthusiast. He has flown about 500,000 miles, he said.

The party left about noon for a visit to the University of Georgia, Athens, where Mr. Cresap will study the educational methods in Georgia. He will visit in South Carolina before making his swing back to Chicago, from which place he flew to Atlanta Friday night.

He asserted he is just on a visit, "more social than anything else through this section of the country."

DECATUR WILL VOTE ON $125,000 BONDS

Polling Places Will Open at 6 O'Clock Wednesday, Stay Open 12 Hours.

Decatur voters will cast their ballots Wednesday on a $125,000 bond issue which, if approved, will be matched by about $300,000 in federal funds to launch an extensive civic improvement program.

Projects contemplated include extensions to the sewer system and water works, improvements in the incinerator plant and the construction of new school buildings.

Polling places will be open 12 hours from 6 o'clock in the morning at the city hall, Oakhurst and Poplar Springs. A majority of those registered must vote for the election to be legal, and a two-thirds majority of those voting is required for the approval of the bonds.

Advocates declare that Decatur's steadily increasing population will make much of the work imperative within the space of a few years and that this may be the final opportunity to get assistance from the federal government.

Statistics show that the city's population has jumped from 15,488 in 1934 to 17,200 this year, and further increase to approximately 21,000 is anticipated within the next five years. Meanwhile, the number of homes has jumped from 3,862 to 4,320 in the past four years and an estimated 1,000 more will be added by 1943.

Bond proponents claim the present tax yield will be sufficient to care for all other city expenses and to retire the issue without any increase in the present tax rate.

PROBERS HEAR 'RED RULE IN WPA RANKS

Get Friends Jobs at Veterans' Expense.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(UP)—Victor F. Ridder, former WPA administrator here, told the Dies subcommittee investigating un-American activities today that Communists became so powerful in local WPA circles in 1936 that they were able to obtain jobs for fellow members at the expense of war veterans.

Communists dominated organizations of WPA employes, Ridder said, and through them exerted pressure which resulted in complaints by veterans that they were being discriminated against.

Ridder, publisher of the Staats-Zeitung, a German language newspaper, said he ordered an investigation and found the veterans' charges true. So powerful did one organization become, he added, that its secretary, Oscar Fuss, who was discharged by Ridder, was reinstated after Ridder's resignation.

HARRIS ANNOUNCES FOR SPEAKERSHIP

House Leader Says He Has 80 Pledges in Race to Succeed Self.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Sept. 17.—(AP) Roy V. Harris, speaker of the Georgia house of representatives, announced here today he will be a candidate to succeed himself as house speaker at the next session of the legislature.

Harris, re-elected without opposition as a Richmond county representative in the primary last Wednesday, said in his formal announcement he had received written pledges from 80 members of the newly elected house and "hope to have the required 103 pledges, necessary to elect, within the next three or four days."

Harris said he had not heard of any opposition.

His re-election from Richmond marks the fourth time the Augusta attorney has represented this county in the house. Before then he was for eight years a member of the house from Jefferson county and served in the senate one two-year term.

He was floor leader of the house in 1931 and 1932, and again from 1933 to 1936. He was speaker the last two years.

Street Sweeper Who Served City 35 Years Is Dead

Alf Evans, negro employe of the city sanitary department who nightly swept the gutters of the downtown streets for 35 years, died Tuesday at the age of 72.

He was well known to many of the persons who work at night in the business area.

Alf became connected with the department in 1902 and was considered one of the most faithful employes. H. P. Mallory, night superintendent, Alf's "boss," said the aged negro made him beneficiary of the $1,000 life insurance policy the negro took out under the rules of the city government. Alf retired on a pension in 1937.

Funeral services are to be conducted at 10 o'clock this morning at the Hanley establishment. Burial will be in South View cemetery.

FAIR GETS DOUG'S SHIP.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Douglas Corrigan finished his tour of 48 cities upon his return here today and gave custody of his $900 plane in which he recently flew from New York to Ireland, to officials of the 1939 Golden Gate International Exposition.

CHINA ASKS PROBE OF PACIFIC ISLANDS

League Told of Japanese Troop Conscriptions.

GENEVA, Sept. 17.—(AP)—China demanded today that the League of Nations act against Japanese conscription of troops in more than 1,000 Pacific islands held under League mandate.

Through this move, Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, Chinese delegate, put up to the League the whole question of what Japan is doing in the Marshall, Caroline and Mariana islands.

Business Opportunities 50

AN OUTSTANDING OPPORTUNITY FOR PROFIT—OPEN YOUR OWN DRY GOODS—DEPARTMENT STORE.

MORE than 1,400 merchants are members of the Federated Stores, a voluntary chain of dry goods and junior department stores which receives a complete chain store service in merchandise, store engineering, promotion and stock control from Butler Brothers, the largest national distributors of dry goods and general merchandise in America. Investment in stock and fixtures runs from $7,500 to $25,000 depending upon the size of store, based on location. Only one store in a community may secure the Federated Stores Franchise which can enable persons without previous retail experience to produce substantial profit while meeting present-day competition. Rigid investigation through your banker or other financial adviser is welcomed. For further particulars and information on desirable location, write or arrange an interview now in time to capitalize on profitable holiday business—Mr. L. P. Coe, Federated Supervisor, Butler Brothers, Baltimore, Md.

BECKMAN IS HOPE OF DESPERATE CRACKERS

Alabama Holds S. E. C. Spotlight Against Trojans Saturday

All in the GAME
by Jack Troy

Professor W. A. Alexander will lecture to the football pupils Monday night at O'Keefe Junior High school.

Professor Alexander's subject will be "Terminology of Football." He will trace football back to the beginning and explain the terms which currently are in use.

Anyone who never has heard the professor lecture will find it well worth the time to attend the opening session of the school.

The professor is about as well informed on the game of football as anyone living. And you may rest assured that his lecture will be highly entertaining as well as educational.

COACH ALEXANDER.

His review of football terms will be liberally sprinkled with witticisms.

The school is fundamentally for folks who desire to learn something about the fundamentals of football. It is not an advanced school. Those who do not know a wingback from a sack of salt, so to speak, will be able to learn all about it in the school, which will deal with all phases of the game.

It is the first time in history that a school of this type has been attempted anywhere. It carefully will be explained to wives and sweethearts and children whose football education has been neglected that "those bad mans aren't chasing that young fellow with the football because he is guilty of thievery."

Professor Alexander's lecture will begin Monday night at 8 o'clock at the O'Keefe auditorium. The school is adjacent to the Rose Bowl football field. Any point of terminology which Coach Alex fails to cover will be discussed by Pup Phillips and Everett Strupper.

The price of admission, if it can be called such, is very reasonable. Patrons are asked to purchase tickets for the annual Tech and Georgia freshmen football game on Thanksgiving Day, all proceeds of which benefit the crippled children of the Scottish Rite hospital.

In addition to Professor Alexander's lecture Monday night, there will be a football picture—"Football Progress," by Grantland Rice"—which is being loaned the school through the courtesy of Wel[illegible] Alexander.

This doubl[illegible]e is heartily recommended.

H[illegible]RMEN ENCOURAGED.

Since a[illegible]ese columns that Governor Rivers was coming t[illegible]e people in the game and fish program, hunters [illegible]en and landowners over the state have expressed the [illegible]t a new day is about to dawn in the history of Georg[illegible]d life.

Governor Rivers is bent on completing the "people's program" in his next administration as chief executive. And one of the programs he definitely will put through concerns a revision in the management of state game and fish affairs.

The Governor is going to give the fisherman and hunter and landowner a voice in the affairs of a department which is dear to their hearts. Legislative action will be taken toward this end.

If such a set-up is arranged as to make the administration of game and fish affairs immune from the firing squad of changing administrations, he will become, the fishermen and hunters say, the most popular chief executive the state of Georgia has ever had.

One letter that has come to his desk deals with the set-up in Michigan, which 12 years ago was changed to a commission form with the hunters and fishermen having the principal voice.

Statistics show, the letter reveals, that the program in Michigan amounted to around $200,000 before the commission form of management was installed.

Now, the income amounts to $1,250,000 per year from the license money. They have increased the sport to the extent that they even have license salesmen in other states.

The Nimrods and Izaak Waltons can go to Michigan and enjoy hunting and fishing that surrounding states, including their own, do not afford.

There is no state in the union that has the natural resources that Georgia does. An intensive program would, in time, equal or surpass what Michigan has done.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL RETURNS.

With Alabama's behemoth Crimson Tide rolling west in specially constructed cars—the Tide carries a lot of weight on the California invasion—and other Southeastern conference teams girding for opening games, the familiar scene of college football returns on Saturday.

'Bama plays Southern California; Georgia takes on The Citadel at Athens; Ole Miss and L. S. U. tangle at Baton Rouge; Tulane and Clemson clash in New Orleans; Tennessee and Sewanee meet at Knoxville.

Georgia Tech does not open until October 1 this year. But the opening foe is much stronger than usual. The Jackets meet the Bears of Mercer University.

And it seems that every Saturday thereafter Tech will be running up against a club that, on pre-season data, looms as a championship contender. It's a whale of a schedule.

WILLIE TURNESA WINS AMATEUR

OAKMONT, Pa., Sept. 17.—(AP) Willie Turnesa, of New York, won the national amateur golf championship today by defeating Pat Abbott, of Hollywood, 8 and 7, in the final round.

All the hard luck that has pursued his professional golfing brothers in tournaments for years seemed to repay the 23-year-old, poker-faced youth who ascended the throne from which Omaha's John Goodman was toppled during a week of startling upsets over Oakmont's acres. He is the youngest player to win the tourney.

Willie pulled veritable miracle after miracle in the traps to win, playing the necessary 29 holes one over par. Over the distance he used up only 45 putts.

Willie was in 11 traps on the 18-hole morning round but made such astonishing recoveries that he went to lunch five up with a two over par medal of 74. In the afternoon, it was almost as futile for the luckless Irish actor from Hollywood, who threw away several fine chances by muffing gimme putts.

Three times in the afternoon, Turnesa's shots hit a spectator, two of them skidding off into traps, but he had the game and the horseshoes both, registering a margin of victory that came close to equalling the modern record of 10 and 9, set by Bobby Jones over T. Philip Perkins at Braeburn in 1928.

L. S. U. and Ole Miss To Battle Saturday

By KENNETH GREGORY.
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Football's big show of 1938 opens its fall run a week Saturday with Southeastern conference teams exhibiting their prowess on widely scattered gridirons.

The inaugural program is an elaborate one. Of the 13 teams in the deep south league, only Georgia Tech's Yellow Jackets will be idle. The local eleven makes its bow two weeks hence.

Topping the array of opening skirmishes will be Alabama's invasion of the Pacific coast for an all-important fray with the Trojans of Southern California.

While that intersectional combat will take a good bit of the spotlight, especially by future opponents of the Crimson Tide, the "home" boys will watch with interest the intra-league tussle between Louisiana State and the University of Mississippi.

Alabama's engagement with Southern California goes on display at Los Angeles, just a few miles from Pasadena, where the Crimson Tide closed its last campaign in the Rose Bowl against California, losing for the first time in five appearances.

L. S. U. FACES TEST.

Louisiana State, rated "tops" in the conference along with Alabama, faces a stiff assignment in the Mississippi Rebels. The game will be played at night in Baton Rouge. The Rebels have been on the short end of 0-13 scores the last two years.

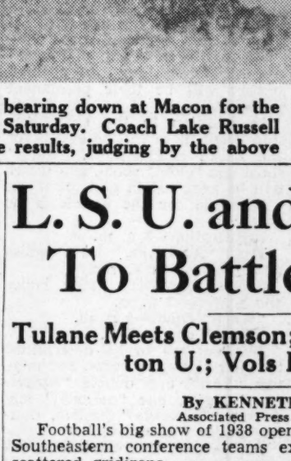

While these two affairs share most interest, Vanderbilt's Commodores journey to St. Louis for an intersectional joust with Washington University and the University of Tennessee plays host to Sewanee's Tigers in another conference game.

The Plainsmen, of Auburn, will start the campaign proceedings ahead of other conference members, meeting Birmingham-Southern in a traditional contest at Montgomery, Ala., on Friday night. Auburn is ranked third in preseason charts.

Tulane's Green Wave apparently was headed for a busy afternoon in a game that sends the highly-ranked Clemson Tigers, of the Southern conference, against Red Dawson's crew at New Orleans. Tulane and Clemson are both considered prime "dark

Jack Bromwich, No. 1 man on the Australian Davis cup team, will play Bitsy Grant here Tuesday night at the Northside Tennis Club in an exhibition match. He is one of the most colorful players in the game.

Sir Malcolm Campbell Sets Speedboat Mark

LUCERNE, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Sir Malcolm Campbell, of England, former holder of the world land speed record, broke his own world record for speed on water today by driving his motorboat, Bluebird, more than 130 miles an hour over a mile course on Lake Halwil.

MERCER OPENS SEASON FRIDAY

Bears Play Wofford; Goal Line Offense Gets Most Attention.

MACON, Ga., Sept. 17.—Mercer University's gridmen encouraged Coach Lake Russell and assistants, Gordon Reddick and Joe Dougherty, this afternoon with a lengthy supervised offensive scrimmage.

Several members of the first team were allowed to take it easy today while their reserves scrimmaged on offense.

The Bruins launch their hard 1938 campaign in Centennial stadium against Wofford College, of South Carolina, Friday.

Russell and his assistants plan to send the Bruins through more offensive skirmishes between now and time for the battle with Wofford.

Coach Russell said that he and his assistants would do everything possible to polish Mercer's goal line offense.

Last year the Bruins carried the ball within the 10-yard line many times but were able to score only a few times.

Yesterday's scrimmage was held near the goal line and the second team backs failed only twice to cross the goal line from the 10-yard line during the session which lasted between 30 minutes and an hour.

Warren Bulldogs Open Sandlot Grid Practice

Warren's Bulldogs, southern sandlot football champions last year, will begin practice at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon at Cherokee field.

Any youngster not already lined up with some sandlot team and who can make the 135-pound limit, is requested to be present at the opening practice.

The Bulldogs play every Saturday morning.

Bill Beckman Faces Chickasaws Today

Crackers Must Shake Hitting Slump or Fall Out of Shaughnessy Play-off.

By JACK TROY.

The Crackers today are at the "do or die" stage of their season.

If Memphis wins, the boys can start looking around for semi-pro teams to play on a barnstorming trip. If they win, the series will be carried to the full five games and a decision will be arrived at on Monday night.

The decision as to what the Crackers will do does not rest so much on Bill Beckman's pitching but rather on the Atlanta club's hitting.

The Crackers were much like the fellow who started a fight and then left his comrade there to take it on Friday night. Tom Sunkel pitched fine ball but the Crackers got him no runs.

Beckman, who turned back the Chicks in the second game at Memphis, will mount the mound for another attempt this afternoon, starting at 3:30 o'clock. His opposition likely will be Paul Spencer.

The defending champions aren't going to be knocked out of the Shaughnessy play-off without a lively struggle, however. Carl Doyle seems to be their particular jinx, although they did no good against Spencer when he appeared in a relief role in the second game.

Speaking of hitting, the Crackers have collected only 23 hits in three ball games. In only one game have they got hits when needed. But that probably is more to Doyle's credit than the Crackers' discredit.

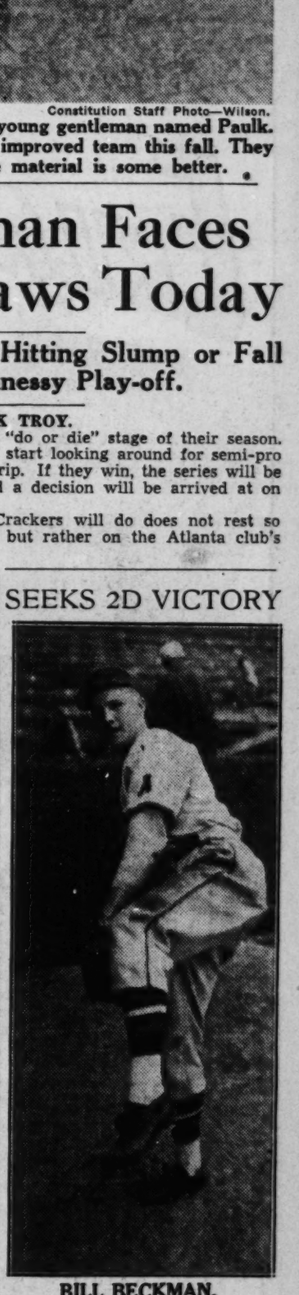

Here is a boy who had a sore arm most of the regular season and then came around just in time to do his team consummate good in post-season play.

Manager Paul Richards still thinks the Crackers have a good chance to win. It is a fact, of course, that there have been a lot of hard hit balls on the Cracker side and that they have been going right at somebody. Richards is looking for the luck to change.

The Chicks have the edge, though. They have more pitchers ready than do the Crackers. And if the series goes to five games, they can pitch Doyle again. The Crackers would come back with Sunkel.

At any rate, Beckman, a 21-game winner, will go after his 22nd victory this afternoon.

SEEKS 2D VICTORY

BILL BECKMAN.

FINAL GAME.

East Thomaston and Dundee will play their seventh and final game Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at Blake field in Griffin to determine the champions in the Middle Georgia Textile league.

The school is fundamentally for folks who desire to learn something about the fundamentals of football. It is not an advanced school. Those who do not know a wingback from a sack of salt, so to speak, will be able to learn all about it in the school, which will deal with all phases of the game.

It is the first time in history that a school of this type has been attempted anywhere. It carefully will be explained to wives and sweethearts and children whose football education has been neglected that "those bad mans aren't chasing that young fellow with the football because he is guilty of thievery."

Professor Alexander's lecture will begin Monday night at 8 o'clock at the O'Keefe auditorium. The school is adjacent to the Rose Bowl football field. Any point of terminology which Coach Alex fails to cover will be discussed by Pup Phillips and Everett Strupper.

The price of admission, if it can be called such, is very reasonable. Patrons are asked to purchase tickets for the annual Tech and Georgia freshmen football game on Thanksgiving Day, all proceeds of which benefit the crippled children of the Scottish Rite hospital.

In addition to Professor Alexander's lecture Monday night, there will be a football picture—"Football Progress," by Grantland Rice"—which is being loaned the school through the courtesy of Welles Alexander.

This double feature is heartily recommended.

HUNTERS, FISHERMEN ENCOURAGED.

Since announcement in these columns that Governor Rivers was coming to the aid of the people in the game and fish program, hunters and fishermen and landowners over the state have expressed the belief that a new day is about to dawn in the history of Georgia wild life.

Governor Rivers is bent on completing the "people's program" in his next administration as chief executive. And one of the programs he definitely will put through concerns a revision in the management of state game and fish affairs.

The Governor is going to give the fisherman and hunter and landowner a voice in the affairs of a department which is dear to their hearts. Legislative action will be taken toward this end.

If such a set-up is arranged as to make the administration of game and fish affairs immune from the firing squad of changing administrations, he will become, the fishermen and hunters say, the most popular chief executive the state of Georgia has ever had.

One letter that has come to his desk deals with the set-up in Michigan, which 12 years ago was changed to a commission form with the hunters and fishermen having the principal voice.

Statistics show, the letter reveals, that the program in Michigan amounted to around $200,000 before the commission form of management was installed.

Now, the income amounts to $1,250,000 per year from the license money. They have increased the sport to the extent that they even have license salesmen in other states.

The Nimrods and Izaak Waltons can go to Michigan and enjoy hunting and fishing that surrounding states, including their own, do not afford.

There is no state in the union that has the natural resources that Georgia does. An intensive program would, in time, equal or surpass what Michigan has done.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL RETURNS.

With Alabama's behemoth Crimson Tide rolling west in specially constructed cars—the Tide carries a lot of weight on the California invasion—and other Southeastern conference teams girding for opening games, the familiar scene of college football returns on Saturday.

'Bama plays Southern California; Georgia takes on The Citadel at Athens; Ole Miss and L. S. U. tangle at Baton Rouge; Tulane and Clemson clash in New Orleans; Tennessee and Sewanee meet at Knoxville.

Georgia Tech does not open until October 1 this year. But the opening foe is much stronger than usual. The Jackets meet the Bears of Mercer University.

And it seems that every Saturday thereafter Tech will be running up against a club that, on pre-season data, looms as a championship contender. It's a whale of a schedule.

WILLIE TURNESA WINS AMATEUR

OAKMONT, Pa., Sept. 17.—(AP) Willie Turnesa, of New York, won the national amateur golf championship today by defeating Pat Abbott, of Hollywood, 8 and 7, in the final round.

All the hard luck that has pursued his professional golfing brothers in tournaments for years seemed to repay the 23-year-old, poker-faced youth who ascended the throne from which Omaha's John Goodman was toppled during a week of startling upsets over Oakmont's acres. He is the youngest player to win the tourney.

Willie pulled veritable miracle after miracle in the traps to win, playing the necessary 29 holes one over par. Over the distance he used up only 45 putts.

Willie was in 11 traps on the 18-hole morning round but made such astonishing recoveries that he went to lunch five up with a two over par medal of 74. In the afternoon, it was almost as futile for the luckless Irish actor from Hollywood, who threw away several fine chances by muffing gimme putts.

Three times in the afternoon, Turnesa's shots hit a spectator, two of them skidding off into traps, but he had the game and the horseshoes both, registering a margin of victory that came close to equalling the modern record of 10 and 9, set by Bobby Jones over T. Philip Perkins at Braeburn in 1928.

The Cards:

L. S. U. and Ole Miss To Battle Saturday

By KENNETH GREGORY.
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Football's big show of 1938 opens its fall run a week Saturday with Southeastern conference teams exhibiting their prowess on widely scattered gridirons.

The inaugural program is an elaborate one. Of the 13 teams in the deep south league, only Georgia Tech's Yellow Jackets will be idle. The local eleven makes its bow two weeks hence.

Topping the array of opening skirmishes will be Alabama's invasion of the Pacific coast for an all-important fray with the Trojans of Southern California.

While that intersectional combat will take a good bit of the spotlight, especially by future opponents of the Crimson Tide, the "home" boys will watch with interest the intra-league tussle between Louisiana State and the University of Mississippi.

Alabama's engagement with Southern California goes on display at Los Angeles, just a few miles from Pasadena, where the Crimson Tide closed its last campaign in the Rose Bowl against California, losing for the first time in five appearances.

L. S. U. FACES TEST.

Louisiana State, rated "tops" in the conference along with Alabama, faces a stiff assignment in the Mississippi Rebels. The game will be played at night in Baton Rouge. The Rebels have been on the short end of 0-13 scores the last two years.

While these two affairs share most interest, Vanderbilt's Commodores journey to St. Louis for an intersectional joust with Washington University and the University of Tennessee plays host to Sewanee's Tigers in another conference game.

The Plainsmen, of Auburn, will start the campaign proceedings ahead of other conference members, meeting Birmingham-Southern in a traditional contest at Montgomery, Ala., on Friday night. Auburn is ranked third in pre-season charts.

Tulane's Green Wave apparently was headed for a busy afternoon in a game that sends the highly-ranked Clemson Tigers, of the Southern conference, against Red Dawson's crew at New Orleans. Tulane and Clemson are both considered prime "dark

Bears Play Wofford; Goal Line Offense Gets Most Attention.

MACON, Ga., Sept. 17.—Mercer University's gridmen encouraged Coach Lake Russell and assistants, Gordon Reddick and Joe Dougherty, this afternoon with a lengthy supervised offensive scrimmage.

Coach Russell started the session with group work and concluded it with the supervised offensive scrimmage.

Several members of the first team were allowed to take it easy today while their reserves scrimmaged on offense.

The Bruins launch their hard 1938 campaign in Centennial stadium against Wofford College, of South Carolina, Friday.

Russell and his assistants plan to send the Bruins through more offensive skirmishes between now and time for the battle with Wofford.

Coach Russell said that he and his assistants would do everything possible to polish Mercer's goal line offense.

Last year the Bruins carried the ball within the 10-yard line many times but were able to score only a few times.

Yesterday's scrimmage was held near the goal line and the second team backs failed only twice to cross the goal line from the 10-yard line during the session which lasted between 30 minutes and an hour.

Warren Bulldogs Open Sandlot Grid Practice

Warren's Bulldogs, southern sandlot football champions last year, will begin practice at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon at Cherokee field.

Any youngster not already lined up with some sandlot team and who can make the 135-pound limit, is requested to be present at the opening practice.

The Bulldogs play every Saturday morning.

Bill Beckman Faces Chickasaws Today

Crackers Must Shake Hitting Slump or Fall Out of Shaughnessy Play-off.

By JACK TROY.

The Crackers today are at the "do or die" stage of their season.

If Memphis wins, the boys can start looking around for semi-pro teams to play on a barnstorming trip. If they win, the series will be carried to the full five games and a decision will be arrived at on Monday night.

The decision as to what the Crackers will do does not rest so much on Bill Beckman's pitching but rather on the Atlanta club's hitting.

The Crackers were much like the fellow who started a fight and then left his comrade there to take it on Friday night. Tom Sunkel pitched fine ball but the Crackers got him no runs.

Beckman, who turned back the Chicks in the second game at Memphis, will mount the mound for another attempt this afternoon, starting at 3:30 o'clock. His opposition likely will be Paul Spencer.

The defending champions aren't going to be knocked out of the Shaughnessy play-off without a lively struggle, however. Carl Doyle seems to be their particular jinx, although they did no good against Spencer when he appeared in a relief role in the second game.

Speaking of hitting, the Crackers have collected only 23 hits in three ball games. In only one game have they got hits when needed. But that probably is more to Doyle's credit than the Crackers' discredit.

Here is a boy who had a sore arm most of the regular season and then came around just in time to do his team consummate good in post-season play.

Manager Paul Richards still thinks the Crackers have a good chance to win. It is a fact, of course, that there have been a lot of hard hit balls on the Cracker side and that they have been going right at somebody. Richards is looking for the luck to change.

The Chicks have the edge, though. They have more pitchers ready than do the Crackers. And if the series goes to five games, they can pitch Doyle again. The Crackers would come back with Sunkel.

At any rate, Beckman, a 21-game winner, will go after his 22nd victory this afternoon.

SEEKS 2D VICTORY

BILL BECKMAN.

FINAL GAME.

East Thomaston and Dundee will play their seventh and final game Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at Blake field in Griffin to determine the champions in the Middle Georgia Textile league.

Boys' High Battles Monroe Here Friday Night in Prep Feature

N. FULTON PLAYS MARIST; G. M. A. MEETS RUSSELL

Typists Encounter Poets in Macon; Smithies Go to Gotham.

By ROY WHITE.

Boys' High and Monroe Aggies, G. I. A. A. rivals, will headline the week's prep football program. The Purple-Aggie game will be played Friday night at the ball park, should the Southern league play-off be over, otherwise, another field will have to be used.

Two other games will be played Friday night. Marist meets North Fulton at Buckhead, and Russell battles G. A. A., under the arcs at East Point.

The North Fulton-Marist game is tentatively scheduled for night, and all efforts are being made to have an afternoon game.

AWAY FROM HOME.

Two other Atlanta prep teams will be in action, but will be away from home. Commercial will play Lanier High at Macon, under the light's on Mercer's field, while Tech High will be en route to New York for a Monday night game at Pompton Lakes, N. J.

Chief interest will be centered about that Boys' High-Monroe game, which should rank with the best of the season. It is always a highlight on both schedules.

Red Barron's team beat the Purples, 16 to 0, last year for the first time in several years, but the Aggies lost practically the entire team by graduation. In fact, only a couple of reserves from last year have returned for another year.

Boys' High also lost heavily from graduation and returned only five veterans, but the Purples showed plenty in their opening game with Commercial Friday night at Grant Field. Boys' High won, 14 to 0, and Coaches Doyal and Keith used three full teams in turning back the Red Raiders.

Red Barron has taken on Whack Hyder and Tobe Edwards, two former Georgia Tech stars, as assistant coaches, and the Aggies have shown much progress in the past three weeks.

FIRST GAMES.

Friday's game will be first for both Marist and North Fulton, but from reports of recent practices, both teams are much improved over last year.

North Fulton has really gone in for football in a big way and has scheduled nine games, eight of which are with members of the North Georgia Interscholastic conference.

Marist is reported to have a much larger team than last year, but Coach Louie Van Houten is plenty worried over his reserves. It will be strictly up to the first players to carry on for Marist, unless some reserves come through to help the situation. North Fulton also will be lacking in reserves.

G. M. A. and Russell High are two others in the unknown class at present. They both have larger squads than last year and the material looks better than in recent years, but just what the youngsters will do under fire remains to be seen in Friday's opening skirmish.

Marist is open for a game October 1, either here or out of town. Any good team with an open date October 1 can arrange a game with Coach Van Houten.

POOR LITTLE TARGETS! ATLANTA ARCHERY CLUB HOLDS FIRST ANNUAL TOURNEY TODAY

Clemson Smashes Presbyterian, 26-0

McFadden, Pearson Lead Running, Passing Attack; Thompson Kicks Well for P. C.

CLEMSON, S. C., Sept. 17.—(UP)—The Clemson College Tigers opened their football season today with an easy 26-0 victory over Presbyterian College.

The Tigers presented a running and passing game to score in all quarters but the second, with McFadden and Pearson leading the attack.

A 60-yard drive netted the first touchdown, climaxed by a 12-yard pass from McFadden to Bryant for the score. Pearson added the point.

Thompson's kicking for Presbyterin kept the Tigers at bay in the second period. The visitors put on a drive from their own 40 but the attack bogged down when Sharpe intercepted a pass on Clemson's 27.

Pennington blocked Thompson's punt on the 18 and Black fell on the ball over the goal line for Clemson's second score just after the third period opened. Pearson kicked the point. After an exchange of punts, Willis hit the line for 12 and McFadden circled right end for 27 yards and another Tiger touchdown. Pearson missed the try for extra point.

The Tigers drove from the 41 to Presbyterian's 21 as the period ended, but a moment later Magee passed to Pasley on the 4-yard mark and Magee drove over the score. Rion missed the extra point.

Clemson's third team took over and held the visitors scoreless the remainder of the game.

Score by periods:

Presbyterian	0	0	0	0—	0
Clemson	7	0	13	6—	26

Scoring: Touchdowns—Bryant, McFadden, Black, Magee. Point after touchdowns, Pearson 2.

BREMEN HIGH WINS.

BREMEN, Ga., Sept. 17.—Bremen High defeated Canton High, 20-to-0, Friday night at Canton. Long and Bradley were uostanding for the winners.

ARCHERY MEET SLATED TODAY

Prizes Will Be Awarded Winners; Visiting Shooters Welcome.

The Atlanta Archery Club will hold its first annual championship tournament on the club range at Northside drive and Bishop street (on water works property) today, beginning at 9:30 a. m.

The championship event will consist of one "York" and double "American" rounds and the trophy for this will be the "Parks-Chambers" trophy which is to remain in the possession of the winner until the next annual tournament. Medals for three high scorers will be their permanent property.

In addition to the championship event there will be events for the ladies and juniors, "wand" shoot and "clout" shoot, and prizes will be awarded in each of these.

Schedule for the events is as follows:

Registration—9 a. m.

First "American," men, ladies and juniors—10 a. m.

Second "American," men, ladies and juniors—2 p. m.

"Wand" shoot—4 p. m.

"Clout" shoot—5 p. m.

Winners are to be determined by their aggregate score. For men, one "York" and double "American;" ladies, one "national" and double "Columbia;" juniors, double junior "American."

All persons interested in archery are invited to come out whether a member of the club or not and there will be prizes for the visiting shooters.

LIVE ON PULLMANS.

AUBURN, Ala., Sept. 17.—Pullmans will be the "home" of the Auburn Tigers during most of the 1938 football season. In playing 10 games, all away from Auburn.

Tech High Crushes Wilson Eleven, 43-0

Starting Backfield of Cogburn, Bonner, Parks and Heino Scores Six Touchdowns.

By ROY WHITE.

Three sets of Tech High's fleet-footed backs ran wild to beat Woodrow Wilson High, of Portsmouth, Va., 43 to 0, Saturday night at Grant field. It was the second 43-to-0 victory for the Smithies within three days, Etowah, Tenn., having been beaten by the same score Thursday night.

Not only did the Smithie backfield run wild, but the line came through with a great exhibition in holding the visitors to four first downs, one of which came on a penalty. The other three were earned and came when Tech High's third-stringers were in the game.

The starting backfield of Ben Cogburn, Frank Bonner, Dick Parks and Frank Heino, scored three touchdowns in rapid succession in the first half and followed with three more in the last half.

A reserve backfield of Ed Corbett, Jimmy Parks, Billy Paschal and Bud Bracewell carried on in the last half, with the aid of several replacements.

Frank Bonner's 35-yard run gave Tech High its first score midway the first quarter. West, at left tackle, intercepted a Wilson pass and ran 34 yards for the second touchdown, just before the period ended.

Dick Parks scored in the second period from the 1-yard line after he had intercepted a pass and ran 34 yards to the 1-yard stripe. Bonner's 24-yard run and Heino's short line buck gave Tech High a touchdown in the third quarter.

Billy Paschal's 23-yard run and Ed Corbett's 10-yard line plunge scored the first touchdown in the last period. A few plays later Francis Kelly on an end-around went 5 yards for another score, after Bowman had intercepted a pass and returned 15 yards to Wilson's 25-yard stripe. A long 46-yard pass, Bracewell to Cogburn, gave Tech its final score a few plays before the game ended.

Tech High again showed the need of a dependable placement kicker as in the game Thursday night. Ed Corbett kicked one Thursday night and Saturday night. Cogburn passed to Lyons for the only extra point of seven tries. Two extra points after 14 touchdowns is the record of Tech High in two games.

NEGRO COLLEGES OPEN 1938 SEASON SEPTEMBER 30

Morris Brown, Clark, Morehouse Represent Atlanta in S. I. A. A.

The Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association, with membership of 13 of the leading colored colleges in the southeastern states, officially opens its 1938 campaign September 30, when Morris Brown College, a local institution, journeys to Lane College at Jackson, Tenn., for the initial game of the season.

Morris Brown, Clark University and Morehouse College, the three major colored schools of Atlanta, hold membership in the association, which gives Atlanta a key position in the conference.

All three of the local schools are practicing daily on their various athletic fields and indications are that each will have strong representation this fall. There is strong rivalry existing between the three schools here.

Clark University will have its largest squad since 1931. Coaches Robinson and McPherson, mentors for the Panthers, are teaching 55 boys the finer points of the game and are looking forward to a great year.

Morris Brown plays the first major game of the year here on October 8, when they go up against Tuskegee Institute. Plans are under way to play this game Friday night to enable many white fans to witness the outstanding classic, as a twilight to the Georgia Tech and Notre Dame game on Saturday.

Greenberg Hits 52d and 53d Homers To Pass Ruth's 1927 Pace

HANK 3 GAMES AHEAD OF BABE IN TOP SEASON

Tigers Beat Yanks, 7-3; Chisox Rookie Gets 3 Homers.

By ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Hank Greenberg hit his second homer of the game and his fifty-third of the season in the fifth inning of yesterday's tilt with the New York Yankees to go three games in front of the record pace Babe Ruth set in 1927. The blow came with two mates on base off Monte Pearson. It was the Tigers' 139th game of the season. Ruth hit his 53rd in the Yanks' 142nd game of 1927. The Tigers won the game, 7-3, and the Yanks still need two wins to clinch the pennant.

GREENBERG.

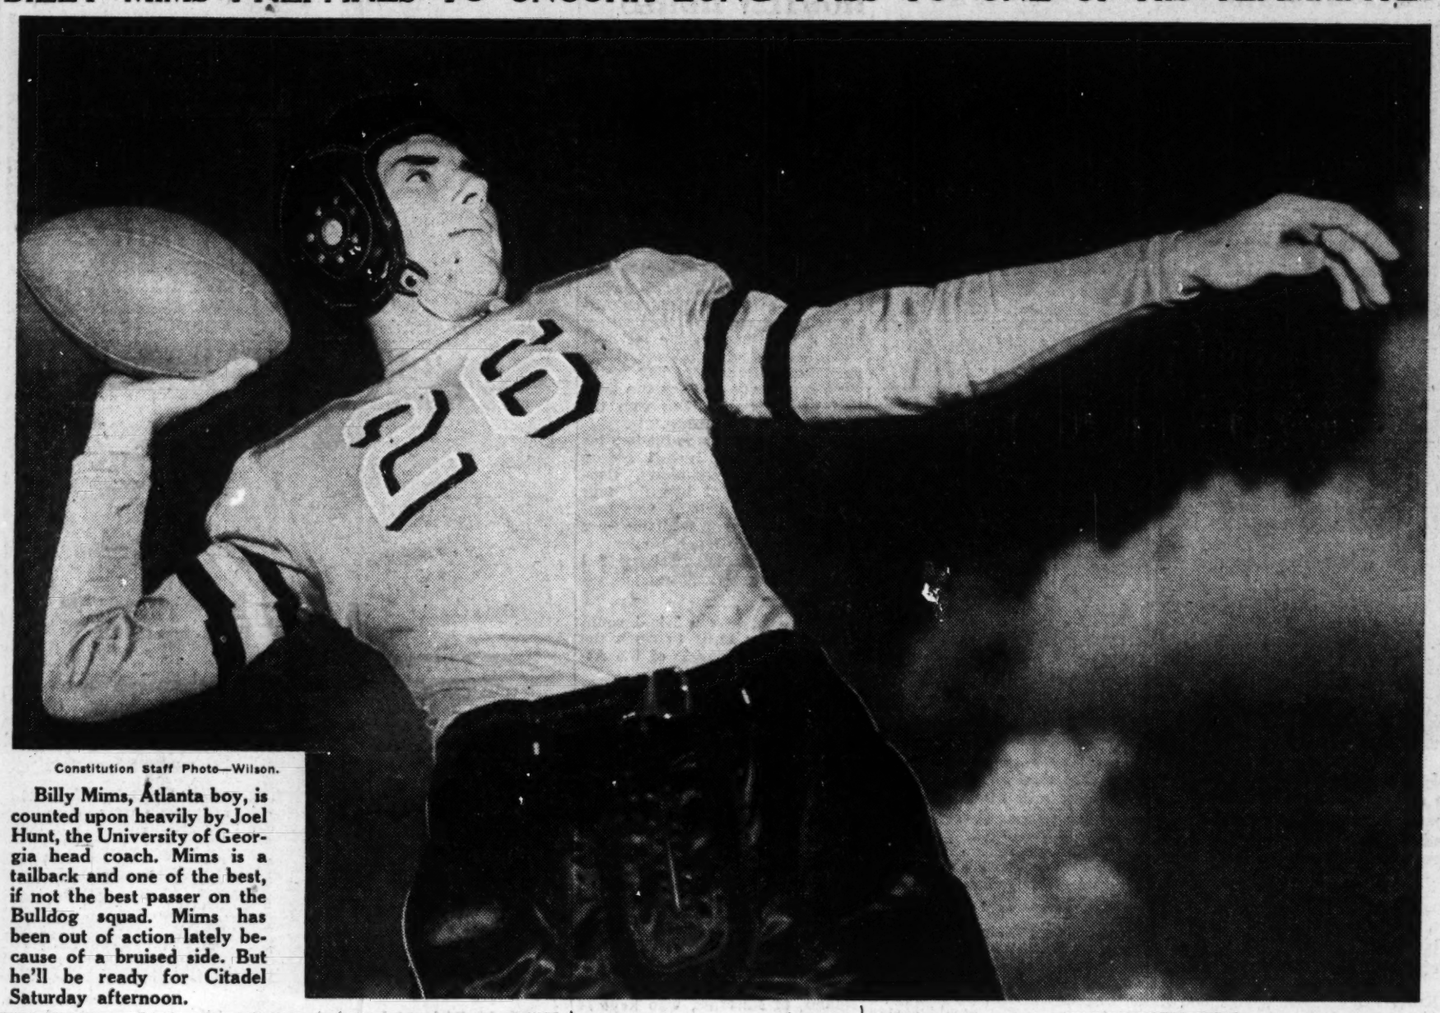

It was the ninth time this season Greenberg had hit two homers in one game, thus tying him for the major league record which Jimmy Foxx, of Boston Red Sox, set earlier this year. Previously, the record of eight was held by Ruth (1927) and Hack Wilson, of the Chicago Cubs (1930).

Jeff Heath hit his 15th home run and three singles as Cleveland defeated Boston in the last game of their series, 5-4. Jimmy Foxx hit his 45th homer in the first inning.

Three consecutive homers in the second game by Mervyn Conners, rookie Chicago first baseman, featured the White Sox' double-header sweep over the Philadelphia Athletics by scores of 8 to 4 and 7 to 4. Conners, recalled from Shreveport, fell one short of Lou Gehrig's mark of four in a row when his fourth try produced a double.

The Washington Senators trounced the St. Louis Browns, 11 to 1, in the second game of a double-header, called at the end of the sixth inning because of darkness. The Senators won the first game, 10 to 9.

BILLY MIMS PREPARES TO UNCORK LONG PASS TO ONE OF HIS TEAMMATES

Billy Mims, Atlanta boy, is counted upon heavily by Joel Hunt, the University of Georgia head coach. Mims is a tailback and one of the best, if not the best passer on the Bulldog squad. Mims has been out of action lately because of a bruised side. But he'll be ready for Citadel Saturday afternoon.

PIRATES RALLY IN NINTH FRAME TO SHADE BEES

Cubs Beat Giants Twice; Push 2 1-2 Games Behind Leaders.

By ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Two runs in the ninth inning yesterday gave the league-leading Pittsburgh Pirates a 2-1 victory and the odd game in a three-game series with the Boston Bees. Gus Suhr's double started the Pittsburgh rally when DiMaggio and Cooney collided and missed the catch.

The Cubs climbed to within 2½ games of the pace-setting Pirates by sweeping a double-header with Bill Terry's fading Giants before a crowd of 22,257.

Bill Lee was tagged for 13 hits in the opener, but air-tight support, including three double plays, gave him a 4-to-0 decision, his third straight shutout and his eighth of the year. Stan Hack hit a two-run homer and drove in the deciding run with a single to take the nightcap, 4 to 2, before darkness and rain halted play at the end of the seventh.

The opener win was Lee's 19th of the season and marked the 15th time the Giants have been whitewashed. In the nightcap, Clay Bryant, turning in his 17th win, pitched an eight-hitter and blanked the Giants after the second inning.

The Dodgers and Cards and Reds and Phillies were rained out.

Tennis Exhibition Put Off Till Tuesday

Bromwich Still Playing National Singles at Forest Hills; Grant Will Meet Australian.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

Postponement until Tuesday night of the Australian Davis cup squad appearance here was announced last night by Molly Williamson, president of the Northside Tennis Club, site of the exhibition.

The matches were originally scheduled for Monday night but since Jack Bromwich, the headlined attraction, is still in the national singles tournament at Forest Hills, the festivities have been moved back a night.

Rain yesterday caused postponement of the national semi-finals and finals are now scheduled for Monday. Bromwich, ambidextrous No. 1 man on the team, will play Gene Mako today in the semi-finals and is favored to meet Budge in the finals.

Therefore the Atlanta Lawn Tennis Association, sponsors of the Atlanta exhibition, were forced to postpone the matches.

Facing the sensational Bromwich will be iBtsy Grant, giant-killer of the courts, in a best of three-set featured match.

In addition, two other members of the Aussie squad will be present. Harry Hopman, non-playing captain, but one of the best simonpures in the game, will meet Leonard Schwartz, No. 3 man, in the opening engagement at 8 o'clock.

Grant and Russell Bobbitt will tackle Bromwich and Schwartz in a doubles finale.

The match has created much local interest but also has an international angle in that it is the first step in getting the North American inter-zone Davis Cup finals here next year.

If the crowd and interest warrants it, the Australians are very much in favor of playing in the south and officials of the A. L. T. A. are sure the matches can be arranged.

The Bromwich-Grant battle will afford fans a chance to see two of the most colorful players in the game. According to all tennis rules, neither hits a shot as it should be hit.

But both have done pretty well for themselves. Bromwich hits his shots with everything but his head, using both hands to equal advantage to such an extend he is ranked the No. 2 amateur in the world.

His two-fisted backhand is the talk of the tennis world.

However, Bitsy has created quite a lot of conversation himself. The diminutive Atlanta "giant-killer" has defeated nearly every ranking player in the world.

Ranked fourth in the United States, Bitsy is a popular favorite with fans who love his bounding ability to cover the court and return the best shots of his opponents.

He is a fighting demon who never gives up. Just as they talk about Bromwich's unorthodox style, the so-called experts say Grant's pat-ball game is all wrong.

Which, however, never worried Bitsy as long as he is knocking off all the "stylish" players.

Bobbitt is one of the best doubles players in the country. He and Frank Guernsey formed the most sensational team in the national doubles this year and fans are expecting them to play on the Davis cup team within the next few seasons.

Hopman and Schwartz are excellent players, both advancing far in the national singles. Hopman eliminated such stars as Elwood Cooke and Don McNeill.

In general, it is one of the strongest net exhibitions ever to appear in Atlanta and tickets are going at a rapid rate.

Tickets may be reserved by calling Jackson 4140.

Lauter Signs 2-Year Pact With Warren

Former Progressive Coach To Handle Basketball and Baseball.

Shep Lauter, for three years coach for the Jewish Progressive Club basketball team, has signed a two-year contract to coach basketball and baseball for Warren, it was announced yesterday.

Shep Lauter.

During his years with the J. P. C. Lauter turned out teams that won a southern championship, twice finished as runners-up and won a couple of city titles.

In announcing the change, Lauter said he was leaving the club "because of a better opportunity." He said the best of feeling exists between him and the members.

At Warren, Lauter's basketball material will include players like Virlyn Moore, Bo Johnston, Joel Tierce, Ed Copeland, Bradford, Bellamy, Warlick and others. Burt Hill, star of the Taylors, S. C., team, also may join Warren.

Lauter, who played five years of professional baseball, will have charge of the diamond program in the spring.

Warren already is making plans to play in the national invitational basketball meet in New York and the national amateur tournament in Denver.

Georgia and Citadel Will Play Saturday

Tech Forward Wall Looks Good on Defense; Wilcox, Brooks Star.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

Tech's rugged, hard-charging forewall put on a good exhibition of defensive strength yesterday afternoon in an hour-long scrimmage against a crimson-clad, battling squad of Red Devils.

Led by its two diminutive demons at guards, Alternate Captain Allen Wilcox and Shorty Brooks, two blue-attired varsity teams alternated at smearing Red plays and limited the scrubs to two first downs—both of which came on passes.

The varsity was restricted on offensive for the first half of the drill by Coach Alex, who instructed the boys to use only punting and passing plays. However, the go-ahead signal was flashed midway the scrimmage and the Blues ran up two touchdowns and two points-after.

Jumpin' Joe Bartlett personally accounted for 13 of the 14 points, speeding around end for the first score and crashing over the line for the last touchdown. He kicked the first point-after and Lewis Crockett sent the ball squarely through the posts for the last score.

DROP-KICKER.

Buck Shaw also drop-kicked a field goal but it was on his second try. "Cowboy" is quite a drop-kicker and may come in handy this season. His first attempt was only a few feet to the right and Coach Alex called from his post on the sidelines to let him try again.

On the whole, a great exhibition of defensive play was demonstrated by the two varsity lines. Wilcox speared play after play and, together with Brooks, made a majority of the tackles after punts.

Jack Chivington tackled with his usual reckless abandon and Charlie Wood looked better than he has all season. The ends, George Smith and Bob Ison, performed creditably.

However, offensive play of both line and backfield has not yet reached a fair standard.

Numerous fumbles and pass interceptions made the scrimmage extremely interesting for the large crowd of spectators but also tended to make the varsity look ragged in spots.

The reckless, shifty running of Bobby Beers stood out but it was Howard Ector who continued to bring smiles to the faces of the coaches.

Ector's passing still lacks accuracy, but his blocking is good and his kicking improved. Although considered slow afott, Ector was one of the most effective ground-gainers through the Red line.

He carried the ball only twice, but each time gained something like six yards. Without doubt, Howard is the Jackets' most dependable back.

Beers' kicking is the best on the squad. He was outbooting the sensational Hawk Cavette in both practice and under fire. He also completed two passes, but had several intercepted.

Incidentally, the varsity looked weak aerially, completing only a few of the many passes tried. Pass defense needs improving, too.

Billy Gibson, Tom Allen, Glenn Cushing and Bulldog Cunningham were the absentees from the scrimmage.

Gibson and Allen are recuperating from Charley horses, Cunningham is still feeling the effects of a week-old head injury and Cushing was given permission to visit home by Coach Alex.

The play of the second-string line was encouraging and the Jackets will be able to find replacements, especially at tackles, guards, and at center.

Hunt Displeased With Bulldogs; Johnson, Hodgson Hurt.

ATHENS, Ga., Sept. 17.—An injury-racked Bulldog gridiron squad this afternoon took to the field in a hard scrimmage with the University of Georgia freshman team to wind up the second week of practice.

The varsity was pitted against the Bullpups on offense and defense.

Coach Joel Hunt said that he was far from satisfied with the showing made by the varsity and that his main problem was to develop blockers. He also expressed doubt as to whether his two first-string guards, Smiley Johnson and Winston Hodgson, would be in shape for the opening game with The Citadel next Saturday. Johnson is suffering from an ankle injury and Hodgson sustained a wrenched knee in last Saturday's scrimmage.

EXPECTED BACK.

The remainder of those on the large injury list are expected to be back in harness next week.

The starting lineup against the Bullpups was made up of Bob Salisbury at quarterback, Dooley Mathews, fullback; Vassa Cate, right half, and Harry Stevens, left half, in the backfield. The line consisted of Carrol Thomas and Marvin Gillespie on the ends, Bill Badgett and Charlie DeCharleroy at tackles, Walter Wilfong and B. L. Kersey, guards, and Captain Quinton Lumpkin at center. Kersey is the only sophomore in the starting lineup.

Jimmie Fordham, the first-string fullback, was absence. He is one of those on the injured list but will be back in the lineup in a few days.

LUMPKIN STARS.

Captain Lumpkin was a pillar of granite in the forward wall as usual and Vassa Cate stood out in the backfield along with little Dooley Mathews and Rupert Blount, a substitute tailback. Mathews made the most spectacular run of the day by stopping off tackle for 60 yards and a touchdown.

Knox Eldredge and Alex McCaskill, substitute ends, were both grabbing passes with consistency.

Coach Hunt stated that he would work on Citadel plays next week in preparation for the encounter with the Cadets.

ROANE BEARD.

The first team to take the field against the Red Devils consisted of Ison and Smith at ends, Rimmer and Wood at tackles, Wilcox and Brooks at guards, Chivington at center, and Page, Ector, Bartlett and Cavette in the backfield.

Team No. 2 consisted of Thrash and Bob Anderson at ends, Lackey and Aderholt at tackles, Anderson and Furlow at guards, Beard at center, and Shaw, Wheby, Beers and Murphy in the backfield. Hart, Crockett, Wesley and Howell got into action as substitutes.

Coach Alex said after the drill the squad was slowly moulding into shape, but indicated there was still much work to be done.

He said it would be quite a while before he could piece out an effective offense.

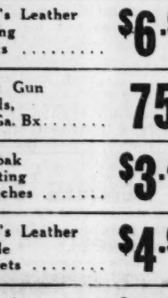

"I guess we'll be playing quite a few defensive games," he said.

Foxx Overtakes Averill for Bat Lead; Lombardi Tops National

RUFFING LEADS OTHER HURLERS IN JUNIOR LOOP

Young Bob Feller Continues As League's Strikeout King.

Jeff Heath, Cleveland's sensational rookie outfielder, is making a strong bid for American league batting honors. Coming up five points during the week while most of the other leaders tumbled, Heath is second to Jimmy Foxx of the Red Sox in hitting, 10 points behind.

Heath, figures released by the Howe News Bureau of Chicago, reveal, jumped from .332 to .337 to rise from eighth position into the runnerup spot. Foxx also climbed in average, going from .342 to .347 to move from third position into the lead. Earl Averill, of Cleveland, last week's leader with a mark of .346, and Joe DiMaggio, of the Yankees, are tied for third place with .336 and Joe Vosmik, of Boston, is fifth with .334.

Winning one game during the week, Red Ruffing, of the Yankees, lifted his leading pitcher record to 21 and 5. Young Bob Feller, of Cleveland, tops the circuit in strikeouts, with 199.

Includes Games Played Thursday.

Around husky Carey Cox, of Bainbridge, Ga., only veteran center on the squad, Alabama will build its 1938 forward wall. Carey's big mitts almost surround the ball—a big item in tossing that oval accurately to fast-moving backs. Cox and his Alabama mates are now en route to Los Angeles to meet Southern California.

MAIER, BERKELE TOURNEY IS SET

Atlanta's woman golfers will play the annual Maier and Berkele trophy tournament September 26-October 1, on the Bobby Jones municipal course.

When the big trophy was awarded some time ago, it was designated that the tournament should be played each year on one of Atlanta's municipal courses, so the Bobby Jones course was named for this year.

Qualifying rounds will be played on Monday, September 26, and the low 16 scorers will be grouped into the first flight.

The tournament is open to every woman golfer in the city and those who are not members of the Atlanta Woman's Golf Association and whose handicaps have not been determined, must bring five attested score cards to enter.

A number of special features have been added to the program, including approaching, putting, driving and a mixed foursome play. Miss Dorothy Sanford is the defending champion and will be one of the favorites.

RAIN CUTS CARD AT FOREST HILLS

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 17. (AP)—Two hours after Nancy Wynne, of Australia, had reached the final round of the women's national singles tennis championships by beating Dorothy May Bundy, of Santa Monica, Cal., 5-7, 6-4, 8-6, tournament officials postponed until tomorrow the three other semi-final matches in the combined men's and women's title tourney.

Twice Australia's John Bromwich and Gene Mako, of Los Angeles, scheduled to play the first men's semi-final, appeared on the court. Each time they did so the rain came down heavily and drove the majority of the 14,000 spectators to cover.

Play will begin at 11:30 a. m. (E. S. T.) tomorrow, with Bromwich playing Mako, defending champion Don Budge meeting Sidney Wood, of New York, and 1936 Champion Alice Marble meeting her doubles partner, Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan, for the right to play Miss Wynne in Monday's final.

ALMOND, COWAN MEET TUESDAY

In appreciation of the splendid turnout for his program last week at the Hemphill arena, Matchmaker Jason Thompson is presenting another trio of headline bouts Tuesday night in the big arena at Hemphill avenue and Fourteenth street, N. W.

Son Almond and Glenn Cowan, the police champ, have been signed for the 90-minute match.

Cowan is a rough-type wrestler while Almond depends on all-around skill plus unusual strength for his weight. Both boys have perfect records here so a great match is assured.

Young Londos, the fast, clean wrestler, will meet John Mauldin in the semi-windup, which is slated for one hour.

The show will start at 8:30 o'clock.

AMATEUR BALL

WALCO LEAGUE.

The dispute over the Walco league second half title will be settled when Mayson and the Medics meet this afternoon. These two teams are tied and the winner will meet Adair Park, first half winner, in the playoff next week.

The game is scheduled on the Central Cafe diamond near East Point at 3 o'clock.

PIEDMONT MILLS.

Starting time is 3:30 o'clock.

- DOWN THE ALLEYS -

With seven additional bowling leagues opening their schedules for the new season during the coming week, organized bowling will be operating on a full schedule every night in the week.

The Commercial, Motion Picture, Ladies Georgia, Passenger Club, Krogers Stores, Bell System and Junior Chamber of Commerce leagues will roll their first games of the season on successive nights during the coming week.

With the 20 leagues that have already started their competitive bowling, the additional groups will bring the total number of players rolling in competition to more than 2,000 men and women.

Other leagues that will roll during the afternoons will open their initial pin play within the next two weeks. The high school, Gulf Refining Company, Coca-Cola, Retail Credit and Insurance leagues will be rolling in the early periods.

Last week, the Roy Petree, of the City league five, rolled up a big 603 game to top all team game scores that have been rolled in competition thus far this season. This score eclipsed the 601 that was rolled the previous week by the Norcross team in the Gate City loop.

The Model Laundry team, of the Ladies' Commercial league, crashed the maple wood for a count of 564 to set up a high team game score for the early part of the new bowling year.

However, it is not likely that these scores will withstand the onslaught of heavy scoring that will be tabulated within the next few weeks as duckpinners get down to some serious bowling and start building up top flight averages.

Scores in league play have revealed that teams are more evenly balanced in their respective leagues than in previous seasons. Many tie games have had to be rolled off in an extra frame, while other games have been determined by a single pin.

The City league, boasting the top average bowlers of Atlanta, is the hotbed of exciting rivalry and competition with the handicap system discarded this season and the teams balanced on an average basis so that not more than three pins difference in team average is apparent between any of the eight teams.

P. G. A. TOURNEY OPENS TUESDAY

PONTE VEDRA BEACH, Fla., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Approximately 125 amateurs and professionals will compete here September 20-22 in the seventeenth annual Southeastern Professional Golfers' Association tournament.

Players have entered from Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina and Tennessee.

An amateur-professional 18-hole best ball medal play event will be held next Tuesday.

Cash prizes totaling $1,000 have been offered for the 72-hole medal play tournament Wednesday and Thursday. Golfers will play 36 holes each day.

Beckett Enters 17th P. G. A. Tourney.

Howard Beckett, professional at the Capital City Country Club, will participate in the Southeastern P. G. A. next week. Mr. and Mrs. Beckett will leave the city early Monday morning, so Beckett may get in at least two practice rounds before the pro-amateur on Tuesday.

Tommy Wilson, from the Ansley Park Club also will make the trip but will not participate in the tourney. Wilson will make the Ponte Vedra trip as a vacation.

A couple of Atlanta amateurs may make the trip, but no definite entry has been made from Atlanta except Beckett.

Capital City Scene Of Newspaper Meet

Capital City Country Club will be host to the annual Atlanta newspaper golf tournament this week.

Qualifying rounds will be played either Monday or Tuesday, with match play scheduled during the remainder of the week.

There will be no practicing on the course before the tournament, and players who qualify Tuesday will not be allowed a practice round Monday. Those who qualify Monday will not be permitted on the course Tuesday.

horse" entrants in their respective conferences.

Kentucky, Mississippi State, Georgia and Florida will be pitted against opposition the boys like to refer to as "breathers."

Maryville College, of Tennessee, provides the opposition for Kentucky's reconstructed Wildcats at Lexington. Georgia engages The Citadel, of the Southern conference, at Athens. Mississippi State plays Howard at Starkville, Miss.

The University of Florida will play the first night game in the history of the school, meeting Stetson at Gainesville, Fla.

Georgia Tech has another week of drills before it goes to war against Mercer University here October 1, this game to be followed a week later by the Yellow Jackets' important intersectional engagement with Notre Dame.

SANFORD HURT.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Hayward (Sandy) Sanford, giant Alabama end whose two field goals last year brought the Crimson Tide a Rose Bowl invitation, was badly injured in practice here today and may not be able to leave with the team tonight for Los Angeles, where Alabama meets Southern California September 24.

Sanford broke a small bone in his left leg as Coach Frank Thomas sent his varsity squad through a final workout.

Sanford, a 207-pounder, has been running with the second team. He is from Adona, Ark.

HOOTEN HURLS TWO-HIT GAME TO DEFEAT P. O.

Adamsville 6-1 Win Gives Them 2nd Half of Dixie League.

Charlie Hooten, Adamsville ace, hurled a two-hit game Saturday afternoon at Glenn Field as Adamsville defeated the Post Office club 6 to 1 to win the last-half championship of the Dixie Amateur Baseball league. The teams were previously tied for the last-half titles. Post Office won the first-half championship.

Led by Ludwig, who hit two for three, Adamsville nicked Eidson and Maddox for nine blows. Dooley and Webb hit two for four each. Dooley's fielding was sensational. Camp and Williams were the only ones to touch Hooten.

EX-CHAMPION FIGHTS BROWN

Babe Risko (above) former world's middleweight champion, has been signed for a 10-round bout with Atlanta's Ben Brown at Warren arena Monday night, September 26. In a previous meeting here, the two men fought a furious draw, but Brown and his handlers claimed The Babe used the illegal kidney punch to pile up points.

Brown, Risko Fight Again Here Sept. 26

Ben Gets Second Shot at Former Middleweight Champion at Warren Arena.

By THAD HOLT.

The destructive fists of Ben Brown, which in recent weeks have cut a wide swath through the ranks of a bleeding and battered middleweight brigade, will be called upon to combat the skill of Babe Risko, former world's champion, in a 10-round battle at Warren arena Monday night, September 26.

Blastin' Ben could gain no better than a draw with the Babe in a bitterly fought affair here a couple of months ago and even then a number of spectators mentioned something about a hometown decision.

However, Sam Sobel, manager of the 20-year-old Atlanta bomber, complained loud and long during and after the Risko fight that the former champion was employing the outlawed kidney punch against his boy.

It was visible to all that Risko was using the kidney punch, but since Referee Pa Stribling allowed its use, it was thought at the time that Alabama state boxing rules did not prohibit the punch. However, closer perusal of the rules indicate clearly that the kidney punch is illegal when used deliberately. The rules further state that a fighter is to lose the round in which he delivers the kidney punch. This rule exists and is enforced in virtually every state in the Union.

It is likely that Tom McCarthy, a great young referee, will be third man in the ring. It will be his duty to see that the experienced and cagey Risko sticks to the rules.

Since the last Risko fight, Brown has displayed great punching power. He smashed highly rated Tony Fisher out of there in six rounds and a terrific right hand also kayoed Tony Celli, a rugged light heavyweight, in six rounds. Ben followed this up with a one-round kayo of Petey Mike, New Yorker.

Facing in Risko a master boxer and ring strategist, Brown will probably gamble on a knockout. If he continues to punch as well as in recent fights, he might actually accomplish the finish of Risko, which would create a national sensation and elevate the Atlanta kid in front ranking among the middleweights of the world.

Dorothy Kirby Bids For National Title

By EARL HILLIGAN.

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Patty Berg, of Minneapolis, and the defending champion, Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page, of Chapel Hill, N. C., will reign as co-favorites when a brilliant international field of 115 players tees off Monday morning in the 42d annual National Women's Golf championship at Westmoreland Country Club.

Miss Berg, the freckle-faced Minnesota star, is hoping her "Chicago luck" holds throughout next week—and for good reason. A sensation of the links this year, Patty has won 9 of 13 tournaments, and two of them were on Chicago courses. She blazed home in front of a strong field to set a scoring record in the Women's Western Derby at Butterfield and then captured the Women's Western closed title at Olympia fields.

She twice has been runner up for the National crown. In 1935 at Interlachen in Minneapolis, she was defeated by Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare. Last year, at Memphis, Tenn.,

WESLEYAN COLLEGE BEGINS TASK OF 'BUYING ITSELF BACK'

SETTLEMENT PLAN REVEALED IN MACON BY PARK, ANDERSON

Campaign Slated To Raise More Than $500,000 To Wipe Out Debt.

MACON, Ga., Sept. 17.—Century-old Wesleyan College, offered for sale last March to the highest bidder, and bought in by a committee of bondholders, today tackled the task of buying itself back, as terms for repurchasing the property of the college were announced by Orville A. Park, chairman of the executive committee of the college board of trustees, and Dr. Dice R. Anderson, president of the college.

According to the terms of the settlement, the college, in December, 1940, may realize its ambition of a greater Wesleyan—an ambition conceived in 1924, partly fulfilled when the college began an extensive building campaign in 1928, but checked by the depression years that followed, Dr. Anderson said today.

Terms of Settlement.

The college today announced terms of settlement which call for the payment of $467,850 over a period of two and a half years, the final installment being due December 1, 1940.

Machinery already has been put into operation, and a state-wide campaign to raise more than $500,000, covering the amount mentioned and certain other expenses, is to get under way soon, according to Dr. Anderson, who is chairman of the campaign committee. Should the college succeed in raising the funds for the repurchase of its properties by 1940, it would be free of financial burden for the first time since 1928.

Mr. Park and Dr. Anderson, placing the cause of the college before the public, asserted that "Wesleyan has been careful in all her financial dealings since entering into a period of financial stress several years ago, and has handled her current finances on a conservative and successful basis."

"Wesleyan has before her a great challenge, and we now look forward to relief from some of our problems and difficulties," Dr. Anderson said.

Joint Statement.

The statement of Mr. Park and Dr. Anderson regarding the agreement with the bondholders follows:

"On July 27 the holders of the bonds of Wesleyan College ratified an agreement previously entered into by the board of trustees and the bondholders' committee. Under this agreement, the trustees advanced $32,675 in rental and interest, and took an option to repurchase the physical properties of the college and the conservatory for an additional sum of $435,175.

"The option must be exercised by March 15, 1939, on which date a payment of $50,000 is to be made. Subsequent payments must be made as follows: June 1, 1939, interest, $12,675; November 1, 1939, $50,000, and the balance of $322,500 on or before December 1, 1940.

"The total in principal, interest, and rental payments over the two and a half year period, including rental of $25,000 advanced in 1937, will be $492,850. This and the minimum allowance for expenses of the campaign will bring the amount to be raised above $500,000.

"Macon, the alumnae and college community, the Methodist church in Georgia and Florida, and citizens of Georgia of all denominations will, we believe, accept the challenge, raise the amount necessary to relieve the oldest college for women of its financial burden and release her for enlarged service to church and state."

COTTON EXAMINERS LIST CLASSIFIERS

Georgia Licensees Are Announced by Parker.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Chairman E. G. Parker, of the board of supervising cotton examiners, made public today a list of cotton classifiers licensed in Georgia under the United States cotton standard act.

Cotton classified by licensed personnel is eligible under the 1938 loan program provided the grade and staple is of loan eligibility, the chairman pointed out.

FOUR NEGROES HELD IN FATAL AUTO CRASH

MACON, Ga., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Deputy Sheriff C. C. Chapman and state highway patrolmen reported here today that four Atlanta negroes had been arrested in connection with an automobile accident Thursday night which cost the life of Mrs. Alfred Schultz, of Fostoria, Ohio.

The sheriff said the car occupied by the negroes had been stolen from Mrs. Johnny Register, of Atlanta, a few hours before it sideswiped the Schultz car, 17 miles south of here.

At the hospital this afternoon it was said that the condition of the wreck victims was serious. It may be six months before Mrs. Evelyn Wentz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Schultz, is able to leave the hospital.

Vocational Building Planned for Mary Persons High School in Forsyth

Here is the architect's conception of a vocational building to be built on the campus of Mary Persons High school in Forsyth. The building, ground breaking ceremonies for which will be held Wednesday morning, is being donated by R. T. and Judge G. O. Persons, of Forsyth, for whose mother the school was named. It will be erected at a cost of approximately $20,000.

FOUR BOND ISSUES VOTED IN MARIETTA

School, Street, Armory and Swimming Pool Improvements Slated.

MARIETTA, Ga., Sept. 17.—Four bond issues, totaling $100,000, were approved this week by Marietta voters in a special bond election. The vote was on an issue of $70,000 for schools; $10,000 for street improvement; $10,000 for a swimming pool and park; $10,000 for an armory.

A record number of voters went to the polls, registering a landslide victory.

Results were as follows:

For school bonds, 1,187; against 26.

For street bonds, 1,178; against, 32.

For swimming pool bonds, 1,141; against, 70.

For armory bonds, 1,154; against, 52.

Official results were announced today by Mrs. Odene Johnson, city clerk.

The bond issue will make possible a public improvement program including, besides the projects mentioned above, a complete recreation center and renovation of all existing school structures.

Mayor L. M. Blair estimated that more than $200,000 will be spent, including anticipated aid from the WPA and PWA on project applied for by the city.

PRISON CAMP AIDE INDICTED IN SLAYING

Sam Mullins Named After Exoneration by Gwinnett Coroner's Jury.

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga., Sept. 17.—Sam Mullins, Gwinnett county public works camp mechanic, today was under indictment for murder in connection with the Thursday afternoon slaying of Earnest Holeman, prisoner, who was shot to death while being moved from the prison camp to the county jail here.

The grand jury action followed soon after a coroner's jury, empanelled by Coroner P. P. Pirkle, had exonerated Mullins, who, witnesses said, shot Holeman when the latter attacked him with the handcuffs with which he (Holeman) was manacled.

Mullins, serving a 12 months' term following conviction on charges of assault and battery on his father recently, slashed his own arms and face with broken glass Wednesday night, and was being moved to the county jail for his own safety when the shooting occurred.

YOUTH FOUND HANGING IN CELL, RESUSCITATED

LAGRANGE, Ga., Sept. 17.—Prompt first aid measures were credited with saving the life of Jerry Mathis, 21, of Lanett, Ala., who was found last night hanging from a water pipe in a cell in the city jail.

Young Mathis, who had been arrested in the afternoon on a charge of drunkenness, had used a sheet from the cot in his cell to form a noose.

Resuscitated by city firemen and first aid men from a local mortuary, Mathis was released in custody of members of his family.

Ground-Breaking Set Wednesday For Vocational Unit in Forsyth

Building at Mary Persons High School Donated by Sons in Her Memory; $20,000 Structure To Open New Field for Boys and Girls.

FORSYTH, Ga., Sept. 17.—The largest and most modern high school vocational building in the state of Georgia is planned for the boys and girls of Monroe and adjoining counties, it was announced yesterday.

The elaborate building, to cost approximately $20,000, will be the gift of two brothers, R. T. Persons and Judge G. O. Persons, as a memorial to their mother, the late Mrs. Mary Persons, and will be a unit of the high school already bearing her name.

Ground breaking exercises for the new structure will be held in Forsyth at 10 o'clock (C. S. T.) Wednesday morning. Officiating at the exercises will be Mrs. J. P. Sutton, county school superintendent, assisted by Professor C. D. Green, vocational agriculture teacher, and Superintendent E. O'Kelley.

Architects and state educators say the new building will be the "largest and best of its kind in Georgia."

When completed, the building will be thrown open to all boys and girls in Monroe and adjoining counties who are unable to go to college and who otherwise would receive no "real training for life in the business world."

The Persons brothers realized the need of vocational training for the youth of their section. They saw girls and boys in other parts of the state receiving such training, and consequently emerging from public school training better equipped for life.

These men realized the disadvantage to the youth of their county who couldn't go to college under the system of teaching the literary course that prepared boys and girls "for college but not for life."

They decided something must be done.

And the ground-breaking Wednesday will be the first step toward the completion of a dream. It was because of their mother's interest in boys and girls that the high school was dedicated to her memory.

When completed, the deeds will be turned over to the county school system with the stipulation the school will be used to teach the boys and girls vocational—practical—subjects—such as agriculture, sewing, cooking, mechanics and the like.

$47,000 BUILDING BEGUN BY REGENTS

Auditorium-Dining Hall Being Added to West Georgia College Plant.

CARROLLTON, Ga., Sept. 17.—Construction began this week on a $47,000 auditorium-dining hall building at West Georgia College here. The contract for construction of the building was awarded recently by the building committee of the state Board of Regents to a LaGrange company.

The building will be of modern construction. The dining hall will accomodate approximately 400 students, and the auditorium approximately 900.

Reports filed with Chancellor Sanford indicate the college's enrollment this year will be the largest in the history of the institution.

The Rosenwald Foundation last year established a department at West Georgia College to instruct rural boys and girls in home economics and the manual arts, and the Board of Regents authorized construction of a building to house the department. This building will be completed at a cost of $35,000, and ready for use at the beginning of the college next Thursday.

Other buildings recently completed by the regents at the college included a dormitory costing $37,000, and a library costing $14,000.

GEORGIAN FOUND SLAIN —PISTOL LYING NEAR BY

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Edwin Beers, 34, of Athens, Ga., a construction engineer at Chanute field, Rantoul, Ill., was found shot to death in his room at Rantoul today. A bullet wound, which Coroner Richard C. Shurtz said he believed was self-inflicted, was in his head and a .22-caliber target pistol lay beneath the body.

He was engaged in construction work at Chanute field.

Auditorium-Dining Hall at Carrollton College

Construction is under way on an auditorium-dining hall at West Georgia College, in Carrollton, at a cost of approximately $47,000. Above is shown the architect's conception of the building as it will appear upon completion.

S. C. V. TO DEDICATE GORDON MEMORIAL

Judge John D. Humphries To Speak at Thomaston Ceremonies.

THOMASTON, Ga., Sept. 17.—Judge John D. Humphries, of Atlanta, will be the principal speaker at ceremonies here Thursday, September 29, when members of John B. Gordon Camp No. 46, Sons of Confederate Veterans, unveil and dedicate a memorial to the man for whom their organization was named.

The memorial will be in the form of a sun dial, mounted on a Georgia marble base, which will bear inscriptions on three sides. It will be located on Courthouse Square.

A number of Upson county schools and civic organizations will participate in the exercises, which will be in charge of Sharman chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, of which Mrs. Grady Fowler is president. Commander McWhorter Milner, of John B. Gordon chapter, of which Judge Humphries also is a member, has announced the ceremonies wil begin at 2 o'clock, central time.

General Gordon, in whose honor the last assembly authorized the designation of State Highway Route No. 3 as the John B. Gordon Highway, was born about eight miles southeast of Thomaston. He led a southern command to Virginia in the War Between the States, and later represented Georgia in the United States senate and as its Governor.

Uncle Mark, 117, Will Be Honored At Chickamauga

LAFAYETTE, Ga., Sept. 17.—"Uncle Mark" Thrash, negro, who has lived on the Chickmauga Park reservation many years, will be a guest at the ten-day National Chickamauga Park celebration, when the 75th anniversary of the Battle of Chickamauga will be observed.

"Uncle Mark" claims he is 117 years old, and that his twin brother, Anthony, went to South Africa about 50 years ago as a missionary. Both Mark and Anthony went to war with their young masters and witnessed the Battle of Chickamauga. "Uncle Mark" is expecting Anthony to return "now most any time."

In his two-room cabin provided by the federal government, the old negro has many interesting articles, accumulated since the 60's. Among them are a coat Mark says was worn by General U. S. Grant.

"Uncle Mark" says he was born in Virginia on Christmas Day, 1821, and was owned by the family of Dr. Thrash in Meriwether county.

GEORGIAN HONORED.

AUBURN, Ala., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Paul McKenney, Columbus, Ga., senior at Alabama Polytechnic Institute, has been tapped by Omicron Delta Kappa, national leadership fraternity. He is president of Phi Psi, textile fraternity, president of Phi Delta Theta social fraternity, a member of Tau Beta Pi, and a member of Scabbard and Blade.

CALDWELL APPEALS FOR NEW ELEVATION OF SCHOOL IDEALS

'We've Been Too Much Concerned With Material Things,' He Says.

ATHENS, Ga., Sept. 17.—Greater emphasis on the liberal arts, higher scholarship standards for students, and integration of high school and college curricula were urged in an address made here yesterday by President Harmon W. Caldwell, of the University of Georgia.

President Caldwell, addressing members of the faculty assembled in their first meeting of the 1938-39 session, called for an educational program that "will develop the powers of superior students to the utmost and that will destroy their tendency to travel in the paths of mediocrity."

Suggesting comprehensive examinations, sectioning of students by intelligence, and further application of the university's plan of independent study as possible solutions to the problem, he said: "I believe much can be accomplished by working with the high schools of the state and by integrating more completely the high school and college curricula."

On the value of a liberal education, President Caldwell said: "I believe we are coming around to the view that even in the liberal arts college we have been too much concerned with material things, with mechanics and methods.

"We have been prone to neglect those studies that tend to make of our students men and women of broad sympathies and deep understanding, and there has been too little opportunity for students to see, know, and be moved by the visions and aspirations of the great thinkers, poets, and sages whose labors have given direction to the course of civilization."

DR. WILLIS E. HOWARD SPEAKS AT SHORTER

ROME, Ga., Sept. 17.—"Be ashamed to die until you have had some worthy part in making this world what it ought to be," declared Dr. Willis E. Howard, of LaGrange, in an address at the annual convocation service at Shorter College yesterday.

The formal exercises marked the beginning of the new school term and followed a week of registration and orientation.

Dr. Howard's message followed a program which included a devotional period conducted by Dr. Bunyan Stephens, president of the Rome Ministerial Association.

Class work began this morning.

LAGRANGE COLLEGE OPENS NEW TERM

LAGRANGE, Ga., Sept. 17.—Samuel C. Dobbs, of Atlanta, presided at LaGrange College convocation exercises this week, opening the 108th annual session, featured by an address by Dr. J. W. Johnson, pastor of the First Methodist church of Rome. The introduction of Hubert T. Quillian as president was a feature of the opening.

A record enrollment was reported with all dormitory accommodations taken.

EMORY-AT-OXFORD WILL OPEN TOMORROW

OXFORD, Ga., Sept. 17. — Emory-at-Oxford will open its doors Monday to the largest students body in its history with students from Georgia, Florida, South America, Cuba and Canal Zone and other places preparing to register as freshmen.

Henry Jordan, of Edison, will succeed Marion M. Brooke, of Atlanta, in the science department.

A new course will be offered in German to be taught by Professor M. R. Ellington.

Sophomores will register September 25, and scholastic work will begin September 26.

FULTON COUNTIANS BUY ROME TRACTS

$100,000 Paid for Manufacturing Company Plant.

ROME, Ga., Sept. 17.—Purchase of the property occupied by the furniture plant of the Fox Manufacturing Company here by the Floyd Investment Company, of Fulton county, was revealed in a deed recorded in the office of County Clerk J. L. Jolly. The deal involved $100,000.

The property was sold by Isaac May, J. L. Sulzbacher, Mrs. Edna May Sulzbacher, I. M. Sulzbacher, all of Rome; Leo H. Schwed, Mrs. Blance May Schwed and Hilda Schwed, of Union county, N. J., and Mrs. Carolyn Jacobson, of Essex county, New Jersey.

Included in the deal are two tracts of land in North Rome, on one of which is located the main plaint of the furniture company. The plant is housed by a one-story brick building with approximately 78,000 square feet of floor space. All equipment, machinery and tools were included in the transaction.

NEW GEORGIA MANUAL WILL BE PUBLISHED

ATHENS, Ga., Sept. 17.—E. S. Sell, professor of geography at the University of Georgia, has completed a 10,000-word manual of Georgia geography which will be published this fall, together with a new physical-political map of the state.

The manual includes sections on climate, geology, topography, and other geographic factors.

The United Kingdom is a customer for most of the cured pork and lard shipped from the United States.

Jones, Yates to Captain East Lake on Thursday

Bobby Jones and Charlie Yates, East Lake's two winners of the British amateur championship, will be rival captains Thursday afternoon when the club closes its annual golf season in a losers pay dinner tournament.

Colonel Bob Jones, president of the Atlanta Athletic Club, will the toastmaster at the dinner which follows the tournament. Colonel Jones and Scott Hudson Sr. were the former captains for years, but since Yates won the British amateur, he and Bobby have been selected for captains.

Jones will lead the St. Andrews clan, for it was on the St. Andrews course where he won his only British amateur title in 1930.

Yates will lead the Troon Lassies, in honor of the course where he triumphed early this summer.

A special entertainment program has been arranged which will make it the most enjoyable dinner in the history of the club.

All trophies and prizes won by members during the year will be presented at the dinner, which will be served at 7 o'clock.

Players for the two teams will be selected on a handicap basis and the foursome may select either course for the matches which will be determined under the three point Nassau scoring system.

Although the dinner is specially for the golfers, any member unable to participate in the tournament may enjoy the dinner and entertainment by reserving a plate with George Sargent, the East Lake professional, or George Bell, the East Lake club manager.

H. D. Kline, J. Glenn, and L. L. Jones shared top honors with 74s yesterday afternoon in the weekly blind bogey at the Capital City Club.

With 75s and tied for second were J. D. Henry, Hugh Carter, and W. W. Owens.

E. B. Adams and I. J. Osbun turned in 73s.

Clayton, Gavan Play at Key.

A grudge battle between the presidents of two municipal golfing associations today will bring together George Clayton, James L. Key president, and Don Gavan, head of the Bobby Jones golfers. The two will fight it out in an 18-hole match on the Bobby Jones course.

Supplementing the battle of the presidents will be a match between the municipal teams from the two courses.

H. M. Lyons Wins Bobby Jones Bogey.

Winner in yesterday's blind bogey at Bobby Jones course was H. M. Lyons with an 80.

F. W. Willard Jr., W. H. Bartlett, and F. L. Stowe tied for second spot with 79s.

Six Golfers Split East Lake Bogey.

Six East Lake golfers shared the weekly blind bogey yesterday afternoon with 71s. They were J. C. Kyle, R. G. Johnson, B. E. Sale, J. R. Harris, A. C. Bromberg, and F. E. Stevens.

In second place with 72s were W. Peters, Sam Thompson, T. D. McCarley, F. A. Reddy, and E. R. Partridge.

The following turned in 73s: F. O. Sallee, W. D. T. McDowell, R. A. Martin, Joe Davis, H. L. Gilhan, H. S. Roberts, A. P. McElroy, W. D. Owen, G. B. Sisson, Gene Brooks, and Danny Yates.

George Suggs won the booby prize.

East Lake's weekly dogfite is set for today at 1 o'clock. Entries must be in the golf shop by 12:30.

Three Ansley Stars Win Double Honors.

William Lohse, T. R. Yarborough, and Dr. R. B. Robinson yesterday shared double-barreled honors in play at the Ansley Park course.

The Ansley trio tied for the bogey prize with 66s and with the same score split low net honors.

Second place in the bogey was divided among W. O. Cheney, L. F. Kent, and F. G. Williams.

Southern Railway Plays Railway Express Today

Southern Railway and Railway Express will meet this afternoon at 3:30 on Warren field. Southern Railway plays in the Saturday Commercial league and Railway Express is a member of the Sunday Walco league.

Both teams are composed of well-known amateur baseball players and many fans are interested in this game.

Nine-Pound Boy Born To Meyer Balsers

It's Mister Balser today!

A fine, nine-pound boy was born to the Meyer Balsers last night. Meyer is the popular manager and ex-star of the J. P. C. basketball team. The boy is the second child of the Balser family.

Makey Klein, who phoned the announcement, said both Meyer and Mrs. Balser are doing fine, thank you.

How about comin' around with cigars, Meyer?

POLO TOURNEY WILL CONTINUE

The Governor's Horse Guard will play the Fort McPherson Army team the second game of the fall polo tournament at Fort McPherson Sunday at 3 p. m.

More than a thousand spectators lauded the fine teamwork of the Army team last week when they beat the Horse Guard, 9-6. Captain Elms, of the Army team, has left his team unchanged for this week-end game, whereas the lineup of the Horse Guard will see the addition of two new players, Lieutenant Harvy Lindsey and Earl Thornton. These two men played second string last year and they have now been elevated to the first team because of their progress during the summer games.

FT. McPHERSON. PO. HORSE GUARDS

Capt. Garver	1	Lt. Smith

Mrs. Larned Takes Druid Hills Event

Mrs. Mark Larned defeated Mrs. George Dean, 1 up, Saturday morning on the Druid Hills course to win the Druid Hills Woman's championship.

In the consolation flight, Mrs. Max Mentzer defeated Mrs. A. C. Baird, 2-1.

Silver trophies were given to Mrs. W. C. Vines and Mrs. A. J. Kaiser for the best ringer score of the season.

Saturday's finals ended the last official tournament for the Druid Hills women this season.

Wake Forest Beats Randolph-Macon

WAKE FOREST, N. C., Sept. 17.—(UP)—Wake Forest's highly-touted 1938 football team, bolstered by a spirited group of sophomores, made its debut tonight by defeating Randolph-Macon, 57 to 6, before 5,000 spectators.

Randolph-Macon's Yellow Jackets put up a plucky fight against overwhelming opposition, however, and scored their one touchdown on a 90-yard run by Halfback McFall.

Davidson Extended To Beat The Citadel

CHARLESTON, S. C., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Davidson's football team encountered almost a stone wall in the form of The Citadel Cadets here tonight and had to put forth an extra punch to squeeze out a 12-6 verdict.

Fred Stair, Wildcat back, crashed over from the 2-yard line well in the final quarter to win the game. The try for an extra point was no good.

CORN DODGER.

HUNTINGTON, N. J., Sept. 17.—(AP)—In a torrential rain, which drenched 3,000 spectators, Paul Mellon's Corn Dodger today won the Long Island hunt cup at the annual meeting of the West Hills Racing Association.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(AP)—The war threats that brought heavy bursts of selling into security markets this week continued to oppress stocks today and most shares ended fractions to around 3 points lower.

Speculators, it appeared, were loath to carry stocks over the week end while there remained so much doubt over the outcome of the efforts to effect a peaceful settlement of the German minority issue in Czechoslovakia.

Shortly after the opening another heavy wave of offerings rolled into the market, putting many shares back to the midweek lows. The selling lightened in the second hour of the brief session and the market rallied a little. The drop about finished the job of eliminating gains run up in Thursday's broad rally, inspired by hope the Chamberlain-Hitler talk would preserve peace.

Volume Increases.

Fresh doubt seemed to have gripped money quarters about the chances of avoiding war in the long run. Contributing to skepticism were reports the Czechs would fight rather than give up any territory.

Transactions totaled 743,790 shares, the busiest Saturday since August 6, and raised the week's turnover to 7,579,480 compared with 2,995,410 the preceding week.

Some of the heaviest selling since the autumn collapse a year ago contributed to the week's activity and left many shares 2 to 5 points down for the week.

Under the repeated war alarms, reaching at least a temporary climax in the midweek bloodshed in Sudeten towns of Czechoslovakia, the stock market broke out on the downside of the narrow range it had fluctuated in for several weeks after the midyear upswing leveled off in July.

Leading Shares Dip.

Down 1 to around 3 for the day in the share list were United States Steel, Bethlehem, Westinghouse, General Electric, General Motors, Chrysler, American Telephone, Western Union, Great Northern preferred, Briggs, Santa Fe, Johns Manville, Consolidated Edison, International Nickel and United States Rubber preferred.

At the close of the two-hour session on the curb, prices were fractions to more than a point lower in Lake Shore Mines, New Jersey Zinc, Gulf Oil, Aluminum of America, American Cyanamid B and Technicolor. Sales were 90,000 shares against 54,000 a week ago.

The Associated Press composite price of 60 stocks for the day was down 1.1 at 44.5 and for the week was off 2.7.

AVERAGE PRICE.
NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 17.
(AP)—The average price of middling cotton today at ten southern spot markets was 9 points lower at 7.92 cents a pound. The average price for the past 30 market days was 8.26 cents a pound.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Cotton eased into new low ground for the current movement in nearby deliveries today under commission house liquidation promoted by continued nervousness over the European crisis. December sold off from 7.88 to 7.75 and closed at 7.77, with final prices 8 to 11 points net lower.

The market opened 1 point higher to 1 point lower in a quiet trade with liquidation and hedge selling absorbed by trade and foreign buying. Offerings through Wall Street houses developed as the stock market eased and there was a general disposition for longs to even up accounts owing to uncertainties over what might develop in Europe over the week-end. Trade price-fixing on a scale down furnished a little resistance but final prices were close to the lows.

Cotton goods sales for the week were estimated at about equal to current mill production of print cloths.

Amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the close of the week estimated at 48,000 against 95,000 last year and 71,000 two years ago.

There was some early buying by Liverpool and the continent but when the market turned easier a little foreign selling was noted.

COTTON CONTINUES DOWNWARD TREND

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 17.—(AP) Cotton prices continued downward today under persistent week end liquidation and lack of sustaining support. The market closed steady, at net losses of 8 to 11 points.

PACIFIC FISHERMAN TELLS OF SINKING PLANE

MANILA, Sept. 18.—(Sunday) (UP)—Reports that a "big white plane" crashed in flames off Samar island July 29 were investigated by government and Pan-American Airways officials today as a possible clue to the fate of the Hawaii Clipper which disappeared with 15 aboard on July 29.

Samar is in the southerly end of the Philippine archipelago. Provincial correspondents of Manila newspapers quoted a fisherman as saying he saw the plane burst into flames, crash and sink.

Tot Hits Bottle, Bottle Hits Tot

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(UP) Patrick Lyons, two-year-old "toper," was resting fairly comfortably at the hospital today after a 12-hour battle with a hangover.

The infant found a bottle of wine in his home and drank nearly half of it before his parents discovered why Patrick, misty-eyed, was reeling about the house.

BELLIES—
Sept.				10.10	10.10

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—(AP)—War tension abroad touched off another spurt of buying in the wheat pit that lifted prices almost two cents at the opening today. Thereafter the market was dull, however, and about half of the gain was lost.

Most of the activity was crowded into the first few minutes of trading. A more pessimistic view of the European political crisis and higher wheat prices in foreign markets stimulated the early rush to buy, but uncertainties connected with the situation abroad led to caution in the wheat trade and many dealers accepted profits and evened up accounts over the week end.

Prices gave way 5-8 to 1 1-8 cents from the early highs at times but closed fractionally above the day's lows with net overnight gains of 3-4 to 1 1-8 compared with yesterday's finish.

Exporters, millers, speculators and "shorts" had resting orders to buy wheat when the market opened.

The Liverpool market was 1 1-8 to 2 3-8 cents up at one stage, but it closed only 3-4 to 7-8 higher. Rotterdam rose 1 3-8 to 2 cents. Sharply reduced Russian shipments were a factor abroad.

Little export business was reported in North American wheat, but reports persisted that considerable quantities had been worked which were not made public. Domestic wheat sales recently under the subsidy program were believed to have caused some removal of hedges in the futures pit.

Brokers' Views

STOCK OPINIONS.
COURTS & CO.—The European crisis seems to be at the acute stage and the market can be expected to respond quickly to the answer as to whether or not a war is imminent.
BEER & CO.—Next week should give us a better idea, meantime prefer to wait.
FENNER & BEANE—Continue to feel day-to-day price movements are likely to reflect the course of European developments.

COTTON OPINIONS.
COURTS & CO.—Until hedging pressure begins to crop up, we would not buy cotton save on very sharp breaks.
BEER & CO.—Feel cotton is cheap at this time.
FENNER & BEANE—We believe cotton is too low and expect purchases around these levels to show profits in the near future.
HUBBARD BROS. & CO.—Nervous, irregular market may be expected pending further European developments. Liverpool due Monday October 4.51, March 4.62.

GRAIN OPINIONS.
COURTS & CO.—We are inclined to take profits on recent purchases in anticipation of reactions, should war scares die down, replacing purchases in the May option for the long pull, should such reaction occur.
BEER & CO.—Still are of the opinion purchases should be made on dips.

COTTONSEED OIL OPINION.
HUBBARD BROS. & CO.—The market is very steady with good volume for Saturday morning.

INDUSTRIAL UPSWING INDICATED IN SOUTH

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 17.—(AP)—An upswing in business conditions in the south was indicated today by a report of the Southern States Industrial Council showing a "substantial increase" in employment in August.

A survey by the council's research department revealed southern manufacturing establishments employed 3.6 more workers in August than in June. The survey included 41 industrial groups, 28 of which reported an increase demand for workers in the south.

The iron and steel industry employed 15 per cent more workers in August than in June, cotton textile industry 2.6 per cent more, wool textile 14.9 per cent, cotton garment industry 15.9 per cent, and cotton hosiery 12.8 per cent.

REV. BAGGOTT TO SHOW FILMS OF TRIP ABROAD

The Rev. James L. Baggott, pastor of First Baptist church, College Park, goes to Memphis Wednesday to show moving pictures of his recent European and Palestinian trip at the Bellevue Baptist church in Memphis.

Mr. Baggott will show these pictures at the Gordon Street Baptist Fellowship Club tomorrow night; the College Park Masonic Lodge September 26; the Leslie Baggott Class social, October 3; the North Atlanta Baptist church, where the Rev. J. F. Mitchell, who accompanied Mr. Baggott on the trip, is pastor, on Tuesday night, October 4; Wednesday night, October 5, at First Baptist church, and Tuesday night, October 11, in College Park for the people of all churches and the general public.

SAFETY DRIVE SLATED.

MARIETTA, Ga., Sept. 17.—Plans for an extensive county-wide safety campaign were announced yesterday by J. M. Hodges, chairman of the Rotary Club safety committee. The drive will be directed by a citizens' safety council.

BUSINESSMEN'S FORUM TO RESUME TOMORROW

Sessions of the Atlanta Businessmen's Forum, designed to give instruction and practice in the every-day types of speaking needed by business and professional men, will be resumed at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

Patterned after the courses of Dale Carnegie, the sessions were begun last winter. Louis T. Bates, young Atlanta businessman, will be in charge of this season's forum.

General Federation Press Chairman Issues Important Message Today

In an introductory letter addressed to state chairmen of press and publicity, General Federation chairman of this department of club work, Mrs. Fred R. Lufkin, of Elgin, Ill., gives as the theme thought chosen for this triennium period, effective publicity promotes human welfare." This is coordinate with the keynote selected by the president of General Federation, Mrs. Sadie Orr Dunbar, "Adjusting Democracy for Human Welfare."

The major objectives stressed during the three years just ended will be continued and details of the new program will soon be published. "Certainly," writes Mrs. Lufkin, "we can secure effective publicity only by increasing the number of press chairmen who have had either adequate training in journalism or are enthusiastically interested and eager to grasp every opportunity to learn the rudiments of club reporting.

We are depending on the press chairmen to explain to every club in your state what effective publicity is and how it is obtained; to instill into the minds of every department chairman the idea that effective publicity will promote her objectives, and so secure her hearty corporation."

Division chairmen of this department presented by Mrs. Lufkin are: Training in Journalism, Mrs. Frederick W. Woitz, Des Moines, Iowa; Newspapers and Other Media, Mrs. Walter C. Taylor, La Moure, N. D.; state publications, Mrs. John H. Jopson, Minneapolis, Minn.

In Georgia there is only one division of the department called "Training in Journalism," with Mrs. George Burrus Jr., of Columbus, as state chairman, who joins with your state chairman of press and publicity, Mrs. Harvie Jordan, of Atlanta, in "pledging best efforts toward a successful year, and in assuring you that your wholehearted support and co-operation will be appreciated."

LaGrange Club Will Be Hostess To Federation Convention in April

LaGrange Woman's Club will be hostess to the forty-fourth convention of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs next April. This action was taken at the September meeting held in the clubrooms, and Mrs. Albert M. Hill, of Greenville, president of the state organization, attended the meeting, and was honor guest at the reception which followed. H. T. Quillian, president of LaGrange College, placed the facilities of the college at the disposal of clubwomen for the spring convention.

Mrs. Jarrell Dunson is president of LaGrange Club, and was assisted in receiving by Mesdames Albert Hill, Clifford Smith, Marion Roberts, Ethel Dallis Hill, Hubert Quillian, Mary Jane Crayton, Henry Reeves and Wilbur Freeman.

Invocation was given by Rev. J. D. C. Wilson, rector of St. Mark's Episcopal church, and Mrs. Arthur Thompson played the accompaniment when clubwomen sang "My Georgia Land," the state federation song. Mrs. Dunson gave the slogan for the club year, "Service," and pledged her loyalty and asked co-operation and support of members in carrying out principles upon which the club program is based.

Officers are Mrs. Jarrell Dunson, president; Mrs. Harry Spikes, secretary; Mrs. R. L. Adams, treasurer; Mrs. Marion Roberts, first vice president, and Mrs. Mary Jane Crayton, second vice president.

Elected to membership were Mesdames Hubert Quillian, Barrington King, Willard Brier, J. W. Bridwell, George Forrester, H. L. Alsobrook, Jackson Weldon, Collier Jordan, Eugene White, Russell Redding, Daniel Roberts, Oliver Murphy Jr., J. H. Daughdrill, A. E. Blanton and Miss Jannie Tyson. Mrs. Albert Hill was made an honorary member.

Reports from the following standing committees were given as follows: Advisory, Mrs. Henry Reeves; finance, Mrs. C. L. Smith; library, Mrs. Tom Hutchinson; house, Mrs. Wilbur Freeman; Child Welfare, Mrs. R. O. Lee; reading, Mrs. T. L. Kinney; junior, Mrs. Mary Jane Crayton; music, Miss Isma Swain; fine arts, Mrs. Ralph Reeves; citizenship, Mrs. F. H. Besselieu; garden, Mrs. C. L. Smith.

Different sections will entertain at the general meetings according to the following schedule: October, garden section; November, Child Welfare; December, music; January, citizenship; February, junior; March, fine arts; April, reading; May, the club as a whole.

Mrs. C. L. Smith, state corresponding secretary, was presented to members by Mrs. Dunson who stated that the LaGrange club was proud of claiming Mrs. Smith among its members.

Mrs. Albert Hill, the speaker, was introduced by Mrs. Wilbur Freeman. Mrs. Hill gave a resume of the convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs held in Kansas City, Mo., concluding with the statement: "We must realize the seriousness of our citizenship and realibe that we could stop, overnight, crime, if only united womanhood with a common purpose, determined to lift democracy and religion to the highest level."

Mrs. Walter Finney sang a solo with piano accompaniment by Mrs. Arthur Thompson.

Hostesses were Mesdames Frank Hutchinson, J. D. Hudson, Jack Talbert, T. G. Polhill, Ethel Dallis Hill, Claude Hammett, Forrest Truitt, J. R. Yates Jr., Joe Edmondson, J. K. Boatwright, Albert Lehmann Jr., D. A. Leman, Robert Guinn, Wade Milam, W. H. Hadaway, Ellis Ivey, George Sargent, W. S. Dunson and James Holder.

Clubwomen Hold Important Meet In Athens With State Chairman

Attending the conference of the department of education, Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs in Athens recently were 15 state division chairmen and district chairmen of education, who heard an address by Dr. Walter D. Cocking, dean of the College of Education at the university. The conference was called by the state chairman of education, Mrs. Jonathan Clark Rogers, of Dahlonega, who spoke on "The New Approach to Education," and presided over the deliberations. Leaders in the discussion were: Mrs. A. H. Brenner, state chairman of character education, Augusta; Mrs. H. A. Carithers, state chairman of conservation of youth, Winder; Mrs. Dice Anderson, sixth district chairman of education, Macon; Mrs. A. N. Alford, tenth district chairman of education, Hartwell; Mrs. Brantley Little, chairman library service, tenth district, Carnesville; Mrs. Prince Royal, ninth district chairman of character education, Buford. Among others called on to speak were Mrs. J. P. Boone and Mrs. J. E. Crouse, of Macon, and Mesdames George King, R. C. Meaders and W. G. Owens, of Dahlonega.

The conference adopted for its program of education to be submitted to the federation board on October 6 the following objectives:

1. A nine-month school term for every school in the state. 2. (a) A library for each of the 27 counties now without library service; (b) a materials bureau for every library. 3. (a) Visting teachers to be added to the regular school facilities, to give individualized teaching and guidance to the backward, delinquent or problem child; (b) that such teachers be empowered to enforce the compulsory school attendance law. 4. That every Woman's Club in the state take one or more of the study courses offered by the extension service of the University of Georgia. 5. (a) That vocational training be enlarged to include training in commercial art, and art craft as taught in public school art; (b) that this larger vocational training be offered in every school system in the state. 6. That oral English be made a required course in the public school curriculum from the first grade through high school.

At the close of the conference, Mrs. Rogers was hostess at a luncheon. Dr. Cocking and Mrs. H. B. Ritchie, recording secretary of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, were distinguished guests who addressed the group.

Mrs. Ritchie gave a resume of past accomplishments of the Georgia federation and urged that clubwomen now rise to meet the challenge of today. She paid a glowing tribute to Mrs. M. A. Lipscomb, the federation's first education chairman, and quoted her: "We intend to do battle against the ignorance that is a blot upon the fair state that we love so well."

Dr. Cocking made comparisons of Georgia's educational work with that of other states. He said that the records show that Georgia clubwomen are aware of the problem and ready to attack it. He quoted as a good text: "He who ceases to be better ceases to be good." The necessity of moving onward rapidly, intelligently, and vigorously was stressed. "Georgia is one of the five states," said Dr. Cocking, "that have only 11-year school systems. All the other states, including Louisiana and Texas, now have 12-year systems."

Dr. Cocking commended the textbook law and said free textbooks would aid in eliminating illiteracy. He said the curriculum revision is as fine as that in any state, and that Georgia is now public school conscious.

Meeting of Board Called for Oct. 5.

At the call of the president of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. Albert M. Hill, there will be a meeting of the executive committee at the Henry Grady hotel, in Atlanta, on Wednesday, October 5, at 2 o'clock preceding the meeting of the executive board on Thursday. This meeting will follow the luncheon conference of officers and district presidents which will be at 12:30 o'clock.

State Headquarters Receives Yearbook Of Clayton Club

State headquarters of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs acknowledges with appreciation the yearbook of Clayton Woman's Club recently received. This club, organized in 1910, follows the state federation in its motto: "Wisdom, Justice, Moderation," in its colors, green and white, and in its flower, the Cherokee rose.

Officers for the current year are Mrs. L. M. Young, president; Mrs. J. C. Dover, first vice president; Mrs. Della H. Jolly, second vice president; Mrs. G. L. Tomlin, secretary; Mrs. C. M. Dickerson, treasurer; Mrs. E. R. Taylor, auditor; Mrs. B. C. Dorsey, parliamentarian.

Standing committees: Finance, Mrs. J. T. Davis, Mrs. L. M. Young; historian, Mrs. C. R. Hendrix; civic, Mesdames Roy Green, V. A. Green, J. B. Parker; publicity, Mrs. J. W. Cooper, Mrs. C. R. Hendrix; membership, Mrs. F. Q. Echols, Mrs. L. D. Cole; Tallulah Falls, Mesdames R. C. Nicholson, J. A. Green, L. F. Reeves, E. R. Taylor.

The departments are responsible for the monthly meetings and public welfare, with Mrs. C. M. Dickerson, chairman, had charge of the September program. The divisions of child welfare and community service were presented by county welfare workers. Hostesses were Mesdames Jolly, Nicholson, J. L. Smith, J. B. Parker.

Under the Cherokee Rose

By Rose Marie

Mrs. J. W. Gholston, of Comer, chairmen of the finance committee of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, calls a meeting of the committee for October 5 at 11 o'clock in the Henry Grady hotel, Atlanta. Serving with Mrs. Gholston is the state president, Mrs. Albert Hill; state treasurer, Mrs. John O. Braselton; director for Georgia, Mrs. Ralph Butler; immediate president, Mrs. A. B. Conger.

Attention is called to the change in the officers of the Carnesville Woman's Club since the yearbook was published. President, Mrs. C. A. Bray; first vice president, Mrs. H. G. Wansley; second vice president, Mrs. Mamie Van Wey; recording secretary, Mrs. C. B. Akin; corresponding secretary, Mrs. A. T. Mauldin, treasurer; Mrs. Herbert McMurry, historian; Mrs. J. F. Colbert, parliamentarian; Mrs. Eugene Dyar, press reporter.

Yearbooks from Manchester Woman's Club, West End Study Class and Garden Hills Woman's Club, of Atlanta, have been received at state headquarters and are appreciated. These books are a great help to the secretary and to other clubs that come in for suggestions for their programs.

Mrs. J. W. Gholston, recently returned from extensive travels in Europe, talked about her trip at the September meeting of Royston Woman's Club, the program being in charge of the department of education of which Mrs. Stewart D. Brown is chairman.

Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs recently opened its new headquarters in the Jefferson hotel in Richmond. Clubs throughout the state are invited to add to the furnishings of the room and to give to the fund which has been started to maintain it. A rotating art exhibit will adorn the walls of the new home.

Chicago is the headquarters for the National Grandmothers' Club which has over 100 members scattered throughout the United States who are organizing units in their home towns. All who join before October 1 will be designated charter members. All grandmothers in the Federation of Women's Clubs are invited to join.

As September ushers into activity the various club groups and opens the school room door, the affairs of one's immediate vicinity loom large and a checkup is made on developments since doors were closed on active club work. Don't be discouraged if hopes have not been realized, just go into the fall determined to make the club so outstanding in the community and so worthwhile to the members that membership will be a real necessity.

Georgia Legion Auxiliary Aids National Child Welfare Program

By MRS. C. B. McCULLAR, of Milledgeville, State Editor.

Child health and the prevention of juvenile delinquency will be the aim set for the Georgia's Legion Auxiliary's participation in the national child welfare program of the organization this year, Mrs. Carleton McQuown and Mrs. Walter Eskew, of Decatur, stated in their annual bulletin out this week. The slogan adopted for the child welfare work in the state is "What the wisest and best parent wants for his child is what we want for all children in the community." Units are urged to contact the State Health Department at 11 Hunter street, Atlanta, for material and also for speakers on community programs. Units are urged to look out for crippled children in their communities, to give them transportation to clinics and see that they get the free braces, hospitalization and orthopedic care provided for them by the state.

Mrs. H. E. Sanford Jr., immediate past vice president of the Georgia department, and membership leader who directed the enlistment of 3,450 members in Georgia last year has been named president of the Waldo M. Slaton unit at Buckhead. Serving with her will be Mrs. S. E. Dellinger, first vice president; Mrs. C. D. Waddell, second vice president; Mrs. J. L. Nicholson, secretary; Mrs. J. W. Picklesimer, treasurer; Mrs. E. G. Allen, chaplain; Mrs. Murt Kelly, historian, and Mrs. W. J. Folsom, sergeant-at-arms.

Employment is being furnished to hundreds of hospitalized veterans by orders from Georgia units for poppies this month as the Georgia Auxiliary begins a concerted drive to celebrate the 20th anniversary of the armistice with the biggest poppy sale ever held in the state. Mrs. Rosa M. Sumerau, of Augusta, chairman, and Mrs. Ben Huiett, of Atlanta, co-chairman, remind all unit poppy chairmen that orders must be placed early in order that Poppy Day supplies may be sufficient. In a bulletin issued this week they said: "Our welfare work steadily increases and makes it necessary that our poppy sales be bigger than ever before. Each year a greater number of our men are being hospitalized and need our care. Last year in a hospital a veteran made the remark that when he received his check for poppy making that sets a keynote for the whole craft of veteran's making of the little red flowers. He said, 'For the first time in years I can buy my children Christmas presents.' That's what it means to our veterans." The veterans are paid one penny each for making the poppies.

School children over Georgia are beginning this month to plan for their entries in the annual poppy poster contest. These contests are carried on under the direct supervision of the schools. The entrants are divided into three classes: First, students in the fourth, fifth and sixth grades; second, the seventh, eighth and ninth grades, and third, in the tenth, eleventh and twelfth grades. Three winning posters, one from each classification, are sent to state headquarters. The three winners there are to be entered in the national contest. Unit chairmen are especially asked to remind the entrants that the word "Buddy" will not be allowed on the posters, that the theme is "Veteran Made Poppy" and that the slogan or title going on the poster must not exceed 10 words, exclusive of "a," "and" and "the." The contest will close on November 1. The posters may be used in advertising poppy sales in the community before they are turned in to headquarters. The size of all posters must be 14 by 20 inches, and must be cardboard. Drawing paper will not be accepted. Much interest has been evidenced among school children relative to the contest, and all units are urged to see that a poppy contest is conducted in their schools.

Rev. J. W. Kennedy To Give Book Review.

The Rev. James W. Kennedy will give a book review of "My Son, My Son," by Howard Spring, at 8 o'clock Monday evening at the Church of the Epiphany, at 502 Seminole avenue, N. E., near Little Five Points.

No admission will be charged, but a free will offering will be taken. The review is sponsored by Chapter No. 5 of the Auxiliary.

Faculty Is Honored By Lexington Club

At the September meeting the Lexington Woman's Club entertained in honor of the 15 members of the faculty of Meson Academy, with Mrs. T. W. Crawford and Mrs. C. R. Crawford as hostesses. The president, Mrs. Earl Reynolds, welcomed the return of members to service after two months' vacation. Mrs. B. H. Henderson greeted the honor guests and visitors.

An inspirational message from the district president, Mrs. Stewart Brown, was read; Mrs. W. E. Broach discussed the study course to be adopted, and topics on international relations were brought by Mrs. Hamilton McWhorter. Mrs. Reynolds stated that the program to be presented by Mrs. E. J. Maxwell had been inspired by a panel discussion featured at the recent club institute. The center of the table around which the group taking part in the panel were assembled was decorated with an evergreen tree, in a holder of green and white, the federation colors.

Mrs. Maxwell introduced her key thought: "The Federation—a Sturdy Tree," by asking Mrs. G. A. Barron, "Why do we compare our federation to a sturdy tree?" Mrs. Barron's reply was "The comparison is to me quite apropos, because we as club workers must partake of the growth similar to that of a tree; our roots instead of flourishing in rich well drained soil, have fostered in the minds and hearts of the people. Our work has borne fruit and flower, but particularly to me the comparison seems fitting because 'only God can make a tree.'"

The vast successful work with vision, dreams and aspirations such as our federation has achieved must necessarily have been carried on by God-fearing, God-loving and God-trusting women." Mrs. Maxwell asked, "What do you consider the roots of our tree?" "Its founders, dreams and ideals."

Clayton Clubwomen Plan Many Activities.

September meeting of Clayton Woman's Club was held at the home of Mrs. Della H. Jolly, with Mrs. Jolly, Mrs. R. C. Nicholson, Mrs. J. L. Smith and Mrs. J. B. Parker, hostesses. Mrs. Jolly invited the members to "Sunshine" cottage for the business meeting.

Mrs. L. M. Young, president, welcomed the visitors present, including Mesdames J. B. Satterfield, Byron Turner, Lucile Fisher, T. E. Roane, Lamar Lipscomb, Miss Mary Davis Harper and two new members, Mrs. Russel Ivie and Miss Jane Luck. Twenty-six members were present.

Mrs. Young gave a report on the club's project, canning and preserving foods to be used for hot lunches for the school children who attend Rabun County High school. Mrs. Young stated 1,091 cans had been filled and that the club hoped to have the project in operation at an early date.

Mrs. C. R. Hendrix announced the flower show would be held at the community house, October 1, and Mrs. Lamar Lipscomb invited the members to attend the fair at Lakemont, September 8.

Mrs. Young expressed the appreciation of the club to the committee, Mrs. L. F. Reeves, Mrs. T. L. Bynum and Mrs. Della H. Jolly who assisted the Lions Club and city officials in looking after the community house during the summer months. It was voted to cooperate with the Lions Club in helping the Child Health Clinic for Rabun county.

The program on child welfare and community service presented by Mrs. C. M. Dickerson was most interesting. Mrs. Lucile Fisher talked on welfare work being done in the county, stating 1,089 had been immunized from typhoid fever, smallpox and diphtheria during the observance of Health Month in May and 425 since May. Mrs. Fisher thanked the club for their splendid co-operation.

Miss Mary Davis Harper talked on the Girl Scout troop recently organized. Miss Davis reported Clayton has an A-1 troop and expressed her appreciation to the club for sponsoring and furnishing the necessary funds and leadership. The social hour was enjoyed at "Prove More," Mrs. Jolly's home.

New Members Join Ellijay Woman's Club.

September meeting of Ellijay Woman's Club was held at the clubhouse and hostesses were Mrs. Howard Perry and Mrs. Herbert Tabor. The business session was presided over by the president, Mrs. R. W. Smith, and committees were appointed to serve at the food booth and with the Ellijay community exhibit at the county fair, in co-operation with the Lions Club.

The club is well known for its efficiency in carrying out the program in detail, even going to the extent in carrying out club colors in acquiring new members. Mrs. Green and Mrs. White announced the following new members: Mesdames Joe McCutcheon, H. Simon, Clarke White and Marvin Green. Mrs. Cliff Watkins, of Brooklet, was a visitor.

The program featured "Types of Architecture" and was presented as follows: "Dreaming," pionalogue, Mrs. Dow Hamrick; "American Architecture," Mrs. Ernest Hudson; picture of the month, "Homekeeping Hearts Are Happiest," by William Ladd Taylor, Mrs. Ralph Walton.

Fine Arts Club Is Organized By Fort Valley Woman's Club

The Fort Valley Woman's Club has organized a new club composed of 17 Fort Valley and Peach county girls and young matrons. The club's activities will be along the line of fine arts and the organization will meet bimonthly at the Woman's clubhouse. The officers are: President, Mrs. Lawton Pearson; vice president, Miss Helen Wheeler; secretary, Miss Margaret Lee; treasurer, Mrs. Oscar Pearson Jr.

Other clubs organized by the Fort Valley Woman's Club during its history of 35 years are the Junior Woman's Club and the Fort Valley Study Club.

The Woman's Club is to be hostess to the third district convention in 1939, and Mrs. Maxwell Murray, of the Fort Valley Club is third district president.

The program committee of the Woman's Club for this year is composed of Miss Thelma Wilson, Mrs. C. B. Almon, Mrs. J. E. Broddrick, Mrs. Maxwell Murray and Mrs. W. A. Wood, the president of the club.

An interesting group of programs has been arranged under the subject, the American Home and Fine Arts. There will be visiting speakers, national and state officers present from time to time, a handicraft display, and a mothers-daughters day with other features.

The clubhouse has been redecorated for the new year which begins in October.

Young Matrons' Circle To Meet On Oct. 26 at Capital City Club

Announcement is made today by Mrs. Charles T. Pottinger, president of the Young Matrons' Circle for Tallulah Falls school, that the annual fall meeting of this organization will be held on the morning of October 26 at the Capital City Town Club. Do You Know?

..Have you a household problem to solve? Write your question clearly, sign your name and address, inclose a three-cent postage stamp and mail to the Woman's Editor, Washington Service Bureau, The Constitution, 1013 Thirteenth street, Washington, D. C., for a personal reply. Three of the most interesting answers will be printed here daily.

Q. Are definite periods of mourning prescribed according to the precise degree of relationship?

A. Shorter periods of mourning are becoming more and more customary and many persons prefer not to impose the symbol of their personal grief very long on a world already overburdened.

Q. When substituting cocoa for chocolate in a cake recipe, what proportions should be used?

A. Three tablespoons of cocoa and one-half tablespoon of butter are equivalent to one ounce of chocolate.

Q. When taking leave of a person to whom one has just been introduced, what should one say?

A. "Goodbye, I am very glad to have met you." Or, "Goodbye, Mrs. Jones, I hope I shall see you again."

Immediate Request For Resolutions

All resolutions to be presented at the meeting of the executive board of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs on October 6 must be sent at once to the chairman of the committee on resolutions, Mrs. A. P. Brantley, 51 Inman Circle, Atlanta.

ATLANTA, GA., SEPTEMBER 18, 1938.

THE RAIL PROBLEM

The congress of the United States, the American railroads and the workmen of American railroads this winter face a decision on the future of the industry. No one solution yet advanced has proved satisfactory. Government ownership is definitely opposed when used in the all-inclusive sense. Yet there can be no quibbling about the fact that some path out of the morass must be found, found quickly and sensibly.

A major point made by the railroad managements in their plea for an intelligent program to rescue the roads from their present impasse is that all other forms of transportation, in competition with the railroads, are financed by tax money, that this bounty to competitors has been forcing some of the companies to the wall and throwing out of work an increasing number of employes. It has been authoritatively estimated the railroads today employ 660,000 fewer men than they did in 1929, and they are paying $1,000,000,000 less in wages, an important item in the national income.

Of 147 Class I railroads—those with operating revenues of more than $1,000,000 a year—almost one-third are in receivership and last year $115,000,000, or more, due bondholders was not paid. This does not take into consideration dividends which were not paid on stock and payments on other indebtedness.

The Association of American Railroads now makes the point, in an advertisement appearing in current magazines, that 55 per cent of railroad investment rests in rights of way. Other carriers, they maintain, operate over routes which were provided by the government and are maintained by the same agency. The association claims, at the same time, that any assertion the roads were heavily subsidized by "land grants" is erroneous, citing that less than 10 per cent of the railroads ever received the grants and those who did have long since paid far more than the original value of the land through reduced rates given the government on all its business.

While the association does not, even by implication, hint at the possible solution suggested herewith, the advertisement points to certain factors which give rise to the possibility the railroad management complaint itself suggests a plausible method of retaining competition both among railroads and with competing agencies and at the same time restoring the earning capacity of the individual roads.

This would rest in government purchase of the rights-of-way, as distinct from pure government ownership and operation of the railroads, and the maintenance of these rights through the railroad companies. The argument will be advanced that this great cost would not be justified and the purchase would extend government still further into the field and control of business. The answer is simply that the government today controls the railroad business and that a relaxation of the extent of the control could only result in chaos. The cost would be justified by the restoration of the earning power of the railroads and the renewed pouring of railroad funds into the hands of the workers and the holders of railroad securities remaining after rights-of-way holdings had been adjusted.

It is just as logical for the government to both own and maintain railroad rights-of-way as it is for the government to deepen rivers in the national domain and maintain these rivers for the transportation of goods by private companies in competition with the railroads. The railroads still haul two-thirds of the nation's freight traffic and cessation of railroad operation would disrupt the national economy. The railroads are vital to national defense where the rivers are not.

The bill for maintenance would be footed by the government. This would permit lower freight and passenger rates, greater utilization of technological advances, replacement of old equipment, re-employment of numbers of employes and a collateral increase in volume of business which would be felt in every industry in the United States. The cost would be less than that of many other suggested solutions to the most perplexing problem of modern times. It would undoubtedly be great and no pretense at an estimate is made, but the benefits to be derived through the entire economy would probably more than repay the cost of rights-of-way acquirement.

THE MONTHS OF DANGER.

The fall season, in years past, has brought death riding the streets of Atlanta with a scythe resharpened by earlier darkness, by cold, and by a relaxation of vigilance on the part of pedestrians and motorists. During the summer, the traffic death rate customarily drops, but in the fall the toll rises in a sharp curve.

This year the police department, through the co-operation of motorists, has been able to reduce the tragic accident rate appreciably. But the real test will come during the next three or four months. Any relaxation of control and disregard of safe driving and safe walking rules will send the toll skyrocketing and will nullify the gains made during the last eight and one-half months.

It is possible for Atlantans to save more than a score of lives if every driver and every pedestrian will remember that with the coming of fall and its deepening into winter the tendency toward carelessness increases. The police department can, and will, do its share with a renewed vigilance and strict enforcement of traffic regulations to impress upon the willful the necessity for more care in driving during the months in which the danger is greatest.

The city has been shown that a large measure of the traffic toll is needless and that a proper regard for safety rules and for the rights of other motorists and of pedestrians will save many lives. The fight has only been started. It is a battle that cannot be relaxed until the goal is reached, and even then must be maintained if the prize is to be retained.

The goal can be won. But every person who uses the city streets must remember, or must be made to remember, that only through consistent regard for fundamental rules of safety will the death toll be kept at a minimum.

Make sure your car is safe—and make certain your driving will be safe—before you climb behind the wheel.

IMPROVEMENTS FOR DECATUR

On Wednesday next Atlanta's neighbor city of Decatur will hold an election to ratify the issuance of $125,000 in bonds. The circumstances surrounding this proposal are such that it does not appear reasonable to anticipate any opposition.

Leaders state, however, that there is danger of losing the election through failure of registered voters to cast their ballots. Under the rules for a bond election, more than one-half of those registered must vote and there must be two-thirds of those votes in the affirmative to authorize the bonds. The only fear, it is stated, is that the required number fail altogether to cast their ballots.

The bonds sought are to be used in conjunction with some $300,000 in already allocated federal funds for improvements in the Decatur schools, water and sewerage systems, incinerator, streets, etc. It is stated that no increase in taxes or assessments will be required to retire the bonds, the natural growth of the city being anticipated as more than enough to meet both interest and amortization.

It is pointed out that the improvements listed are, most of them, essential now and all will be imperative within the next few years. If they are not undertaken at this time, Decatur will have to foot the bill entirely, with no federal aid, in the not far distant future.

Every apparent consideration indicates the wisdom of voting authorization for the bond issue and it is believed, after the intensive campaign now under way informs the voters of the need, the result will be an easy victory for the bond proponents.

THE SPINY DOGFISH

On Wednesday last a new submarine was launched at the Portsmouth navy yard. It is the 28th undersea fighting vessel to be built there and was named the U. S. S. Squalus.

Esthetic ears will be shocked by the name. For, surely, the vowel sounds in such a word are the very antithesis of pleasant. "Squalus!" Say it over and note your reaction. Isn't it completely repulsive?

The sound of the word brings impressions of a badly trained infant squalling in the early hours of the morning, when tired parents seek in vain for the restorative of sleep.

Or, it connotes a passing unpleasantness in the marine weather, a minor disturbance. Or, again, it has a hint of something from the insect world, fearsome and shuddery, dying under foot upon the pavement.

The word, after careful consultation with encyclopedia and dictionary, is apparently the scientific nomenclature for a creature of the deep more commonly known as the spiny dogfish.

The character of the spiny dogfish is not described by any available authority. He may be a creature fully worthy of emulation by the undersea fighting ships and fighting men of Uncle Sam.

But his name does not sound pleasant. If the United States navy can do no better than "Squalus" as a name for a new vessel, it would undoubtedly be advisable to ask advice, in future, of the man who christens Pullman cars.

Life, says a noted physicist, is a dream. And swing bands, new Caesars and such are no more than cracker crumbs in a bed.

What an age—with the great acting being done by a duck, a dummy, a fancy skater, a nine-year-old child and a paperhanger.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

WELLES IN DISFAVOR WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—Probably the White House hasn't compiled a written list of men who must be punished for their behavior in the purge primaries. No list is necessary, for the memory of ingratitude is sharper than the serpent's tooth. But, if there were such a list, the first name on it would be that of Sumner Welles.

The able, glacial undersecretary of state has always been regarded as a particular presidential favorite. If usually reliable signs are to be trusted, however, he is now a sort of Abou Ben Adhem with reverse English. The law forbids printing the spicier things now being said about him at the White House, and not only by the President's left-wing intimates, either.

Considering the disastrous situation abroad, and the fact that Welles is one of the really useful officials in the State Department, the reason for his fall is somewhat ironical. To put it brutally, the White House crowd thinks Welles ran out on them in the Maryland primary. Perhaps his greatest crime was his sudden departure for Europe, leaving behind a mere $500 check for Davy Lewis' campaign fund. As he was expected to be the chief financial angel of the campaign against Millard Tydings, this was regarded as strikingly inadequate. But while stingy angeling is the greatest, it is far from being the only misdeed charged up against him.

UNDERSECRETARY'S FINGER From the inception of the purge Sumner Welles had a big finger in the Maryland pie. The President and his henchmen dined secretly at Oxon Hill, the big Welles place across the district border, to discuss the Maryland situation. Welles was always included in the councils of the purge committee, when the problem of destroying Millard Tydings was to the fore. He was, in fact, accepted as an important and valuable ally.

Perhaps his former associates may now be jaundiced by the recollection of that little check. But, at any rate, they now accuse him of having tried from the start to further his personal ambitions. The story you hear at the White House is that Welles began by offering himself as the candidate against Tydings, and that, when he was told he could not run, he then attempted to obtain promises of the Democratic senatorial nomination in 1940.

Of course, in view of the peculiarities of Maryland politics, no prosperous outlander like Welles could be accepted as a candidate. Yet the White House crowd states without equivocation that, when he was given the job of rounding up Maryland organization support for Davy Lewis, he began by asking for organization support for himself two years from now. Moreover, he raised the purge committee's hopes of help from Mayor Howard W. Jackson, of Baltimore, to a point where they were claiming actual alliance with Jackson, as was once recorded here.

SONG IN CHORUS All these little difficulties might have been forgotten, however, if Welles had lived up to expectations as an angel. Again without equivocation, the White House crowd says that he made the handsomest possible promises. Since he is one of the rare well-heeled New Dealers, he would have been expected to do something handsome even without the promises. And all he gave was a picayune $500.

As a kind of snappish appendix to their remarks, the men around the President add that Welles' White House favor was always exaggerated. They say that he gave the appearance of being close to the President because he often insisted on seeing him to ask advice on small matters. The same habit of bothering the President with trifles cost RFC Chairman Jesse Jones his White House standing. And, according to Welles' new enemies, it did not endear Welles to the President either.

Of course, all the talk must be taken with a grain of salt. Welles is an old-time friend and associate of Franklin Roosevelt, and one who has stuck by him when others were deserting. Ambition may have partly prompted his loyalty, but it was gratefully accepted. Yet the fact remains that the above charges are being preferred against Welles both by left-wingers and men who usually sing a different tune. When there is such unanimity in the chorus, it generally means the singing deserves attention.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

There are times when you're feeling defeated,
When life seems too loaded with care,
You'd like to go back to your childhood,
To the home you so loved, over there.

You'd like to go back to your mother,
A boy of ten years, once again,
And lay your tired head on her shoulder,
Forget all your trouble and pain.

And then, with her dear arms around you,
She'd whisper, "Don't cry, be a man,
Just stick out your chin and keep smiling,
You'll win, mother knows that you can!"

It's All On the Surface.

Fears and worries, dreads and premonitions, are the common heritage of man. In all history there has always been ample cause for viewing with alarm. There has, true, likewise been cause for pointing with pride, but man forgets the reasons for pride so easily when his heart is overwhelmed with the causes for alarm.

Today we are fearful for the future of the democratic ideals of government. Today we dread to glance at the daily news, expecting word of the outbreak of new horrors of warfare in Europe or in Asia. Today it seems, many times, as though the world we have known and which has seemed like a rock of security, is trembling to pieces.

But, did you ever pause to remember storms are ever upon the surface, that always the great depths below are quiet and calm?

making homes of happiness and joy.

Youths and maidens are walking in the moonlight, hand in hand, enraptured by the alchemy of nature that draws them together, to create a new home, a new unit in society.

Babies are being born and funeral processions are heading toward the cemetery. Men are enjoying the delights of hunger appeased and cool water still provides nectar for thirsty throats.

The products of the fields and the streams and the air still feed and clothe mankind. The sky is still blue, the sun is warm and the air breathes strength to man.

Though civilization topple, though tragedy stalk all around the world, in the midst of ruin there will still be two people looking into each others eyes with the rapture of love, there will still be children to play, women to smile and men to wrest life from the eternal breast of Mother Nature.

So long as life remains, all good things shall know resurrection in finer form than they have ever experienced in the past.

No matter how the surface is whipped by storm, the deep ocean of humanity is a place of quiet strength and peace.

A Pity She Wrote It.

Insofar as the south goes, it is in more than one respect a pity that Harriet Beecher Stowe wrote "Uncle Tom's Cabin." One of the causes for pity is that the lady wrote other things, too, things that are well worth knowing. But her name, of course, effectually blocked southern recognition of anything else she did—at any rate, until comparatively recent years. But it was Harriet Beecher Stowe who wrote:

When winds are raging o'er the upper ocean
And billows wild contend with angry roar,
'Tis said, far down beneath the wild commotion
That peaceful stillness reigneth evermore.

Far, far beneath, the noise of tempests dieth
And silver waves chime ever peacefully,
And no rude storm, how fierce soe'er it flyeth,
Disturbs the Sabbath of that deeper sea.

Which, however you may criticise it as verse, is not bad philosophy.

Human Nature The Deep Ocean.

For, what I would say, is that despite all the horrors and the worries of the world today, no matter how we may despair over the outlook, the deep quiet sea of human nature remains the same.

Little children are playing and are going to school. Men are plowing in the fields and laboring in the factories. Women are cooking meals for their families and are Twenty-five Years Ago Today.

From The Constitution of Thursday, September 18, 1913:

"Passing through the stormiest session of its history the board of police commissioners shortly before midnight last night completely exonerated Captain J. W. Norman on the charge of conduct unbecoming an officer, which grew out of the report that he had been seen hugging and kissing a young woman in Grant park."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From The Constitution of Tuesday, September 18, 1888:

"A blue-eyed Irish boy, with a pleasant smile and sweet voice, is J. J. Nolan, one of the singers of the Wilson ministrels. Mr. Nolan is young, yet he has made quite a reputation as a composer of ballads."

First Atlantic Cable.

A project in which two powerful governments had failed was completed in 1866 by private enterprise, and Queen Victoria and President Johnson exchanged between London and Washington remarkably unimportant messages signalling the opening of the first successful Atlantic cable. Cyrus Field is given credit in school histories for this achievement. He was only the promoter. The engineer who actually did the work was Samuel Canning.

'Hunch' Profitable.

Frederick Allan Gower was born in 1851 in Sedgwick, Me. When 25 and a reporter on a Providence (R. I.) paper he was sent to interview a Dr. Bell, who claimed to be able to talk over wires. The result of that interview was that he quit newspaper work, became a telephone inventor himself, introduced telephones to France and Britain, and made a great fortune.

Railroad Gauge.

First permanent railroad was placed in operation in Surrey, England, in 1801 without locomotives. William Jessop, in laying the rails four feet, eight and a half inches apart (the width of the carriages used), fixed the standard railway gauge of today.

One Word More

By RALPH McGILL.

The Price of Being a Power Is Expensive. Neville Chamberlain packed up his bag and flew to Germany, visiting Adolf Hitler at Berchtesgaden. The ghosts of Queen Victoria and of Lord Nelson were joined in writhing by many living Englishmen at the thought of what had happened to British prestige.

Many a man, and woman, too, must have thought how very ironical it was indeed that just 20 years after the war in which England led the victorious hosts that defeated Germany, the head of the English government must fly to Germany to sue for peace.

Neville Chamberlain is a man difficult to analyze. I watched him often last spring in London as he sat as prime minister in the house of commons. I read all I could find about him. Dull, funerial, solemn and cold, he wants peace. If it means losing fame, as he has done in the Spanish and Abysinnian wars, he will lose face so long as he keeps out of war. If it meant loss of face flying to Germany he cared not at all so long as British factory chimneys smoke and British ships sail the seas.

He would sell out Czechoslovakia without a qualm if it meant keeping England out of war, her commerce on the seas, and her factories humming. Neville Chamberlain knows very few governments survived the last war. I think he believes the English form of government would not survive another great struggle.

The small nations concern him not at all if they stand in the way of England. He is for appeasement. Let prestige and "face" go by the boards. He is not at all an idealist but always a very practical man. He balanced his budget by refusing to pay the American war debt; he believes Germany is right in demanding her old territory; he would have given them back a colony or so had there not been a storm of protest from the dominions.

It appears now that England will sell out the Czechs.

There is just one chance they won't. The French government would fall, I am sure, if the Czechs were sold out. It would be difficult to form another. The English government might fall and Chamberlain be removed as premier. The younger Englishmen would prefer going to war to letting Hitler grow stronger and stronger and win back by mere threats and bluff territory which some 37,000,000 men died trying to take or defend.

So, Peace Awaits the Conferences. Peace awaits the conferences. It is interesting to note the Czechs have cleaned up the Sudeten party. They have taken off their emblems. The Czechs are in control. They will fight. They have the men and the guns and the food. They will fight and do a better job than did Belgium. And that was quite a nice job.

They know Mr. Chamberlain. They know he would sooner dismember their nation and turn it over to hostile factions than plunge Europe into war. You may think of Central Europe—Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Yugoslavia, Rumania, Bulgaria—all suspicious, all small, all with secret and open alliances. Then Poland, Germany, Turkey and Italy, wanting to know which way the cards are going to fall.

You may look at all that and be thankful you live in the United States of America.

After all, Woodrow Wilson is on the side of Adolf Hitler. It was he who first brought to the world, after the war, the policy of the self-determination of peoples. Hitler has his plebiscites. The Sudetens are German. They want back Germany. There are Polish minorities in Czechoslovakia, Hungarian minorities and Hungarian territory. There are Poles and Slovaks.

The Treaty of Versailles, conceived in hate, has come home again. In just 20 years it has been upset. The old hates, the old wars, the old loyalties—back again in 20 years.

This Will Be A 'Good' War When It Comes. This is going to be a good war when it comes! It won't be a puny one such as the last which killed only 37,000,000 men.

We've got better gasses, much better guns, more men under arms, better defenses and the planes are not to be compared. We have real airplane bombs and we've learned the trick of dropping bombs on cities so as to kill millions of civilians. The largest bombs dropped from planes in the last war weighed only a few pounds. Those of today weigh hundreds of pounds and a new one, tried out in Spain, does damage for a distance of a half mile.

Yes, this is going to be a really good war. If the last one killed just 37,000,000 men this new one, when it comes, ought to kill at least 74,000,000 men, women and children.

The Advantages Of Having A Dictator. You may see, in the row going on, the advantages of having a dictator. Germany is all set with food supply for a couple of years. England, richer, with more ships and money, has enough food for five or six months. The papers say five weeks, but last spring England revealed war stores of food had been purchased sufficient for six months.

England must make decisions in the democratic manner. That is, with all her members of parliament debating and differing. So must France.

Germany smiles. One man speaks there and the nation acts.

There are no debates, no differences of opinion.

Eventually we come into it. I hope only with supplies. Eventually we must decide if we wish to see Germany rule Europe. The English ought to know that if he gets Czechoslovakia that means them. It also means us.

THE KISS OF DEFEAT

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY.

"This is something, Sok," Sam said as we walked through my woods up in Sandisfield. "If you had this climate in New York in the summer, you could sell it for so much per breath."

"That's the old law of demand and supply, Sam," I replied. "The trouble is that if you took this climate to Broadway and 42d street—it wouldn't be worth anything per ton when it got there."

"That's true. That's the way it is with the customers. They want what they don't need and pay plenty to get it. Just now, for instance, there's plenty money going 'round. It's election money . . ."

"What do you mean election money, Sam?" I asked.

"You don't mean to tell me you ain't heard about election money? Why it's what the boys and girls are getting all over the country to vote right. They waited till just before primaries in most places to hand the dough around. Here they promised a road; there they give them a bridge. That means cash money in the town. That's to grease the election.

GRAB THE HAY BEFORE RAIN FALLS

"So the customers are buying just now and we're getting in under the line. Because the way we figure is that after election maybe they won't be passing out any grease and the customers will stop buying. My motto is: Grab the hay before the rain falls."

"And that's what you call 'election money,' is it? I think that's very unpatriotic of you, Sam," I said.

"Don't smear me on the wrist," Sam mimicked me. "Maybe, you guys who only know what you read, think this dough is for good works or something. But the customers know its a handout. And they take it for what it is. They figure it's coming to them because they give the big boys a mandate. And in this world you don't get nothing for nothing."

"You might be pleased with that sort of thing, Sam. But it is destroying the representative form of government," I replied. "We used to be pretty down on politicians who gave some voters $3 or $5 for a vote."

"Chicken feed. The old Tammany boys didn't know how to organize. They give away picnics and coal and they give the kids buttons with some great guy's mug on it. But that stuff is small change.

"Now, we got it all organized in a big way. The government hands out the dough straight from the shoulder. That makes it kosher. No guy can get locked up for giving or taking. It's law. Then the President makes a speech and it's a tip-off. He calls a candidate his friend and the boys and girls are supposed to go up to the polls and vote. There can't be any mistake because the tip-off comes straight from headquarters.

CUSTOMERS VOTE THE OTHER WAY.

"So what happens? So the customers vote the other way. I call it the kiss of defeat. There's this here Maverick. When I was down in Texas selling the trade, they told me Maverick's the cat's meow. So I figure it's a pushover for the big boy who ain't so bad if you like the type. So the President goes down to Texas and he hands San Antonio a nice piece of change and the customers knock the tar out of Maverick until he can't figure if he's in politics or just a brain-truster."

"That's what isn't clear, Sam," I insisted. "Why don't they vote as the President wants them to?"

"It's like this, Sok," Sam replied as we walked through a blackberry patch, picking and eating berries. "Washington is far away. Take here, for instance. We pick these berries and they taste good. Suppose Hitler wants to grab Czecho. Well, just now, I ain't got no time for that. Suppose Hull wants to give England the 5 and 10 cent store trade, I can't give it a thought. I got blackberries on the brain.

"Well, it's like that every place. The President was smart when he called the bankers names. Who cares for bankers? O. K. He says the business men are lousy. Well, everybody figures he means the other guy, so maybe he's right. Then he goes after the doctors and lawyers. Well, so what? So he says the newspapers are crooked. By that time, we're used to it. Every time he pulls out the old gut bucket we figure it's a habit, like Benny Goodman.

"SOMETHING ELSE AGAIN."

"But now he's hitting the home boys. That's something else again. You take this O'Connor. He's been around a long time. The boys know him. They say, well, John maybe ain't a good Republican, but he's been a straight Democrat. So what they want to purge him for? Why don't they purge Tommy Corcoran or Benny Cohen or somebody we don't know and ain't heard about before this New Deal got on the front page? Up where they know John, they don't mind if he's licked. That's part of the game. But a purge is giving a guy the works. It's like the ghost of Dutch Schultz running an election. Nobody likes that.

"And I tell you, it's like that every place. I don't know this old trombone, Cotton Ed Smith. But I traveled the south selling every line I ever carried. Those folks down there from the sweet thing that thinks babies come in satchels to the old colored mammy who's got a life job, don't like northerners. They figure we're low-down foreigners who done them dirt from the War Between the States till today. And from what I hear, maybe they got plenty on their side of the argument.

"All right. Along comes Harry Hopkins and Jimmy Roosevelt and some fellow travelers, like this guy Matthews calls them, and they say 'you southerners ain't Democrats. We give you TVA and WPA and all kinds of money and we tell you straight how to vote.' So these southerners, they figure if it comes from north of the Mason and Dixon line, there must be something phoney about it. They figure they know their own folks pretty good. Been seeing them about for 100 years, more or less, man and boy. Knew the father and the grandpap. And they ain't going to let any New Yorker tell them who's a Democrat.

"HE AIN'T ONE OF THEM"

"You see, Sok. What the President can't figure is that we ain't Germans. Old Charlie Chaplin there in Germany, he can say, 'You ain't a German because your great-grandfather wore whiskers.' But in the south, they settled who was a Democrat before Franklin Roosevelt was born. And he can't change that because he ain't one of them.

"It's the same even in Indiana. I go to Indiana two or three times a year seeing customers. Those folks there ain't so hot for their two senators. The Van Nuys, he's a little better than the funny one, Minton. Still and all, when the President says, 'Hoosiers, you can't vote for Van Nuys because I hate his guts,' the boys upped and voted for him. They don't like that kind of talk from the White House."

"You make me very optimistic, Sam." I said. "If that's how it's going to be all over the country, there's hope."

"What do you mean there's hope? You talk like the world begins and ends with an election. This country ain't coming to no end because somebody is or ain't elected. The way I figure it after this election, those left wingers will fly away because they won't be able to do any more dirty work. They just about done all they can and everybody's on to them.

"I saw a piece in the paper the other day by some guy whose name I forget who said the President has a right to go out and fight for anybody he wants to. Sure he has. The President can do nearly anything he likes the same as you and me. The only difference is if I eat with a napkin under my chin, I only get hell from the frau. But if the President pulls a boner, the whole country gives him the raspberry. That's what happened to the purge."

"So you think the President is unpopular, do you Sam?" I asked hopefully.

"NOT DEAD, BY LONG SHOT"

"Nix. That guy's got more schmalz in his radio voice than Don Ameche and Lowell Thomas put together and multiplied by a hundred. He isn't dead by a long shot. But he had better get wise to himself. The folks got it in for his crowd. They don't like a one of them. They're sore at the purge. They're sore at the lies the brain-trusters tell. They're sore at smearings. They don't want no more phoneys on the supreme court. They want taxes to come down. They hate the Communists worse than ever and they don't like to hear Earl Browder say he and Jefferson is the same thing.

"These guys overdone being little Hitlers. And in this country, we never liked wise guys. You know how it is," Sam added philosophically, "'Live and let live' is the standard American motto. And these guys want it all for themselves—from insurance to buying votes. It jus' ain't the way the customers are used to the divvy."

We had reached the old farm house and sat down to watch a chipmunk steal acorns.

"That chipmunk ain't never heard of Felix Frankfurter or Harry Hopkins," Sam said as he bit the end of his cigar.

Sweet Bird of Memory.

My heart ever clings to a memory sweet,
Of a dear little bird of the long ago,
Whose soft liquid notes come again to my ear
From a forest dark in a pale crest moon
As the night's long vigil he faithfully kept
"Whip-poor-will,
Whip-poor-will,
Whip-poor-will."

Again the soft hush of a twilight returns
With log hanging crest and glittering star,
The little winged creatures so quietly sleep
In the dark leafy boughs of that forest deep,
As softly he sings while night's vigil he keeps:
"Whip-poor-will,
Whip-poor-will,
Whip-poor-will."

Dear little songster of a faraway past,
I'll cherish your song in my heart to the last.
As in memory's halls of the long ago
It wafts to my soul from that forest so dark,
While the night's long vigil you faithfully keep:
"Whip-poor-will,
Whip-poor-will,
Whip-poor-will."

HELENE THOMPSON.

Scholar.

I ain't never been to college
An' mah years in school were few.
I knows I don't speak english
Lak' de best ob folks do.

At figurin' I aint no good;
'Bove ten is whar I quits;
I knows if I wurk all de day
I gwine to git fo' bits.

My edication has been short,
'Cept it aint in no rut—
Cause I knows "when" and "why" and "how"
To keep mah big mouff shut!

FRED D. THOMAS.

Sunset Scene.

A lone boatman sits and seeks
His food from nature's store;
His little brood like hungry birds
Race on the near-by shore.

A mocking bird upon a bough
Fills twilight with its song;
For bird and boatman breath is sweet,
And life not over long.

The wind dies down, the waters move
In silence to the sea;
And night drops down in gentle folds,
Like mist upon the lea.

BUILDING and REALTY NEWS

AUGUST BUILDING BEST FOR SIMILAR MONTH IN YEARS

Topped Last August 12 Per Cent; Home Building Up One-Third.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Building construction last month was the best for any August since 1930, the F. W. Dodge Corporation reported today, topping July by one-third and the same month last year by 12 per cent.

Contracts awarded in the 37 states east of the Rockies totaled $313,141,000, the statistical organization stated, compared with $329,799,000 in July and $281,217,000 a year ago.

Residential building has set the pace in the swift advance of this important arm of the national economy, and is looked to by many economists to lead the country from the current recession.

Home construction contracts for the month approximated the best August since 1929, more than one-third higher than the like period last year, at $99,732,000.

After allowance for seasonal factors and changes in construction costs, residential building in the final week of August shot up to the highest level for any month since May, 1931. This barometer, compiled by the Associated Press, was the first of the major industrial series to hit bottom during the recession—in February of this year—and has since scored a sensational advance of 83 per cent.

A flood of government dollars intended to stimulate recovery boosted last month's public works and utilities total to $126,093,000, some 60 per cent better than July and 40 per cent ahead of August last year.

The relatively low level of industrial activity was reflected in non-residential construction, including primarily factory building, which lagged 25 per cent behind the comparable month of 1937, although topping July by a fair margain.

August totals in the southeast territory were, 1938, $9,897,000; for 1937, $6,979,000.

CASCADE AVENUE BUILDING SOLD

Three recent sales consumated by Allan-Goldberg Realty Company, aggregating $43,500, includes the sale of a new ultra-modern store building at 811-17 Cascade avenue, at Beecher street, to a client at a price of $27,000. The seller was Paul Baron. The transaction was all cash above the loan. The building includes four stores, all of which are under lease.

The sale of seven apartments and one store building at 682-690 Magnolia street and 677-681 Delbridge street from Charles Cone to Jack Mazier for $10,000, all cash above the loan.

The sale of 10 acres on Rock Spring road, just north of Piedmont road, from C. N. Hutchinson to George C. Linnen and Walter Dargan for $6,500.

All of these sales were negotiated by George Ware, Seymour Hirsch, and Sam Goldberg.

S. SELIG TO SPEAK AT BOARD LUNCHEON

According to announcement made by the luncheon committee of the Atlanta Real Estate Board, of which Jesse Draper is chairman, Simon Selig Sr. will be the principal speaker at the luncheon meeting Wednesday, September 21, at 12:30 o'clock, at the Athletic Club.

Mr. Selig has just returned from a trip to Europe, and will give his impressions of conditions there at this time. Since this is such a crucial period in the history of the world, it was opinion of the committee that it would be most interesting to hear first-hand information on the situation in the lands across the waters

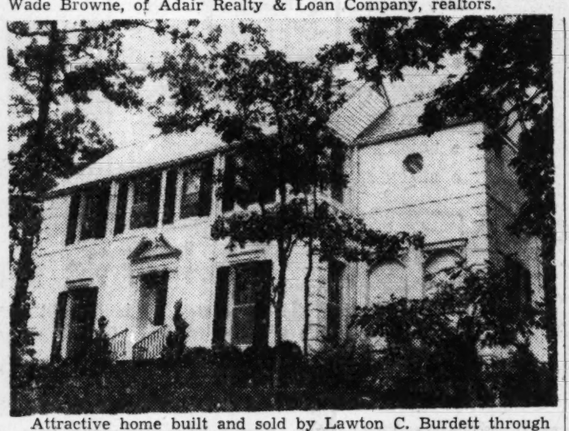

Many Pretty Suburban Residences in Week's Tranfers

Here's an attractive Beecher Hill home, on Beecher road, in the $6,500 to $7,500 class, recently completed for Mr. and Mrs. F. I. Clements, on a lot 240x260, in Beecher Hills subdivision. The lot was purchased only a few months ago from George L. Wilson, selling agent.

No. 43 Roxboro road, a very attractive five-room asbestos sheet rock home, located on a lot 70 by 210. House has automatic gas heat. Purchased from North Fulton Holding Company by Robert G. Sauer. Mr. and Mrs. Sauer will occupy same immediately. Price $6,500 cash. Sale was made by Wade Browne, of Adair Realty & Loan Company, realtors.

Attractive home built and sold by Lawton C. Burdett through the Burdett Realty Company, realtors, to Dr. Hershel C. Crawford as a home. It is at 235 Pine Valley road, near Argonne drive, on a lot 120x400. No consideration was announced, but it is in the $18,000 to $20,000 price class. It has nine rooms and is most modern.

Building Sells for More Than Half-Million

Business building at 197-199 Peachtree street, occupied by the Woolworth Company, sold by the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company to Peachtree Realty Corporation, a New York corporation, for $550,000. The present occupants have a 30-year lease. Sale price, with one exception 13 years ago, was the largest ever paid for property on the inside of a block. The lot is 60x244, making the price more than $9.100 per front foot. Forrest Adair, of Forrest & Frank Adair, negotiated the sale. (Complete details of sale on first page of main news.)

AIR RESERVE GROUP NAMES ATLANTA MAJOR

Major William Plummer, of Atlanta, was elected secretary of the Air Reserve Officers' Association of the United States at the convention in Dayton, Ohio, it was learned here yesterday.

Other officers named were Lieutenant A. H. Near, Louisville, Ky., president; Captain Brent Merchant, Washington, D. C., and Major John R. Ransom, Kansas City, Mo., vice presidents, and Captain Lawrence Eyler, Dayton, treasurer. New York city was chosen tentatively for next year's meeting.

Lens and Shutter—Camera Flashes

If your technique is off and you get a headache over proper exposure, you should take time out to read this column of news about Atlanta camera fans, which is appearing in The Constitution as a regular weekly feature. Sponsored by the Atlanta Camera Club, this column is designed for all amateur photographers. The Atlanta Camera Club itself is an amateur organization composed of 70 candid shot enthusiasts interested in better photography. Whether you know a shutter from a lens you, too, can join the club and take part in its activities, which include educational lectures, pictures competitions and traveling exhibits. All amateur photograpers are invited to submit their best candid photographs to the Picture Editor of The Constitution for use in this column each Sunday.

By LEONARD ROSINGER.

Robert Schwab brouht to light a pressing problem that confronts every amateur protographer, and what's more Mr. Schwab is going to do something about it.

"I've taken about 2,000 pictures," stated Schwab, "and while my chauffeur tells me that they're mighty fine ones, I have great difficulty in finding a larger audience to look at them. I've just returned from my vacation with 400 more shots and to encourage lookers, I'm announcing this scale of prices that I will pay to anyone who wants to devote their time to this work."

Mr. Schwab (with tongue in his cheek) offers these prices to lookers:

War pictures, 50 cents an hour.

Telescopic views of races, (where the horses are very small), $1.50 an hour.

Landscales, out of focus, $6 an hour.

Baby pictures of any sort, $50 an hour.

Now while Mr. Schwab's proposal is made with a twinkle in his eye, there actually is an underlying truth in his problem. Half the pleasure of picture-making is picture-showing, whether it be to one's family, one's friends or an international salon. That's one reason why the Atlanta Camera Club's monthly competitions are enjoyed by members, for it gives every participant a chance to exhibit his handicraft in comparison with others.

Night Picture Contest.

A subject more difficult than the average assignment is the October prize contest for Camera Club members. Title of the competition is "Outdoors at Night," and winning pictures are to be entered in the national contest sponsored by the Manhattan Camera Club. Under this general heading a wide variety of subject material can be classified and here is one contest where the inexpensive camera with a slow lens is just as good as the more expensive variety. Long exposures on a tripod are necessary to get outdoor pictures at night and one's ingenuity in locating an artistic subject is of greater importance than an f-2 lens.

The current month's competition titled "In the Park" brought forth such a flood of attractive entries that the display boards were soon full and surplus entries had to be tacked to the walls. It seems also that the quality of material submitted by club members improves with each meeting. More careful arrangements; a nicer finish and better tonal qualities are in far greater evidence than ever before.

Any amateur is welcome to join in the club's work and enter his pictures in the monthly salons.

Fresh Viewpoint on Atlanta.

With the announcement of the chamber of commerce that handsome prizes are to be awarded for pictures best showing Atlanta scenes, many amateur photographers will swing into action. There's always a certain laziness to be overcome in picture making, and it's surprising how a prize award will help to get over this inertia. The chief consideration in making prize-winning pictures is avoidance of trite subejcts. Judges got weary from looking at ordinary pictures, snapped in a hurry with no imagination given to their arrangement. If you're after prize money, think twice before you settle on your subject and see if you can't create a photograph that will cause judges to say: "Ah, here's one that has a fresh viewpoint."

Another grave error in submitting pictures for contests is lack of sharpness in the prints. Remember that when a picture is to be reproduced by any printing process, it must have lots of contrast between the blacks, greys and whites, and it should be in focus. The blurred picture that requires its maker's explanation as to what it represents, has no place before the photoengraver's camera.

"Skater's Waltz," an action picture made by Sidney Smith. To "freeze" the rapid motion of the skaters, Smith exposed his film at the high speed of 1-1000 of a second with lens aperture of f-8.

JAPANESE SMASH TOWARD RAILROAD

Force Is Within 50 Miles of Its Goal.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Japanese forces driving westward north of the Yangtze river toward Hankow reported tonight they had captured Hwangchwan, in Honan province, and continued to within 50 miles of the important Peiping-Hankow railway.

The Japanese are aiming at Sinyang from which it is only 100 miles south along the railway to Hankow.

A second Japanese column operating westward south of the Yangtze reported it had reached a point about 50 miles southwest of Kiukiang, Yangtze river base of naval operations against Hankow.

NEW CHINESE ENVOY WILL PAY VISIT TO U. S.

CHUNGKING, China, Sept. 17. (UP)—Dr. Hu Shih, internationally known educator and philosopher, was designated today by the foreign office as Chinese ambassador to Washington.

He will succeed Dr. C. T. Wang, resigned.

Dr. Hu Shih is now in England lecturing and is expected to leave London for New York next week.

MARIE LONG TO GET HIGHER SCHOOL PAY

Civil Service Employe Assigned To Teach in Hapeville.

Miss Marie Long, whose right to civil service protection was upheld last week in a ruling of the state supreme court, has been assigned to teach at the North Avenue school, Hapeville, at a salary of $157 a month, Jere A. Wells, superintendent of the Fulton county school system, announced yesterday.

Wells asserted she would have earned a $7 a month increment if she had taught last year, and since the court held that she should have been permitted to teach without signing a contract, she was entitled to $157 a month instead of the $150 she will draw for last year's services although she worked only one month during the 1937-38 school term.

The school superintendent issued the following statement regarding the ruling in Miss Long's court suit:

In its opinion in the case of Marie Long vs. the Fulton County Board of Education, the Georgia supreme court held that since Miss Long had been employed in the Fulton county system for a period of more than three years prior to July 1, 1937, and had been tendered a contract for the succeeding year she was entitled to automatic reemployment under the civil service act for teachers. The court also held that since Miss Long had been entitled to reappointment for the school year just ended, under the terms of the civil service act she was entitled to receive her salary for that year. No other question or issue was decided by the court.

The civil service act provides that the board of education, in applying the law, "Shall adopt such rules and regulations for the persons who are, under this act, placed under civil service, including those employed in the future, so that they shall serve during good behavior and efficient service." Pursuant to this provision the Fulton County Board of Education continued in effect a number of rules and regulations that were generally applicable throughout the county system. One of these rules was that if a woman teacher should marry she would not be reappointed for a subsequent year. Other rules relate to contribution to a retirement fund, in participation in group insurance, in the right of the board to transfer teachers or principals for the good of the system.

In arriving at its decision, the court quoted the provision of law directing the board of education to promulgate rules and regulations, but the court expressed no opinion and made no intimation as to whether any one of the rules adopted by the Fulton County Board of Education was valid or invalid. Neither the trial court nor the appellate court has expressed any view on the validity of the provisions respecting the rights of teachers to be retained in the event of their marriage.

SPANISH FRONTIER REPORTS DEADLOCK

Lines in Ebro River Sector Remain Static.

HENDAYE, France (at the Spanish frontier), Sept. 17.—(AP)—Complete deeadlock on all fronts in the Spanish civil war was reported today in government and insurgent advices.

Dispatches from Spain said the lines in the major Ebro River, Valencia and Estremadura sectors remained static after a week of quiet broken only by local raids, artillery bombardments and air bombings.

A conditional offer to co-operate with a neutral commission to avoid bombardment of civil populations was made by the insurgents through the head of their air forces, General Alfredo Kindelan.

WINSHIP WILL RESIGN, NEWSPAPER DECLARES

SAN JUAN, P. R., Sept. 17.—(UP)—The newspaper El Mundo said today that Blanton Winship, governor of Puerto Rico, was scheduled to resign soon to take a diplomatic post.

His successor, the newspaper said, will be either Maury Maverick, Texas congressman defeated for renomination, or Frank Porter Graham, president of the University of North Carolina.

CHAMBER FOSTERS ATLANTA PICTURES

Moves to Attract Visitors and Pay Rolls With 'Amateurs' Aid.

Atlanta will become a laboratory for amateur photographers in the next six weeks.

The Chamber of Commerce is offering prizes—totaling several hundred dollars to amateur photographers for the best pictures of Atlanta's buildings, points of interest and people, Chess Lagomarsino, chairman of the Chamber's public relations committee, announced yesterday.

Beginning Monday and for the next six weeks entries are to be sent to the Chamber of Commerce. They will be judged on their value in (1) attracting tourists to the city; (2) attracting pay rolls, and (3) presenting Atlanta as an attractive place in which to live.

And there'll be plenty of rewards for the winners, too. Individual prizes of $50 and $25, and additional merchandise prizes are to be offered.

Pictures submitted should not be smaller than 2½ inches by 4½ inches, and prints will be accepted up to any size the amateur wishes to submit. The negatives must be made available to the Chamber of Commerce and the amateur may submit as many photographs as he desires.

It is not necessary that the pictures be taken during the period of competition, Chamber officials pointed out. Amateurs may dig back into their files and submit prints from negatives taken during last spring and summer. The amateur should place his name on the reverse side of the entry.

Samples of the better photographs submitted each week will be printed in The Constitution. The photographs also will be placed on exhibition in several places throughout the city.

180 BIRD PICTURES TO GO ON DISPLAY

High Museum Will Show Rare Collection Today.

The Walter C. Barnwell collection of rare bird pictures, many of them more than a century and a half old, will go on display for one week in Gallery No. 3 of the High Museum of Art beginning at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

The display will be open to the public without charge and consists of more than 180 hand-tinted etchings, chromo lithographs and wood-cuts. Most of the etchings are by Stewart, whose work is thought to have laid the foundation for Audubon.

In addition to the bird exhibit, one section of the early American show is being held over. This consists of 14 hand-tinted etchings of French court beauties including "Napoleon's First Love," "Charlotte Corday," "Mme. Junot," and others. The museum is open from 2 o'clock to 5 o'clock on Sundays and from 9 o'clock to 5 o'clock on week days.

CLARK UNIVERSITY OPENS WEDNESDAY

Institution Begins Its 72d Session.

Clark University will open its seventy-second session Wednesday with two additions to the faculty.

Registration will begin tomorrow and continue through Tuesday and classes will start at 8 o'clock Wednesday morning. Registration in the extension department will be held Tuesday and Wednesday with classes scheduled to begin Monday, September 26.

Additions to the faculty are D. J. Jeffray, dean of men and instructor in education, and Marie R. Vernon, dean of women and instructor in psychology.

COST ACCOUNTANTS GET NEW OFFICERS

Atlanta Chapter to Install Tuesday Night.

New officers and directors of the Atlanta chapter of the National Association of Cost Accountants will be installed at 6:30 o'clock Tuesday night at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

Officers are Grady Powell, president; Charles B. Merritt and Herman W. Boozer, vice presidents; J. R. Walters, secretary; L. L. Davis, treasurer, and T. M. Clement, Kenneth T. Rudd, J. E. Dickey, C. D. Harrison, O. H. Williams, R. S. Little, P. W. Christian, J. J. Doran, Russell Baker and D. A. Ratliff, directors.

Subject for discussion will be the new bankruptcy act with Russell Baker as principal speaker. F. J. Henry will talk on business forecasts and economic trends.

A large life insurance company in Kentucky reported its 1938 business was running double that of 1937.

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION

VOL. LXXI., No. 98. ATLANTA, GA., SUNDAY MORNING, SEPTEMBER 18, 1938. M SECTION

Georgia B.W.M.U. Announces Meetings And Day of Prayer

October has been designated as the month for the divisional meetings of the Baptist W. M. U. of Georgia. The state is divided into seven divisions with a vice president to direct the work and carry out the plans of the union in each division. The vice president are: Mesdames George Allen, north central division; J. L. Clegg, northwest division; W. A. Adkins, east central division; W. O. Mitchell, north central division; E. V. Deaton, west central division; Peter Kittles, southeast division; R. L. Hall, southwest division.

The dates and places of meetings have been announced as follows: Wednesday, October 5, at LaGrange; October 6, Griffin; October 11, LaFayette; October 12, Vartersville; October 14, Canton; October 15, Braselton; October 18, Toccoa; October 19, Gainesville; October 20, Athens; October 21, Tennelle; October 25, Millen; October 26, Waycross; October 27, Cairo; October 28, Edison.

The W. M. U. of Georgia has designated Wednesday, September 28, as the day on which all Woman's Missionary Union organizations will have a special season of prayer and offering for state missions. This includes all of the young people's organizations as well as young women's auxiliaries, girls' auxiliaries, Royal Ambassador chapters and Sunbeam Bands. The theme is, "Georgia, a Golden Opportunity."

A committee composed of Mrs. E. E. Steele, Mrs. Ryland Knight, Mrs. Paul S. Etheridge and Miss Mary Christian arranged the program and request the following workers to contribute articles to supplement the program: Mrs. Frank Burney, Mrs. Peter Kittles, Mrs. F. W. Withoft, Miss Dollie Hiett and Dr. James W. Merritt.

The offering in 1937 was $7,320.38. The gift goal for state missions this the jubilee year is to be a 10 per cent increase over what was given last year.

Mrs. Carwyle Observes 90th Birthday.

ROME, Ga., Sept. 17.—The friends of Mrs. Mary E. Carwyle throughout Georgia and Alabama will join with her friends in Rome in congratulations to her on the celebration of her 90th birthday, which will be quietly observed at home home, 209 East Eleventh street, on September 25.

Born in 1848, her early girlhood was spent in Wetumpka, Ala., but in the early 80's she moved to Rome as Mrs. Jack Miller. In 1890, she married F. M. Carwyle, of Rome. Since his death, she has become one of the leading business women of Floyd county.

Early in life she united with the Baptist church, and has for more than 75 years been a member of that denomination. She was one of the organizers and a charter member of the Maple Street Baptist church here. In 1932, Constellation Chapter of the O. E. S. presented her with a life membership in that lodge.

Mrs. Carwyle has two daughters, Mrs. I. M. Flemming, of Atlanta, and Mrs. T. L. Dickinson, of Billingsley, Ala. She has eight granddaughters, three grandsons, six great-granddaughters, four great-grandsons, and one great-great-granddaughter, Miss Dorothy Ruth Hovey, of Daytona Beach, Fla.

Among the relatives who will come to Rome for the celebration are her daughter, Mrs. I. M. Flemming; granddaughter, Mrs. H. H. Harden; great-grandsons and daughter, Harper H. Harden Jr., and Ida Kennery Harden; her grandson, John K. Flemming, and Mrs. John K. Flemming; Mrs. E. K. Flemming, granddaughter; great-grandsons, Fred and Frances Dale, and Mrs. Fred Dale, her granddaughter, with whom she makes her home.

Miss Ruth Mathis Weds Mr. Hawkins.

Of interest is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Ruth Mathis and H. Marion Hawkins, which was solemnized September 11 in the chapel of Second-Ponce de Leon Baptist church, Rev. Ryland Knight officiating.

Music was rendered by Mrs. Hugh L. Perryman.

Miss Caroline Mathis was her sister's maid of honor, and Colonel Robert Tisinger, of Carrollton, was the groom's best man. The ushers were Kenneth Cooper and Bob West.

The bride was lovely in a traveling costume of dark green crepe, and carried a bouquet of orchids and valley lilies.

Following the wedding Mr. and Mrs Hawkins left for points of interest in Florida. Upon their return they will reside with the bride's mother, Mrs. Eva Mathis, in Peachtree Hills avenue.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Mathis and little daughter, Sylvia, of Athens; Miss Caroline Mathis, of Washington, D. C., and Colonel and Mrs. Robert Tisinger, of Carrollton.

Lenox Park Club.

Lenox Park Garden Club met recently at the Lenox Park field office.

Interesting reports were given by each chairman of work done during the summer, the outstanding being that done by Mrs. Zack Layfield, who has furnished flowers for the wards at Grady hospital throughout the summer. Mrs. Walker Pendleton gave a report of the exhibits sent to garden center.

The program chairman, Mrs. Bruce Hughes, introduced the speaker, Mrs. J. J. Nicholson, who gave a talk on "Tulips."

Miss Margaret E. Smith Marries Robert South at St. Luke's Church

Miss Margaret Elizabeth Smith became the bride of Robert William South, of Louisville, Ky., at a beautiful ceremony taking place yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock at St. Luke's Episcopal church. The Rev. W. H. K. Pendleton, of Spartanburg, S. C., officiated, in the presence of relatives and a limited number of friends.

Miss Emily Parmalee, organist, and Miss Minna Hecker, soloist, gave a program of nuptial music prior to and during the ceremony.

The church was effectively decorated with the bridal motif of green and white. The chancel was banked with palms and ferns, interspersed with tall floor baskets of white lilies and gladioli. Placed at intervals were cathedral candelabra holding burning white tapers. Vases of white lilies were placed on the altar.

Ushers were Guy Smith Jr., Charles Smith, Sam Scott and Thomas Scott Jr., and the best man was Thedore Marston, uncle of the bride.

Miss Eleanor Louise Smith, sister of the bride, was her maid of honor and only attendant. She wore a beautiful model of rose taffeta, fashioned empire style, with a halo of ostrich tips with shoulder veil, and she carried an old-fashioned nosegay.

The lovely bride entered with her father, Willis LaRue Smith, who gave her in marriage. She was becomingly gowned in her wedding robes of white bridal satin. The princess model featured a sweetheart neckline, with pearl clips, a skirt with panel inserts to form a fullness at the waistline, and puffed sleeves with pointed cuffs over the wrist. The bride wore a fingertip veil of illusion tulle, caught to her hair with a coronet of orange blossoms, and carried a white satin prayerbook showered with lilies of the valley.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Kendrick entertained at a reception at their home on Sherwood road. Receiving with the hosts and bridal couple were Miss Eleanor Marston, aunt of the bride, and Miss Eleanor Louise Smith. Assisting in entertaining were Mrs. J. C. Savage, Mrs. A. C. Lawrence, Misses Elizabeth and Eulalia Miller and Misses Betty and Jane Kendrick.

Bright-colored early fall blossoms decorated the home. The bride's table in the dining room was overlaid with a lace cloth and had for its central decoration the three-tiered wedding cake, topped by a miniature bride and groom and bordered with white flowers. White tapers burned in silver candlesticks at either end of the table. Mr. and Mrs. Paul S. Carroll gave musical selections during the reception.

Later, the bridal couple left on a wedding trip, following which they will reside in Louisville. Mrs. South traveled in a frock of green velveteen worn with a three-quarter-length coat of tan Shetland, an imported green velour hat and brown accessories. Her shoulder cluster was of talisman roses.

The marriage of Miss Smith and Mr. South united representatives of well-known southern families. The lovely bride is the daughter of Willis LaRue Smith and the late Mrs. Smith, who was Miss Ethel Louise Marston prior to her marriage. She was graduated from Girls' High school and Converse College, and this month was graduated from the Louisville School of Medical Technology.

Mr. South is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Breckenridge South, of San Antonio, Texas, his mother being the former Miss Lucile LeFant, of San Antonio. He is a graduate of Wake Forest and the Louisville School of Medical Technology and is now associated with Kahn Laboratory in Louisville.

Mrs. Garrett Weds Mr. Buchanan.

Mrs. Frances Robertson Garrett and Carl William Buchanan were married on August 9, at the home of the Rev. E. M. Altman, pastor of the Grant Park Baptist church, performing the ceremony.

The bride was gowned in a cape ensemble of pink alpaca. She wore a navy blue felt hat with shoulder-length veil, and her other accessories were also of navy blue. Her bouquet was of pink rosebuds.

After the ceremony the young couple left for a wedding trip to the mountains of north Georgia.

Mrs. Buchanan is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Robertson and granddaughter of the late Rev. J. Franklyn Greene, pioneer settler of Georgia, and niece of the Rev. J. L. Greene. She attended school in Atlanta and the Gainesville High school.

The couple will reside in Atlanta, where the groom is employed by the Georgian-American.

Sally Forth Investigates "Collecting Instinct" of Prominent Atlantans

Hobbies Include Barber Bottles, Staffordshire Dogs, Luster Ware

By Sally Forth.

HOBBIES have acquired a new and quickened interest. Formerly they were considered a fortification against boredom, but now they are what the doctor ordered, it seems. For physicians everywhere are advocating them as a means of building health and stimulating interest. Which is not by way of suggesting that all hobby addicts need restoratives, for many Atlantans, for example, find the keenest pleasure in their varied and amusing collections.

For instance, there is Mrs. Trammell Scott, who delights in a most unusual hobby. She collects barber bottles, and her collection is one of which she may justly be proud.

She became interested in barber bottles last year while visiting in Michigan, and since that time has assembled bottles from Florida, Wisconsin, Louisiana, Minnesota, Alabama, Georgia, Tennessee and Michigan! Since her hobby became known, friends and acquaintances from practically everywhere have contributed to her supply, and at present her sunroom is beautified with glass shelves containing rows and rows of bottles in all the colors of the rainbow.

Several months ago an old negro from Dahlonega approached her with a bottle which he wished to sell. However, he was very particular about her character references, and demanded to know if she were a Christian. He went on to say that the fundamentals of Christianity were love, faith, hope and "truthfulness," after which he "eyed" her bottles and asked for assurance that she never kept "whisky in 'em"! Satisfied with her answer, he confessed that she "looked like a Christian," whereupon he sold her at a ridiculous price a most unlovely bottle!

Perhaps the most valuable of Mrs. Scott's collection is a group made in what is called the "Stars and Stripes" pattern. Part of these are ruby-colored with iridescent stripes, and the others are crystal clear with stripes resembling sea foam.

One of her most prized bottles is made of cameo glass, and features an enamel woman's head on a pale amethyst background.

It is interesting to note that all of Mrs. Scott's bottles are from 30 to 60 years of age!

Mrs. Clark Broward's collection of Staffordshire dogs is another interesting hobby which had its beginning in a distant city. She was visiting in Washington, D. C., when a friend presented her a handsome pair of luster dogs. Mrs. Broward was so pleased with them that she began a collection, to which friends and relatives have contributed through the years. Her most interesting Staffordshire figure, of which she is very proud, is a Rockingham china pillow, and contains a hidden inkwell which is discovered only upon close inspection. In recent years Staffordshire dogs have become a fad and, although they served trivial purposes in the past, they now have achieved great distinction, and may repose behind the glass doors of a secretary to be admired.

Mrs. William McDougall's hobby is a valuable collection of luster, which she started 15 years ago. Not content with accumulating fine pieces, Mrs. McDougall also studies lusterware, and is considered an authority on it by her many friends.

Many pieces owned by this Atlantan are of historic value and commemorate important past events. Among these is a unique pitcher adorned with a miniature of Cornwallis' head. Another is a rare Liverpool mug containing a description of the largest ship ever afloat!

Mrs. McDougall boasts that she has in her array a specimen of practically every type of luster, and her dining room is greatly beautified by an antique Chippendale cabinet containing the shining display.

So proud is she of her rare collection that she has designed two Georgian recessed cabinets for her new home on Blackland road, which will display to advantage the varicolored ware.

FRANCES and Ben Bailey will celebrate their first wedding anniversary today at their home on West Andrews drive. Throughout the day the newlyweds of a year ago will receive congratulations from their hosts of friends and this evening they will entertain the group who served as bridesmaids and groomsmen in their wedding at dinner.

Sally recalls the brilliant nuptials performed at St. Mark church on September 18 of last year that united the former Frances North and Ben Bailey. Since that time they have been popular members of society's young married ranks.

When the Baileys leave the latter part of this week for a motor trip to Florida, they will traverse much of the same territory over which they traveled on their wedding trip. "A sort of second honeymoon," explained Frances, when Sally phoned to offer her congratulations upon the approach of the first wedding anniversary.

TO SAY THAT they are popular members of the younger set would be putting it mildly. And to mention two recent social events in which both their families took prominent parts would be revealing too much.

But Sally has heard, and from very good authority, that wedding bells will ring in December and the ceremony will take place at one of the better known churches on Peachtree road.

The future bride-elect could easily be called one of the "glamour girls" of Atlanta, for her attractiveness, plus her smart appearance on all occasions, makes her a sought-after figure at any gathering.

Equally as attractive in a very masculine manner is the future groom-elect who fills the requirements of "tall, dark and handsome." He is very athletic and is a splendid dancer.

Have you clues enough to guess their identity?

THE GYPSY CLUB, that band of ten popular sub-debs who organized solely for the purpose of having good times together, has adopted a most unique method of electing officers. The names of all members are written on paper slips and dumped into a hat, it seems. Then a name is drawn for each office.

The recent election resulted with Susan Garrett being chosen president, Cato Whelchel as secretary, and Catherine Tift as treasurer. The retiring officers are Laura Palmer, president; Alice Johnson, secretary, and Myrtice Claire Johnson, treasurer.

Completing the Gypsy Club roster are Harriet Callaway, Ione Mercer, and Dorothy Giddings. The tenth member, Harriet Zahner, recently moved to Greenville, S. C., with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kenyon Zahner, for residence, much to the regret of the Gypsies.

Atlanta Woman's Club To Hold Second Institute Next Wednesday

The Atlanta Woman's Club will hold its second annual institute Wednesday from 10 o'clock through the lunch hour. Mrs. John MacDougald, chairman of institutes, will lead the meeting with the assistance of Mrs. Alva Maxwell, president.

Mrs. Howard McCall, parliamentarian of the Georgia Federation, will lead a parliamentary drill. Mrs. John D. Evans, president of the fifth district, will speak on "Forums for Club Women—As Benefits to Them." "The General Federation—An Incentive to All Federated Club Women" will be given by Mrs. Albert Hill, president of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, with time for questions.

A talk on "The Georgia Federation Quiz" will be given by Mrs. Lamar C. Rucker, chairman of institutes in the Georgia Federation. "The Atlanta Woman's Club—An Integral Part of the Federation of Women's Clubs" will be the subject of Mrs. Alva G. Maxwell's talk.

Mrs. Vernon Brown, president of the Junior Atlanta Woman's Club, will speak on "Junior Club Women and Their Help to the Club."

A panel discussion, led by Mrs. J. T. McGee, the chairman of institutes in the fifth district, will include as speakers Mrs. Augustus Bailey, on citizenship; Mrs. E. W. Swann, on education; Mrs. William S. Taylor, on international relations; Mrs. Joseph Regenstein, on Americanization; and Mrs. A. P. Treadwell, community service. These speakers are chairmen in these departments of the Atlanta Woman's Club.

A talk at the lunch hour on "National Parks in the United States" will be given by Mrs. J. N. McEachern, who has just returned from an extended tour of the western states. Reservations for luncheon may be made by calling the club, Hemlock 4636.

Garden clubs are invited to an illustrated lecture on wild flowers by Mrs. William R. Barbour, of the United States Forestry Department, on September 20, at 11 o'clock.

A business meeting will be held at 10:30 o'clock in the Palm Room. Mrs. E. L. Emery, chairman of the garden division, will preside.

Miss Evans Becomes Bride of Mr. Coppock

COLUMBUS, Ga., Sept. 17.—Dr. I. C. Evans announces the marriage of his daughter, Miss Sara Evans, to John W. Coppock Jr., of Columbus, the ceremony having been quietly solemnized on September 3. The couple is residing in Columbus, where Mr. Coppock is a prominent figure in business circles.

The bride is the lovely young daughter of Dr. Evans and the late Mrs. Evans, and she is the sister of Mrs. Frances Walker and Cuthbert Evans, of Columbus. She attended the University of Georgia, where she was popular in student activities, and since finishing school has been an admired member of the younger set here. Of the Spanish blond type, her unusual beauty combines light hair with deep brown eyes.

The groom is the elder son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Coppock, of Columbus. His brother, J. I. Coppock, is a student at Georgia Tech. Since completing his education he has been connected in business with the Hardaway Construction Company. He and his bride will form attractive additions of the younger married contingent of society here.

Classifications Are Announced For Next Spring's Tulip Show

Classifications are announced for the tulip show to be presented by the Tulip Study Club here next April 11 and 12 at Rich's store.

All classes except artistic arrangement will be open to individuals in Atlanta and surrounding communities who grow 25 or more tulips.

Artistic arrangements open to garden clubs only and entered under garden club name.

Exhibits entered by members of the Tulip Study Club will be on a non-competitive basis with individuals and other garden clubs.

In the Darwin tulips' exhibit the following groups may be entered: Pink or rose; white or tinted; yellow or orange; red; violet heliotrope, lilac or purple; dark maroon, purple or black.

The following groups may be entered in the cottage tulips' display: Red; yellow or orange; white or tinted; blended tones of all colors.

In the breeder tulips' class the groups will include yellow, orange or bronze; lilac, violet or purple; pink, rose or red; fringed parrot; tulipa species; late double; lily flowered; rectified or broken tulips; largest collection of named varieties. Group 20 in this class will be tulips shown for educational purposes.

In artistic arrangements' class, which will be open to garden clubs in Atlanta and surrounding communities, the groups will include: Arrangement of tulips in the French manner (other flowers permitted); arrangement done in monochromatic color harmony; dining table arrangement of tulips, other bulbs and iris permitted (white container); arrangement of tulips in a bronze or copper container (any color); medium arrangement in the Dutch manner (accessories allowed).

Cheshire Club.

Cheshire Bridge Garden Club met recently with Mrs. Homer Cheshire, president, in charge of the meeting. The attendance prize was won by Mrs. Prentice Meadows and reports of committees were made. Mrs. J. C. Turner reported she won second prize at the Garden Center recently with specimens of trees. Mrs. Leroy Rogers spoke on "Bulbs."

Miss Gates Weds John A. Harris Jr. At Peachtree Christian Church

Among the lovely weddings of early fall was the ceremony at which Miss Pinky Gates became the bride of John Alton Harris Jr., at the Peachtree Christian church last evening at 6 o'clock. The Rev. Robert W. Burns, pastor, officiated at the ceremony.

The marriage vows were spoken before the altar banked with palms. The beautiful silver urns on the altar were filled with lilies with seven-branched candelabra holding lighted tapers flanking either side.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Paul Hendrix, of Chattanooga, cousin of the bride, and Mrs. Victor Clark, organist.

The ushers were Ward Foote, Chris Wooten, Dick Willis, William Randolph III, William Buchanan and Edwin Horton, of Birmingham, Ala.; John H. Peterson, of Philadelphia, served as his cousin's best man.

The bride's sister, Miss Emma Gates, was maid of honor. Her gown was of periwinkle blue slipper satin, made with short puffed sleeves and V neck. Designed with an empire waistline the skirt was fitted to the hips and flared at the hem. Miss Gates' headdress was of chartreuse flowers. The matron of honor was Mrs. Stinson Adams Jr., another sister of the bride. Her gown was of violet slipper satin, fashioned on the same lines as that of the maid of honor, and her headdress was also of chartreuse flowers.

The bridesmaids were Miss Sue Bailey, Mrs. Chris Wooten, Mrs. Robert Patterson, Miss Virginia Gates, of Savannah, and Miss Mary Lena Taylor and Mrs. Edwin Horton, both of Birmingham. Their dresses were of chartreuse slipper satin, duplicating the design of those worn by the maid and matron of honor. Ornaments of violet and periwinkle blue flowers adorned their hair.

The bride entered with her father, Charles Robert Gates, who gave her in marriage. Her striking blonde beauty was enhanced by her wedding gown of white satin, made on princess lines with a yoke of lace tapering into a high Elizabethan collar in the back. The sleeves were fitted and finished in a point over the hand. Tiny satin-covered buttons relieved the back from the collar to the yoke line, and the hexagonal train was finished in wide bands of Chantilly lace. The bride's veil was of illusion tulle, gathered into a cap effect with satin orange blossoms, and bordered with Chantilly lace. Her bouquet was of valley lilies with a cluster of orchids in the center.

Mrs. John Alton Harris Sr., mother of the groom, wore a black chiffon velvet gown with yoke of net studded with yet sequins. She wore a cluster of orchids.

On their return to Atlanta, Mr. and Mrs. Harris will reside at 2259 Virginia place, N. E.

Out-of-town guests at the ceremony were Miss Elsie Paterson, of Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Hendrix, of Jacksonville, Ala.; Mrs. William Hendrix, Mr. and Mrs. John Barganier, Misses Alice, Elhura and Hattie Bargonier, all of Jasper, Ala.; Miss Kathryn Oliver, of Birmingham, and Mrs. Carey Bufkin, of Hattiesburg, Miss.

Miss Mills Weds J. L. Roberson

GREENVILLE, S. C., Sept. 17.—Miss Mary Moore Mills, daughter of Mrs. Mary Ella Moore Mills and the late Arthur Ladson Mills, and John Linton Roberson Jr., formerly of Atlanta, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Linton Roberson, of Asheville, N. C., were married at Christ church on Saturday afternoon.

Easter lilies and candles decorated the church, and the Rev. Robert Phillips performed the ceremony. Mrs. Dudley Whithers, organist, rendered the nuptial music.

A few friends were asked to the home of the bride on Mills avenue immediately after the wedding.

Roger Moore Mills gave his sister in marriage. She wore a white velvet dress with puffed sleeves, wide skirt, ending in a long train. Her veil of tulle fell from a wreath of orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley.

Miss Sarah Jordan, maid of honor, wore a shell pink velvet dress, and carried pink roses. Her hat of matching pink velvet had a wide brim, and was trimmed with ribbon.

Conril Bransgrove Smith was best man, and the ushers were: Joseph Donald Randolph, Jenkins Mikell Robertson Jr., Luther Martin McBee and William Henry Tuller.

An informal reception followed the ceremony, and later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Roberson left for a wedding trip. They will reside in Greenville.

Mrs. Purple Hostess For Miss Attaway

Mrs. Robert Huse Purple was hostess Friday at her home on Boulevard at the first in the series of prenuptial parties being given for Miss Lyndall Attaway, whose marriage to Harold Starrett will be an event of October 9.

Potted plants and cut flowers were used as the decorations in the reception rooms. Miss Betty Jean McAteer presided at the punch bowl. A number of interesting games were held, among them being "A Motor Romance" and a "Remembering" contest, the latter being conducted by Miss Donnie Attaway, sister of the honoree. Mrs. Grace Tumlin won the first and Mrs. E. D. Garvin and Mrs. George Turner were awarded prizes in the last. Mrs. J. A. Purvis, Mrs. Grace Tumlin and Miss Juanita Drumm were awarded booby prizes.

Present were Misses Attaway, Lucile Attaway, Donnie Attaway, Mary Henderson, Sara Henderson, Juanita Drumm, Mesdames H. P. Attaway, Ida Pope, F. F. Martin, E. M. Robbins, C. C. Evans, E. T. Tumlin, J. O. Tumlin, B. C. Starrett, E. E. Clark, George T. Tumlin, J. A. Purvis, L. A. McAteer, George Turner, Ed Garvin, Essie Wilson, J. E. Bowden, H. B. McAteer and Mrs. Fowler.

Iris Garden Club Begins Activities.

Iris Garden Club met with Mrs. Lawrence Willet on Tuxedo road last Wednesday. The president, Mrs. D. C. Shepherd, presided. Twenty-nine members and two visitors were present.

Mrs. Earl Cone, chairman of Garden Center, reported a prize won by Mrs. Alvin Cates on a console table arrangement and a prize won by Mrs. Cone on a flower photograph. A yearly average of 84 3-10 points was made by the club members on their entries at the Garden Center.

The secretary announced that Mrs. D. C. Shepherd has been appointed as co-chairman of the Garden Pilgrimage, and Mrs. Murdock Equen made associate editor of Garden Gateways magazine.

One hundred and eighty Iris have been planted in the gardens of the club members.

Officers of the club are: President, Mrs. D. C. Shepherd; treasurer, Mrs. Lawrence Willet; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Toulman Hurt; recording secretary, Mrs. Davis Thornton.

Committee chairmen are: Ways and means, Mrs. William Wardlaw, chairman; Mrs. Herbert Reynolds, co-chairman; Garden Center, Mrs. Earl Cone; upper Iris garden, Mrs. Allen Artley; lower Iris garden, Mrs. Toulman Hurt; hostess, Mrs. Frank Spratlin; program, Mrs. Carl Lewis; telephone, Mrs. Edgar Pomeroy; librarian, Mrs. Frank Boston; scrapbook, Mrs. Dowdell Brown, chairman; Mesdames Herbert Oliver and Owen Perry, co-chairmen; Herbert Reynolds; publicity, Mrs. Alfredo Bailey.

A buffet luncheon was served, after which the members enjoyed a stroll through Mrs. Willet's garden.

Miss Lily Johnson Honored At Party.

Miss Lily Johnson, bride-elect, was entertained recently at a miscellaneous shower by Mrs. Byron Scott and Miss Frances Scott at her home on Killian street.

Mrs. Maude Scott, mother of the hostess, assisted in entertaining. Interesting contests were enjoyed. The color scheme of green and white was carried out in the decorations. The centerpiece on the dining table was a miniature bride and groom mounted on a mirror. The gifts were presented to the bride-to-be in a cardboard house, and deeds, signed by all the guests, were given her.

Present were Misses Katherine Arnold, Ruth Wallace, Mary Sorrells, Juanita Edwards, Edith Scott, Florence Brown, Frances Scott, Lily Johnson, and Mesdames T. B. Digby, E. B. Scott, Marion Sharp, East Point; H. D. Wesley, Coy Wood, Lithonia; Willis Golden, Raymond Patton, R. L. Gower, Roscoe Sneed and Willie Wood.

Mrs. Hunt, U. D. C. Head, Issues Call for Convention, Oct. 25-27

By Miss Mary Lizzie Wright, of Elberton, Editor Georgia Division U. D. C.

Mrs. Clyde F. Hunt, division president, has issued the call for the forty-third annual convention, which meets October 25, 26, 27 in Gainesville, as the guest of the Longstreet chapter of Gainesville, Mrs. J. D. Twitty, president; the John P. Fort chapter, of Cornelia, and the Habersham chapter, of Clarkesville. Convention headquarters will be the Dixie Hunt hotel and all business sessions will be held there. Many social affairs have been planned by the hostess chapters.

Mrs. Hunt says: "I trust that we shall carry to this convention a full report of all work accomplished during the past year, and carry away from our meeting information and inspiration for a greater and better work during the years to come. We are happy that our president general, Mrs. Lamar, will be with us at the opening session. Your president is most appreciative of the services rendered by each officer and chairman; the splendid co-operation of chapter presidents has helped to make this a successful year."

Mrs. Frank F. Jones, division custodian of minutes, writes: "If any copies of the following issues of minutes can be furnished for the files of Georgia division, please notify me at Lowther hall, (Clinton) Gray P. O.: Macon, 1896 (three copies needed); Augusta, 1897 (three copies); Rome, 1898 (three copies); Athens, 1899 (two copies); Savannah, 1900 (two copies); Columbus, 1901 (two copies); LaGrange, 1902 (two copies); Atlanta, 1903 (three copies); Elberton, 1904 (one copy); Macon, 1905 (one copy); Americus, 1906 (three copies); Savannah, 1908; West Point, 1909; Athens, 1912, (two copies)."

Only a short time is left in which chapter presidents and treasurers may compile their reports for the star chapter contest. Blanks should be filled in on typewriter and mailed at once to the chairman, Mrs. Millard V. Rhodes, 198 West View drive, Atlanta. Each point is important, and a chapter qualifying for a star chapter flag has done a well-rounded year's work, majoring in the important activities of the U. D. C. Report all monies sent the division treasurer to the various chairmen, with the respective amounts contributed to the various causes. Report all subscriptions to the Official Bulletin to the division editor, sending the amount of 50 cents for each subscription received in the chapter to Miss Anne V. Mann, Box 575, Petersburg, Va. Let's break the record in the number of star chapter flags received at the convention, remembering the chapter with the best all-round report will win the gold star banner for excellence.

Laura Rutherford chapter, Mrs George D. Thomas, president, met with Miss Mary Lou Wier, assisted by Mrs. Emmett Wier and Mrs Clarence Jackson. The historical program included papers on "The Iron Industry in the South," "The Confederate Naval School," "A Resume of the Life of Admiral Raphael Semmes" and musical selections. The chapter recently gave a birthday party for Mr. Orr, the only remaining veteran in the county.

Moultrie-McNeill chapter met at the home of Mrs. A. H. Groover, with Mesdames W. H. Land and L. M. Clements assisting. The president presided over the business session, during which committees for the new year were announced. The chapter voted to co-operate with the other clubs of the town in the erection and furnishing of a community club house.

Americus chapter, Mrs. J. H. Randall president, sponsored a silver tea recently at the home of Mrs. B. F. Easterlin, to secure funds for the Davis monument fund. An interesting musical program was enjoyed, and a nice sum was realized. The officers were assisted in entertaining the 50 guests by a group of members.

Kasihta chapter, Cusseta, Mrs. W. J. McCandle president, met with Mrs. J. W. Dillard, when plans were made for a tour to Montgomery, Ala., the "cradle of the Confederacy," to visit the shrines of historical interest. Papers were given by Mesdames B. O. Brinson, J. B. Layfield and A. W. McGlaun on "The Secession of Arkansas," "Silk and the Cultivation of the Silkworm," "Jefferson Davis, ex-President of the Confederacy." The closing number was a song, "Old Black Joe."

Larkin D. Watson chapter, Jackson, Mrs. T. E. Watkins president, met at the clubhouse. The president welcomed the large number present, and the registrar reported several applications for membership pending. A program centering around Admiral Raphael Semmes, his life and achievments, was presented by Mrs. J. T. Moore and Miss Mary Newton. The president gave a report of her trip to the reunion of the Confederate veterans in Columbia, S. C.

Mrs. Hamilton Heads Converse Alumnae

Mrs. Joe Hamilton was elected president of the Converse College Alumnae Association of Atlanta at a meeting held Friday at the home of the retiring president, Mrs. Charles Ewing, on Peachtree Battle avenue. Other officers are Mrs. Mrs. S. B. Wimbish, first vice president; Mrs. Preston Mason, secretary; Miss Sibylla Pringle, treasurer, and Mrs. W. W. Coble, corresponding secretary.

Mrs. Hamilton, who is the former Miss Betty Blanton, of Asheville, N. C., is active in social and club circles of the city, being one of the most enthusiastic workers in the Junior League. She moved to this city about two years ago from Charlotte, N. C.

Mrs. Ewing presided over the business meeting, which was featured by a report from Mrs. H. Lane Young, chairman of the endowment campaign and former president of the Atlanta group. The jubilee year of the founding of the college will be celebrated in 1940. Reports were also made on the perpetual scholarship which the local alumnae maintain at the colleges. Plans were made for a benefit bridge party to be held in October.

Following the business session, Mrs. Ewing entertained at a beautifully appointed tea. The decorations and refreshments in a pink and green color note carried out the decoration motif which prevails in the reception rooms of the handsome home.

Bridge Lite

By Harold Sharpsteen.

DECEPTIVE LEADS.

Down through the ages, from Whist to modern contract, the rank and file of conservative bridge elders have frowned upon unconventional opening leads as a base and flagrant sacrilege.

Against notrump declarations, defenders, lacking an attacking honor-lead, have invariably resorted to opening fourth highest from their longest and strongest suit. There was seldom any question about their opening leads being on the up and up.

BOISTEROUS DEUCE.

For years the lowly deuce has been the loudest talking card in the bridge deck . . . always promising definitely four cards in the led suit or a singleton. Played to the first round, the deuce screamed for a shift to another suit.

Today the lead of a deuce may mean anything. There are times when opening leader, in desperation, violates all laws and conventions in an effort to defeat a contract or to protect weakly guarded honors or tenace positions in his own hand.

FOOL ONE ANOTHER.

Today folks try to fool one another with their opening leads Some times they are successful. Some times it is defending partner who is fooled.

An outstanding opening lead, which gained considerable notoriety found West, too late, leading the queen from an ace-queen doubleton to defeat a four-heart contract.

NOTORIOUS OPENING.

When West opened the spade queen, declarer expecting East to hold the ace, played low from dummy, and the queen held the trick. West then played his spade ace and shifted to diamonds. East won the trick with his ace and returned a spade which West trumped with his singleton Heart 7, setting the contract.

Jump the Queen.

When bidding indicates dummy hand probably holds the queen, it is a favorite pastime of some players to lead the ace from and A K x x followed by a low card of the suit on the second round. Declarer is supposed to expect defending partner to hold the king. The play works when defending partner holds the jack.

On the other hand, deceptive opening leads frequently mislead partner so maybe after all the conservative bridge elders are right about honesty being the best policy, particularly in the matter of opening leads.

'Til tomorrow. . . .

Mrs. Merritt Stresses Importance Of D. A. R. Work for Young People

Mrs. Sam Merritt, of Americus, state chairman of Junior Citizenship Committee, D. A. R., urges chapter regents to stress the importance of patriotic work among young people. Her statement follows:

"Youth has been the keynote of our national society for the past term, for never before in the annals of our country has work among our young people been so needed. On all sides they are being pressed with 'isms' other than Americanism. Remembering that the boy of today is the man of tomorrow, there is a direct challenge to us to see that that boy has a foundation of patriotic education which will make him a man of high ideals, honor and loyalty to these United States of America. That, concisely, is the chief and only aim of the Junior American Citizens' Committee.

To accomplish this, the committee has attempted to organize boys and girls into Junior American Citizens' clubs. We continually hear that our youth is over organized, and often that is true, but there are thousands of children who are not having the right kind of enough patriotic education. Chapter chairmen may bear in mind that clubs may be formed in various groups, such as boys' clubs, girls' clubs, churches among colored groups, 4-H clubs, and mainly in our schools which afford the best opportunity for this work.

"Clubs should be run in accordance with the official handbook, (these handbooks, together with club buttons, may be ordered from the state chairman) the "Pledge of Allegiance to Our Flag," "The Americans' Creed," and at least two verses of the "Star Spangled Banner" should be memorized. The study of the constitution should be taken up; lives of great men and women should be studied. The object is to prepare young people so that in the event they are approached by those who would tear down our country's foundation, they, as junior American citizens, will have the background and stamina which will not allow them to be led astray.

"As D. A. R. members perhaps know, there are more than 81,000 children in the United States this year who have joined these clubs. This is a goodly number, but there are also hundreds of thousands of children throughout this country who are not enrolled. There is yet much to be done. Georgia's last report was that 33 clubs had been organized, which is a net gain of 28. This report shows a marked gain over the year before, but it can be made much better if regents will appoint chairmen who will contact the state chairman, order handbooks, buttons, talk with school superintendents, Boy and Girl Scout leaders, and really show interest and enthusiasm for this great and worth-while opportunity.

"Three years from now the national society will celebrate its 50th jubilee, and this committee would like to report not less than 150,000 children enrolled in these clubs. The state chairman asks that reports reach her before March 1. Try to get the clubs organized as soon as possible after school starts. Keep the records of their formation and accomplishments up to date. Send the name of your chapter chairman to the state chairman. The importance of teaching youth at an early age to feel and know the meaning of true patriotism and good citizenship cannot be overestimated. With the subversive influences that surround our boys and girls, it is an inspiring thought that the D. A. R. has the vision and purpose to lead them along the path of high standards and nobler efforts in good citizenship."

Mrs. Harrison Hightower, state regent, was honored by the John Houston Chapter, D. A. R., at Thomaston, of which she is a member at tea recently at Hotel Upson. Mrs. Hightower wore flowered chiffon and her flowers were baby orchids and valley lilies.

Receiving were Mesdames Hightower, Mark Smith, regent of the chapter and state corresponding secretary; P. D. Boardman, of Griffin, state historian, and Roy Stephens, state chairman of motion pictures. Former regents of the chapter, chapter officers and a bevy of young girls of the John Houston Chapter C. A. R. assisted in entertaining. This occasion marked the beginning of a new year of chapter activity.

Brier Creek Chapter, D. A. R., of Sylvania, met and considered a name for the new bridge being constructed over the Savannah river at Burton's Ferry, and to be completed in October. A meeting of all the civic organizations to make final decision for a name will meet later.

The chapter met at the home of the newly-elected regent, Mrs. George N. Hill Sr. A synopsis of the early history of Georgia, by Mrs. E. K. Overstreet Sr. was on the program.

James Pittman Chapter, Commerce, met at the home of Mrs. J. T. Quillian. The regent, Mrs. C. E. Pittman, presided. The program included the annual report of the regent, a duet by Mrs. N. T. McElroy and Mrs. V. L. Davis, accompanied by Mrs. Willis Harden. Rev. H. F. Foster, pastor of the Commerce Presbyterian church, spoke on the Constitution of the United States. The registrar, Mrs. M. T. Sanders, reported papers completed for one new member; presented two new names for membership, and reported papers in process of preparation for five additional members. Mesdames Claud Little, C. C. Ward and Claud Montgomery assisted the hostess.

The Colonel William Few Chapter, of Eastman, met at the home of Mrs. R. T. Ragan, with Mesdames O. A. Gentry Sr. and Alice P. Harrell as co-hostesses. Miss Fannie K. Persons, the regent, presided. The plan for district meetings was received and the regent appointed a committee on transportation to insure a large attendance in Hawkinsville on October 4.

The chapter voted to give citizenship medals to the three Scout troops, also to present the regent a two-year subscription to the National Historical Magazine. A contribution will be made to the Georgia room at Tamasse honoring the state regent. Two new members were unanimously elected. The program included the reading of the president general's message by Mrs. Thomas J. Sappington; the life of James Oglethorpe, by Mrs. R. T. Ragan; a history of the colonizing of Georgia, by Mrs. C. C. Burch; music by Mesdames O. A. Gentry, A. L. Coffee, J. S. Hartsfield and Miss Willie Ryals. The programs for the year will be based on American composers and 50 years of Georgia history.

Executive board of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Presbytery of Atlanta, met recently at the Druid Hills Presbyterian church. Mrs. B. C. Boswell, president, presided, and the members of the board were present 100 per cent.

New members welcomed to the board were Mrs. H. C. Cowan, of Conyers, chairman of District 5, and Mrs. R. J. Simonton, Tallapoosa, Ga., chairman of District 9.

Mrs. Morris Brandon gave the devotional, and reports were received from general officers, cause secretaries and district chairmen. Mrs. H. C. Dean, synodical president, and Miss Tamiko Okamura were special guests and brought messages to the board.

After the luncheon hour the group chairmen made plans for the conferences which will be held during the last week in September and the first two weeks in October.

Shorter Club To Meet With Mrs. Hewlett.

The Atlanta Shorter Alumnae Club meets Friday at 3 o'clock with Mrs. Sam D. Hewlett at 2765 Peachtree road.

A business meeting will precede the tea. Plans and programs for the coming year will be announced. Mrs. Frank Snelling, president, will preside.

Other officers of the club are Mrs. Prentice Miller, executive vice president; Mrs. Jack Bates, vice president in charge of groups; Mrs. George Thomas, secretary; Miss Ann Wimbish, treasurer; Mrs. Cecil Mozley, publicity chairman; Mrs. J. L. Estes, chairman of group I; Mrs. John G. Lewis, chairman of group II; Mrs. Walter Gay, chairman of group III.

The college colors of white and gold will be carried out in the decorations. Assisting Mrs. Hewlett will be Mrs. Clayton Calloway, Mrs. Ryland Knight, Mrs. Robert Irvin, Mrs. W. A. Rhodes, and Mrs. Jack Bates. Special guests will be Dr. Paul Cousins, president of Shorter College, and Miss Louise Bennet, dean of student affairs of Shorter.

The guests, who were limited to members of the wedding party, gathered in a private dining room of the club, which was adorned with pastel shaded flowers.

This evening Miss Middlebrooks and Mr. Woods will be central figures at the buffet supper at which Mr. and Mrs. Robert Strickland entertain at the Piedmont Driving Club.

Supper will be served on the eastern terrace of the club and the long buffet table will be adorned with quantities of pastel shaded garden flowers. Present will be members of the Middlebrooks-Woods bridal party of which the host, Mr. Strickland, will be an usher.

Miss Gray Weds Mr. Benefield.

RIVERDALE, Ga., Sept. 17.—Miss Louise Gray became the bride of William Howell Benefield at a ceremony at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bola B. Gray, in Riverdale, on Saturday evening. Rev. Howard Johnson read the rites. Music was rendered by Miss Pauline Sears.

The groom was attended by his best man, Rube Gray, brother of the bride. Mrs. Rube Gray, who attended the bride as matron of honor, wore a fall model of black crepe with white chiffon bodice embroidered in black. A small, close-fitting black hat completed the costume.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore teal blue alpaca cloth appliqued in satin. Her becoming navy blue hat was adorned with a lighter blue ostrich tip and veil. Her flowers were pink roses and valley lilies.

After receiving congratulations from relatives and friends, Mr. and Mrs. Benefield left for a short wedding trip.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Benefield will reside in an apartment at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. Howard Johnson.

Z. T. A. Alumnae Fete Brenau Chapter.

Heywood-Wakefield Old Colony Furniture

in Salem Maple..a blended honeytone

Established in 1826, "Heywood-Wakefield" has known furniture fame for more than one hundred years. Under the "Old Colony" trade-mark, fine reproductions of Colonial American pieces have found their way into the very hearts of tradition-loving Americans. To "Heywood" also goes the glory of adapting Early American designs to contemporary taste and demand.

"Old Colony" pieces are available in both sturdy Yellow Birch with this distinctive honey-maple finish (in both groups pictured here)—and in Northern ruddy-toned maple.

In keeping with the quality tradition of Rich's, you'll find "Heywood-Wakefield" pieces on our famous Furniture Fifth Floor.

Traditional Hooked Designs in Tailor-Made BROADLOOM RUGS

It is believed that the first American hooked rugs were made during the 18th Century—doubtless an attempt to create both rugs beautiful and useful. Every-day things were the first design inspirations—garden flowers, animals—and ships where rugs were made in seaport towns. Now you may have authentic designs and lovely subdued colorings in these deep-napped Axminsters.

RICH'S

The attractive scene at the left presents Miss Helen McDuffie extending a hearty welcome to her friends at the entrance to Out O' Bounds, the rustic long cabin home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Philip McDuffie.

Below, Miss McDuffie, left, and Miss Lane, right, laugh over an amusing joke in a magazine. Miss Lane is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lane, and will attend Smith College, in Northampton, Mass. Miss McDuffie is a student at St. Mary's school, in Raleigh, N. C.

Miss Joy O'Brien, at the left, presides as bartender at the charming rustic bar, which is concealed behind a panel in a corner of the living room at Out O' Bounds. The floor plan includes, in addition to the living room, a kitchen, porch and two bedrooms, the decorative schemes of the boudoirs being accented by bright colored doors. Miss O'Brien is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. F. O'Brien, and will be numbered among attractive Atlanta belles attending Agnes Scott.

The wedding plans of Miss Claire Bullock and Sidney Penny are announced today and are of wide interest to the many friends of the young couple. The ceremony takes place on October 8 at high noon at St. Philip's cathedral.

Hugh Bullock, of Montgomery, Ala., will give his sister in marriage and Mrs. Hugh William Shackelford, of Albany, will be the matron of honor. The bridesmaids will be Misses Mary Cary Maynard, Dorothy Dent, Jeanne Allen, of Ridgewood, N. J., and Mesdames Carroll Payne Jones and John H. Boman Jr. Miss Barbara Claire Bullock will be the junior bridesmaid.

The groomsmen will be George Dozier, of Marietta; W. Henry Maddox, John H. Mullin and Linton H. Young. Ushers will be William L. Percy, Charles E. Shepard, Alvin E. Foster, William M. Brownlee and Shelby M. Tobey, of St. Louis, Mo.

Dean Raimundo de Ovies will officiate and Tom Brumby will give a musical program prior to and during the ceremony. After the service there will be a wedding breakfast given at the home of the bride-elect on Myrtle street and which will assemble only the members of the wedding party and the immediate family.

Capital City Club To Open Fall Season

The arrival here this week of Gerry Gerard and his Lazy River Rhythm Orchestra will be of interest to members of the Capital City Club where the musicians will play for dinner-dances during the next month.

The club's fall season opens with a dinner-dance to be held in the grill room on September 24. The orchestra will play in the grill each week day evening from 7:30 to 11 o'clock, except on Monday evenings. On Sunday evenings the orchestra will present special selections in the grill from 7 to 9 o'clock. Programs will be given by the celebrated group of musicians during the luncheon hour daily, with the exception of Mondays.

Mr. Gerard's excellent Welsh voice will be heard on the programs as well as his trumpet selections for which he is noted. Accompanying the orchestra to Atlanta will be Miss Carrol Lewis, a singer of note, who has appeared with leading orchestras throughout the country.

Miss Sarah Lee Weds Mr. Landers at Rites.

The marriage of Miss Sarah Irene Lee and Charles Edward Landers was solemnized last evening at 8:30 o'clock at the Druid Hills Baptist church in the presence of friends and relatives.

Rev. Dr. Louie D. Newton officiated, and a musical program was presented by Miss John Felder, church organist.

The altar was flanked by palms and beautified with floor baskets of Easter lilies and candelabra holding white tapers.

Mrs. J. T. Lykes was the bride's only attendant, and was gowned in a boy blue costume suit, worn with chateau wine accessories. Her flowers were red roses. Ushers were J. L. Collins and W. A. Cobb.

The lovely bride entered with her father, Calvo Lee, by whom she was given in marriage, and was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, J. T. Lykes. She wore a teal blue woolen dress with contrasting gray caracul jacket offset by navy blue accessories. Her flowers were a shoulder spray of black orchids.

Mrs. Calvo Lee, mother of the bride, was attired in a handsome black crepe model trimmed with matching satin, and her flowers were red roses. Mrs. J. H. Landers, mother of the groom, wore a gown of rose crepe with matching lace jacket. Her flowers were gardenias.

After the ceremony Mr. Landers and his bride left for a wedding trip to New York, and upon their return they will become popular additions to Atlanta's younger married contingent.

Davidson—Cowherd.

Miss Mary Capers Davidson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph C. Davidson, formerly of Atlanta, but who for several years have been residing in Richmond, Va., was married September 3 to William Ray Cowherd Jr., of Hopewell, Va. Dr. J. Blanton Belk, pastor of St. Giles Presbyterian church, officiated.

The couple departed for eastern points and will reside upon their return at 503 Eighth avenue, Hopewell, Va.

Jere Wells Stresses Importance Of Health at P.-T. A. Council

Superintendent Jere Wells was the main speaker at the meeting of the representatives of the local Parent-Teacher associations in the Fulton county council, at the Fulton county health services. Welnesday. He said that the chief duty of the parent of the schoolchild was to see that the child was in good health so that his attendance at school would be regular and constant.

Superintendent Wells urged the parent-teacher groups over the county to give particular attention to health as an activity this year, and presented to the group Dr. Roy McGee, chairman of the Fulton county health services Welfare chairmen, headed by Mrs. Robert Rankin, were urged to make it plain to the local groups that Dr. McGee's services are available upon call for the formation of the school clinic, and Dr. McGehee particularly urged the formation in each neighborhood of the pre-school examination clinics. Dr. McGehee is available for talks to the schools in preparation for the organization of clinics, or in regard to matters of health interest in general.

New rules regarding the attendance of children at school in cases of exposure to contagious and infectious diseases have been worked out by the school department in co-operation with the Board of Health. Copies will be furnished Parent-Teacher presidents as soon as they can be organized in pamphlet form.

Representatives of the Red Cross offered further services toward the safeguarding of child health in Fulton county, and publicity more in detail regarding their services will come to parent-teacher groups a little later.

Mrs. George H. Slappey was made chairman of publicity for the Fulton county council, and she will welcome at any time local news of council interest.

Miss Martha Stenson Amis, whose engagement is announced today by her mother, Mrs. W. H. Amis, of Newnan, to Frank Wynn Bridges, of Sargent, the marriage to be solemnized at an early date.

Miss Tabor To Wed Richard D. Fox Jr.

DANIELSVILLE, Ga., Sept. 17. The announcement today of the engagement of Miss Ruth Tabor to Richard D. Fox Jr. is of wide interest throughout the state. The wedding is to be solemnized in October in Danielsville.

Miss Tabor is the daughter of the late J. C. Tabor and Mrs. Elizabeth Parker Tabor. Her family has for many years been prominently identified with the development of Madison county. Her brothers are Paul Tabor, of Spartanburg, S. C., and Dwight Tabor, of Cordele. She attended State Teachers' College and the University of Georgia. For a number of years she was connected with the Georgia Power Company, in the Macon and Athens divisions, serving as home service supervisor. She is now head of the home economics department of the Tennessee Valley Authority, with headquarters in Chattanooga.

Mr. Fox is the son of R. D. Fox and the late Mrs. Elizabeth Lachlinson Fox, of Darien. His paternal and maternal ancestors were prominent pioneer citizens of McIntosh county. His maternal grandfather, Captain James Lachlinson, served with distinction in the War Between the States.

After finishing school at Gordon Institute he was located in north Georgia for a number of years during the development of the Georgia Power properties and the construction of the dams there. Later, he was employed in Canada on a similar project. He now holds a position with the Georgia Power Company in Atlanta.

Powell-Byrd Rites Are Announced.

Of interest is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Margaret Elizabeth Powell, of Mountain City and Athens, to Dr. Elon E. Byrd, of Richton, Miss., and Athens, on September 3. The marriage was solemnized in Winship chapel of the First Presbyterian church in Atlanta. Rev. William Gardner officiated.

Miss Maxine Lindsey, of Marietta, was the bride's maid of honor, and Dr. Horace O. Lund, of Minneapolis, Minn., and Athens, was the bridegroom's best man. The bride wore a gown of teal blue with black accessories and clusters of sweetheart roses and lilies of the valley. The couple left for a motor trip through Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Florida.

Present were Dr. and Mrs. Donald C. Boughton, Dr. and Mrs. George H. Boyd, Dr. and Mrs. Ralph J. Bushnell, Dr. and Mrs. Tom Harold, all of Athens; Mrs. R. K. Farkas, of Atlanta, and Miss Lucile Griffin, of Clermont.

Jenkins–Pierce.

CARTERSVILLE, Ga., Sept. 17. Mr. and Mrs. Hugh B. Pettit announce the engagement of their sister, Miss Marguerite Jenkins, to John Walton Pierce, the marriage to take place in October.

Miss Jenkins is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joe Ben Jenkins, prominent Bartow county citizens. Mrs. Jenkins was before her marriage Miss Rena Mae Ellis, daughter of Stephen Rueben Ellis and Susan Catherine Keeter. The bride-elect is a sister of Mrs. E. W. Robinson, of Atlanta; Captain R. E. Jenkins, of Fort Leavenworth, Kan.; Mrs. C. G. Hollingsworth, Atlanta; Mrs. Griffin Smith, Roy Jenkins and Sam Jenkins, of Cartersville.

Mr. Pierce is a son of Mrs. Thomas G. Lewis and the late John W. Pierce, of Augusta, the latter having been a prominent Richmond county planter. He is a brother of Mrs. Joseph H. Campbell and Harold, Edward and Linwood Pierce, of Decatur, Ga. He is a nephew of Wallace B. Pierce and Benjamin E. Pierce, well-known attorneys in Augusta. His maternal grandfather was the late E. G. Kalbfleisch, also of Augusta.

Thrift Club Meets.

Mrs. W. A. Wells was hostess to the Thrift Club at her home on Gordon street recently. The improvement of yards and rock gardens proved an interesting theme for this meeting. A paper on the care of roses and spring bulbs was given by Mrs. L. C. Clay. An interesting contest was held, Mrs. J. B. Jackson and Mrs. V. M. Davis winning prizes.

Present were Mesdames J. B. Jackson, V. M. Davis, E. G. Fitzgerald, C. E. Mitchell, L. C. Clay and W. A. Wells. Mrs. J. S. Harris was welcomed as a visitor. The next meeting of the club will be held with Mrs. J. B. Jackson at her home on Racine street on October 14.

Civic Projects Are Presented At Garden Center by Clubs

The Conservation Garden fronting Lullwater road in Druid Hills is the outstanding project of Lullwater Garden Club. The material showing the history of this development is attractively arranged in book form by Mrs. George H. Phillips, Conservation chairman. This garden was created to provide a retreat for nature lovers, a sanctuary for birds and a place in which to study Georgia's native flora and wild life.

The civic project of Mimosa Garden Club is the maintenance of the beautiful garden at Scottish Rite hospital. Pictures grouped on a bulletin board by Mrs. Herbert Alden show the first and last plantings of the garden, including the rose garden developed in 1937. A special project was the garden at Carnegie library, now maintained by the library.

The project of Iris Garden Club for the past two years has been the development of "The Glen" in Winn park, the lower part of the club garden in Ansley Park. This woodland has been planted with native trees, flowers and shrubs carefully labeled, while a picturesque stone bridge has been built over the stream. Complete details of the project are presented in book form in a most original way by Mesdames D. C. Shepherd, Dowdell Brown and Herbert Oliver.

The Neighborhood Garden Club chose for its project the first parkway off Peachtree road on Peachtree Battle avenue. The pictures and write-up displayed by Mrs. J. N. Brawner show how the plot of ground has been beautified by the addition of grass, shrubbery and trees. This planting forms a beautiful background for the monument placed there by Post No. 1 of the American Legion.

A branch of Clerodendron in full bloom was displayed recently by Mrs. Sam Combs, of Elberton, and arrangements of flowers were brought in by Mesdames Keith Conway, Walter Lamb and Hubert Rawiszer.

Garden club hostesses for the week are: Monday, Primrose Rose; Tuesday, St. Charles, Peachtree, Lenox Park, garden division of Garden Hills Woman's Club; Wednesday, Capitol View, Cherokee, Lake-Claire, Azalea; Thursday, Mayflower, Peony; Friday, Cascade, Roxboro.

Recent visitors were Mesdames DeWitt C. Jones, Vicksburg, Miss.; Tom Wade, Columbus; Sam Combs, Elberton; Newton J. Coker, Canton; W. H. Tanner, Newnan; Anna H. Wilson, Miami, Fla.; Phil C. Astin, Thomas R. Luck, H. H. Work, J. G. Robertson, W. H. Bedingfield, Norwood Weems, Carrollton.

Dr. Mary Harris Armor, 3116 Peachtree road, Atlanta; Mrs. T. E. Patterson, 20 West Broad street, Newnan; Mrs. Marvin Williams, 311 Atlanta avenue, Marietta, honorary presidents; Mrs. Mary Scott Russell, 1436 North Highland avenue, N. E., president and state headquarters hostess; Mrs. R. H. McDougall, 1430 North Highland avenue, N. E., vice president; Mrs. R. L. Miller, 534 Jones avenue, Waynesboro, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Robert Travelute, Moultrie, recording secretary; Mrs. Wilbur Brown, 503 West Solomon street, Griffin, treasurer; Mrs. August Burghard, 341 Hardman avenue, Macon, editor of the Georgia W. C. T. U. Bulletin and director of publicity; Mrs. Florence Ewell Atkins, Milledgeville, field secretary; Mrs. Byrd Lovett, Sandersville, agent for the Union Signal; Mrs. Claude Boggs, Hamilton, secretary Loyal Temperance Legion; Mrs. Annie Laurie Cunyus, Cartersville, director of music; Mrs. Annie Durham Methvin, Decatur, poet laureate.

W.C.T.U. Groups Hold Meetings Of Importance in Two Districts

By Mrs. Mary Harris Armor, of Atlanta, Honorary President, Georgia W. C. T. U.

At the recent meeting of the Fifth district W. C. T. U. at Clarkston, officers who had served so well for several years, retired. They are Miss Aurelia Taylor, president; Mrs. E. A. Cawthon, vice president; Miss Annie Cameron, treasurer, and Mrs. Duggan, secretary. The following were elected for the ensuing year: Mrs. Marvin Williams, Decatur, president; Mrs. George W. Bondurant, Atlanta, vice president; Mrs. Flint Singletary, Decatur, recording secretary; Mrs. A. J. Crolley, College Park, corresponding secretary; Mrs. D. H. Gardner, Clarkston, treasurer. The return of Mrs. Marvin Williams to active service in the organization, and to live in greater Atlanta once more, is hailed with joy. Mrs. Williams has served efficiently and acceptably in various offices of the W. C. T. U., local, state and national, her most notable work being done as president of the Georgia W. C. T. U., 1926-1932 inclusive. The prolonged illness and death of her husband, who was pastor of Wesley Memorial church, Atlanta, for five years and greatly beloved, caused her to drop out of the work for awhile. Mrs. Williams returns to the work with renewed health and unabated zeal. As district president she may feel sure of the cordial co-operation of every White Ribboner in the Fifth district.

Mrs. Mary Scott Russell, state president, spoke briefly, but with that sparkle and brilliance characteristic of her, concerning her recent trip to San Francisco and other points west and in Mexico.

The presence of Mrs. N. C. McPherson was a delightful surprise, as physical weakness has long caused her to absent herself from these meetings where she was such a blessing. The joy of her presence was enhanced by the fact that it indicated great improvement in health.

The Sixth district W. C. T. U., Mrs. J. H. Wasden, president, held its last meeting of the year at Clinton on Wednesday. It was held in a church built in 1920 and hallowed by a thousand sacred memories. "There were giants in those days" and their influence still lives in this fine community.

The pastor of the church, Rev. O. J. Withrow, brought a helpful message from Scripture, and Rev. R. L. Singleton, of Eatonton Methodist church took us into the "Throne Room" with the opening prayer. Mrs. Irene Bonner brought greetings from the hostess union. The response was given by Mrs. P. B. Griffith, of Eatonton, in her own inimitable way. Mrs. M. M. Parks, of Milledgeville, introduced by Mrs. Florence Atkins, brought a message filled with inspiration for women in general and mothers in particular, based on Psalm 68:11 (R. V.) Macon City Union, Macon Anna Gordon, Milledgeville, Sandersville, Deep Step, Clinton and Gray answered to roll call. Visitors were Mrs. R. H. McDougall and Mrs. Armor, of Atlanta. There is no space for reports, but Deep Step did a piece of work that must be noted. This union studied Miss Palmer's treatise on "Alcohol—What It Is and Does" and afterward by request taught it to the school 30 minutes each day till the book was finished. Mrs. Harper Tucker is president of this union. Mrs. M. A. Shaw, of Macon, gave a forceful message on "An Informed Membership." Mrs. A. W. Voight entertained her audience with an account of her trip to the national convention and the great west. Mrs. Armor spoke on "Coin of the Spiritual Realm." Mrs. McDougall spoke on the budget and Mrs. B. T. Rawlings spoke on citizenship. The old officers were unanimously re-elected. Macon invited the next meeting. The fraternal circle was formed and the meeting closed with singing "God Be With You Till We Meet Again" and the benediction.

Miss Teasie Laverne Mims, R. N., of Cleveland, Ohio, is betrothed to William Harry Hecker, also of Cleveland, the marriage to take place in the early fall. Miss Mims is the daughter of Mrs. Lena Mims, of Colquitt, and has many friends in Atlanta.

Women Voters Plan To Discuss Measures

Atlanta League of Women Voters will discuss recommendations reecntly made regarding the financial affairs of Fulton county at the meeting on September 21 at 10:30 o'clock at league headquarters, 408 Forsyth building.

During the past few months several groups have studied the affairs of Fulton county, including Dr. Thomas H. Reed, a citizens' advisory committee of which Ryburn Clay was chairman, and a city and county co-ordinating committee of which Robert Strickland was chairman.

Mrs. Leonard Haas, program chairman, and Mrs. J. D. Thomas, director of the league, will sum up these reports and recommendations with a view toward helping citizens better understand the many complicating problems confronting the board of county commissioners.

Mrs. Stephen B. Ives, president of the league, announces that the meeting will be open to the public and time will be allowed for discussion.

Mrs. Hale Honors Mrs. M. C. Anderson

Mrs. James R. Hale entertained yesterday at a luncheon at the Atlanta Athletic Club honoring Mrs. Marie Cole Anderson, past president and charter member of the Georgia Association of Women Lawyers, who recently returned from an extended trip to Honolulu.

Invited to meet Mrs. Anderson were Miss Kate McDougald, Mrs. M. B. Campbell, Mrs. W. C. Johnston, Mrs. Geraldine H. MacGuigan, Miss Rosalyn V. Campbell, Mrs. S. H. Grogan, Miss Jessie Wooddall, Mrs. Clyde L. Burch, Mrs. A. J. Smedley, Mrs. Katherine B. Carroll, Miss Hester May Walker, Mrs. Robert R. Wood and Miss Agnes Jacobs, of New York city.

Methodist W. M. S. To Hold Meetings For Study Leaders

Study leaders' meetings will be held in each of the 10 districts of North Georgia conference, Methodist W. M. S., during September. The auxiliary presidents, study superintendents, Christian social relations superintendents and secretaries of children's work will attend.

The fall mission study topic, "The Church in the City," will be discussed and suggestive helps for study leaders by Mrs. D. R. Little, conference superintendent of study, will be distributed. The missionary unit for study by primary and junior children will also be presented. The topic for study is "Brazil," and the texts for use through the church school are, "A-Visiting We Will Go," by Rauschenberg, for primaries, and "Neighbors South," by Smith, for juniors.

The Christian social relations projects which should be the outgrowth of the fall mission study will be explained. Of especial interest will be the plans to be given each president for the celebration of Harvest Day in connection with the 60th anniversary of foreign mission work by the Methodist women.

The study leaders' meeting for the Atlanta district will be held Tuesday morning at Wesley Memorial church, as announced by Mrs. H. B. Trimble, district secretary.

The Decatur-Oxford district will hold the study leaders' meeting at the Social Circle Methodist church on September 27, with Mrs. E. C. McDowell, district secretary, presiding.

Mr. Bowden Addresses Habersham Chapter.

Featuring the recent meeting of Joseph Habersham Chapter, D. A. R., was the address on "The Constitution" by Richard Bowden, who was presented by the first vice president, Mrs. Frederic C. Rice, chairman of Patriotic Days. Mrs. C. A. Suttles, accompanied by Mrs. T. J. Watkins, gave vocal solos.

Miss Juanita Chisholm, regent, presided at the business session. Recommendations were brought from the board by the chairman, Mrs. W. P. Dunn. Reports were made by several chairmen, Mrs. C. D. Tebo, chairman of scholarships, reporting all scholarships had been filled. Plans were completed for the benefit card party, the date of which has been changed to September 30, in Habersham hall, 270 Fifteenth street, N. E.

The regent presented the following new chairmen: Mrs. Andrew Marshall, national defense; Mrs. W. Clyde Roberts, merchants and marine library; Mrs. T. J. Ripley, D. A. R. historical magazine; Mrs. L. M. Hughie, resolutions; Mrs. Claude C. Smith, women's and children's welfare; Miss Chisholm then presented the state chairmen of the chapter: Mrs. W. F. Dykes, Lucy Cook Peel Memorial; Mrs. T. J. Ripley, patriotic anniversaries; Mrs. Warren D. White, memorial tree planting, which committee was inaugurated by Mrs. White, the result of which is that hundreds of trees have been planted by various chapters throughout the state.

Presiding at the punch bowl were Mesdames T. J. Watkins and Enos Hartman, the table being overlaid with a lace cloth and decorated with garden flowers.

Georgia College Students Find Germans Gay and Carefree

Two Georgia Students, In Separated Manners, Completed Observations Recently in European Countries

In Total Innocence Of Threatening War, Masses of German Workers, Still Live Carefree Lives

By LEE ROGERS.

Gay, carefree German masses have danced and sung their way to the brink of an unsuspected war chasm, created, deepened and widened by Adolf Hitler through one European crisis after another, the gravity of which the people never knew.

Totally in innocence (unless the events of the past week have been taken more directly to the German worker and farmer than formerly), the masses still are living a full, evenly tempered life in which vacations, hikes, mountain climbing, boat trips and hard work play a more important part than do these factors in the hurry-scurry program of the average American.

For 12 months ending last June, Lewis Beck, of Griffin, graduate of Emory University, lived, talked and played with the German people as he studied at the University of Berlin on a Rosenwald fellowship.

In July and August, Miss Margaret Flowers, of Thomasville, University of Georgia graduate in June, obtained a different slant on the life of this people. Traveling as a tourist, gathering the typical propaganda information, Miss Flowers has compared the picture thus obtained with the portrait drawn from more frank opinions obtained from less fearful Germans whose confidence she won. These included army aviators, innkeepers and guides—through the latter were very close-mouthed indeed, she said.

But, in drawing this picture of peace-lovers, neither of the observers mean to create the impression the Germans are not war-conscious.

"Through propaganda, usually from his ministers rather than Hitler himself, the German masses are being told war for the Rhineland is to be expected," Beck declares. "However, these happy, contented working people do not expect war for at least another two years.

"These people, to whom Hitler has given work, food and vacations, look upon the Fuehrer as the man who has kept them out of war. They love peace, but there is a strong nationalistic spirit which Hitler is slowly fanning into war fervor. How successful this campaign has been will soon be told."

Of course, there is the military spirit created naturally by the law requiring all German males to serve three years—18 to 21 years of age—in the army. Then the youngsters are put into uniform from the time they are 12. The girls serve six months learning household duties, caring for children and the like.

"It is among these youngsters Hitler finds his greatest strength," Beck said. "The older people—who have gotten information from foreign newspapers or radio broadcasts—are inclined to think the Fuehrer has gone too far."

And, as the world waits tensely, ever fearful Hitler will force it into another great war, what of Berlin, Germany's largest city?

"Berlin is quite a modern city," says Miss Flowers. "The entire city is being given over to the army. It seems that if you aren't in the army, you just aren't anybody.

"The city is torn up—streets being repaved and old buildings being torn down and new reich quarters being erected—all a part of the Hitler work program. It's a pleasure to leave Berlin to get away from the overcrowded soldier population. While in Berlin, everything you say must be guarded. No speech against the German government is tolerated."

While in Berlin, Miss Flowers and several girl friends chanced to sit at a table next to some German aviators in a night club. Before the evening was over, the girls and German flyers had become acquainted—spent the evening dancing and singing together.

The aviators were young, around 21, and were serving their customary three years in the German army.

Only one spoke English to any appreciable extent and from him Miss Flowers sought information as they danced.

"He described his life in the army as pleasant. The food was good, better than the average civilian has because Hitler believes in keeping his troopers well-fed and happy. There was ample time for recreation and this night's party was a bit of it.

"He was not looking for war—not for several years. He was a great admirer of Hitler and so were his companions. They had good employment in the service of the fatherland and were well-fed. Why shouldn't they be happy? He was trained for war, yes, but he wasn't expecting to find a use for his training immediately. Hitler has taught them Germany must expand and they are ready to fight when he says—but they believe Hitler is attempting to prevent war until his work program in the homeland is completed."

Traveling as a tourist, Miss Flowers said most everything in Germany and Austria was opened to her.

"Tourists are encouraged and are shown the best of everything. They have the best food and the best quarters. They are encouraged to spend. The tourist money is needed to help strengthen the state financially."

In contrast to the rich tourist food is that of the average native. Beck says the native has but one pound of butter per week. He eats nourishing food, though it's far from the best, drinks a coffee made from roasted barley and economizes on everything.

As guns of war roar in maneuvers the masses think insignificant, the people seek entertainment, Beck said. American movies are popular, though they haven't yet supplanted the opera. The people enjoy orchestra music, but find no place for jazz. They are intensely interested in Americans, but think every American runs around with a bomb in his pocket, Beck reports. America is still a wild west to them.

War—the coming great war which will, the Germans think, involve every nation in the world—is a popular subject of conversation among these citizens who are well trained in the use of gas masks, Beck declares. Hitler is hailed as the "Angel of Peace" for he has obtained for Germany a respectable peace.

"The German usually gets only one side of the various crisis situations," Beck declared. "I saw the German troops mobilizing for their entrance into Austria, but I only thought it was another maneuver. I rode down the Danube on a boat filled with Hungarian soldiers mobilized in the face of the Austrian crisis, but I thought they were merely going on a week-end furlough. The person in Germany knows less than the person in the United States about what is going on in Germany and Austria. I noticed the Hungarian officers on the boat keeping a close watch on the Czech shore—but it was not until I saw a Swiss paper several days later than I knew the Czechs were mobilizing. There was nothing about the attitude of the soldiers to give the situation away. They were all singing gypsy songs.

"When we entered Germany from Czechoslovakia, everyone was searched. Even books were opened page by page to see that no newspaper clipping was being smuggled in. When foreign newspapers had censored articles in them, the news dealer merely informed you the copies were 'sold out.' Then the next day you would see some reference to the story appearing the day before and know the paper had been censored."

The more intelligent German people try to keep up with the goings on of the world by listening to foreign broadcasts, Beck said. He told of sitting up to hear the broadcast from France, Italy and other countries so that he might take the propaganda and ramble through it all, in an effort to find some truth.

Under pain of imprisonment, the Germans are forbidden to listen to Russian newscasts, and when Russian stations are broadcasting news, German static machines are turned on to drown it out, Beck revealed.

"Most Germans will agree with the foreigner—that is if the foreigner is against Hitler, the German is and vice versa," Beck observed. "I found little interest among the average German concerning the Sudeten situation. Those who were were afraid to talk."

Austria held the interest of Miss Flowers. She found the people happier than advanced stories had led her to believe, but Vienna wasn't the same after Hitler as before.

She tells of a friend in her party meeting a young woman in Vienna whose husband was a Jew as was her grandmother. The Nazi regime had taken away their wealth, degraded her husband and when the friend ran onto the wife, she was scrubbing streets.

The wife's friends, all afraid to talk to her, had sent her word she could escape from Germany if she obtained a divorce. This was agreed upon and the young woman earnestly begged Miss Flowers' friend to take word of her plight to friends in England.

This was promised and the message delivered. They now await word that this cultured, educated "street scrubber" has escaped to England where a fuller life awaited her.

"Vienna is decorated in German symbols," Miss Flowers tells. "Flags, Nazi flags, and soldiers are everywhere. It's still hard to realize that so many horrible things happened here. Of course you see many stores closed, all Jewish, and the people all give the salute and 'Heil Hitler.' They look sad and won't talk."

(This was the Vienna of August).

"Strolling through the city with an Austrian guide, I tried to get information from him, but he politely refused to comment much. But even the regimentation of Hitler has failed to stop the people seeking their musical entertainment. The outdoor opera performances were still most popular. The night clubs, however great the effort to keep them gay for tourists, do not have the same carefree atmosphere for which Vienna once was noted.

"The people hang onto their picturesque dress. The men wear the native shorts and suspender costume and the women dress in full skirts, puffed sleeves—a jumper dress with an apron, always. Some are most elaborate, in gorgeous colors, and the class to which the people belong can still be told by the costume they wear. Vienna still is perhaps the most colorful city in Europe."

Both these Georgians find the German people much less disturbed by war threats and possibilities than Americans, French or the English.

They found the people patriotic, but not bloodthirsty—though there is a great and strong dislike for the French, in the main an outgrowth of atrocities allegedly committed by the French colonial troops which occupied German soil immediately following the World War.

The Germans, Austrians and Czechs were declared to be much the same type people found in these travelers' own United States—differing, yes, but in the manner the northerner in this country differs from the southerner, or the way the southerner differs from the westerner.

In Austria, Beck described the morale of the people as "very good." Miss Flowers said the same for the Czechs.

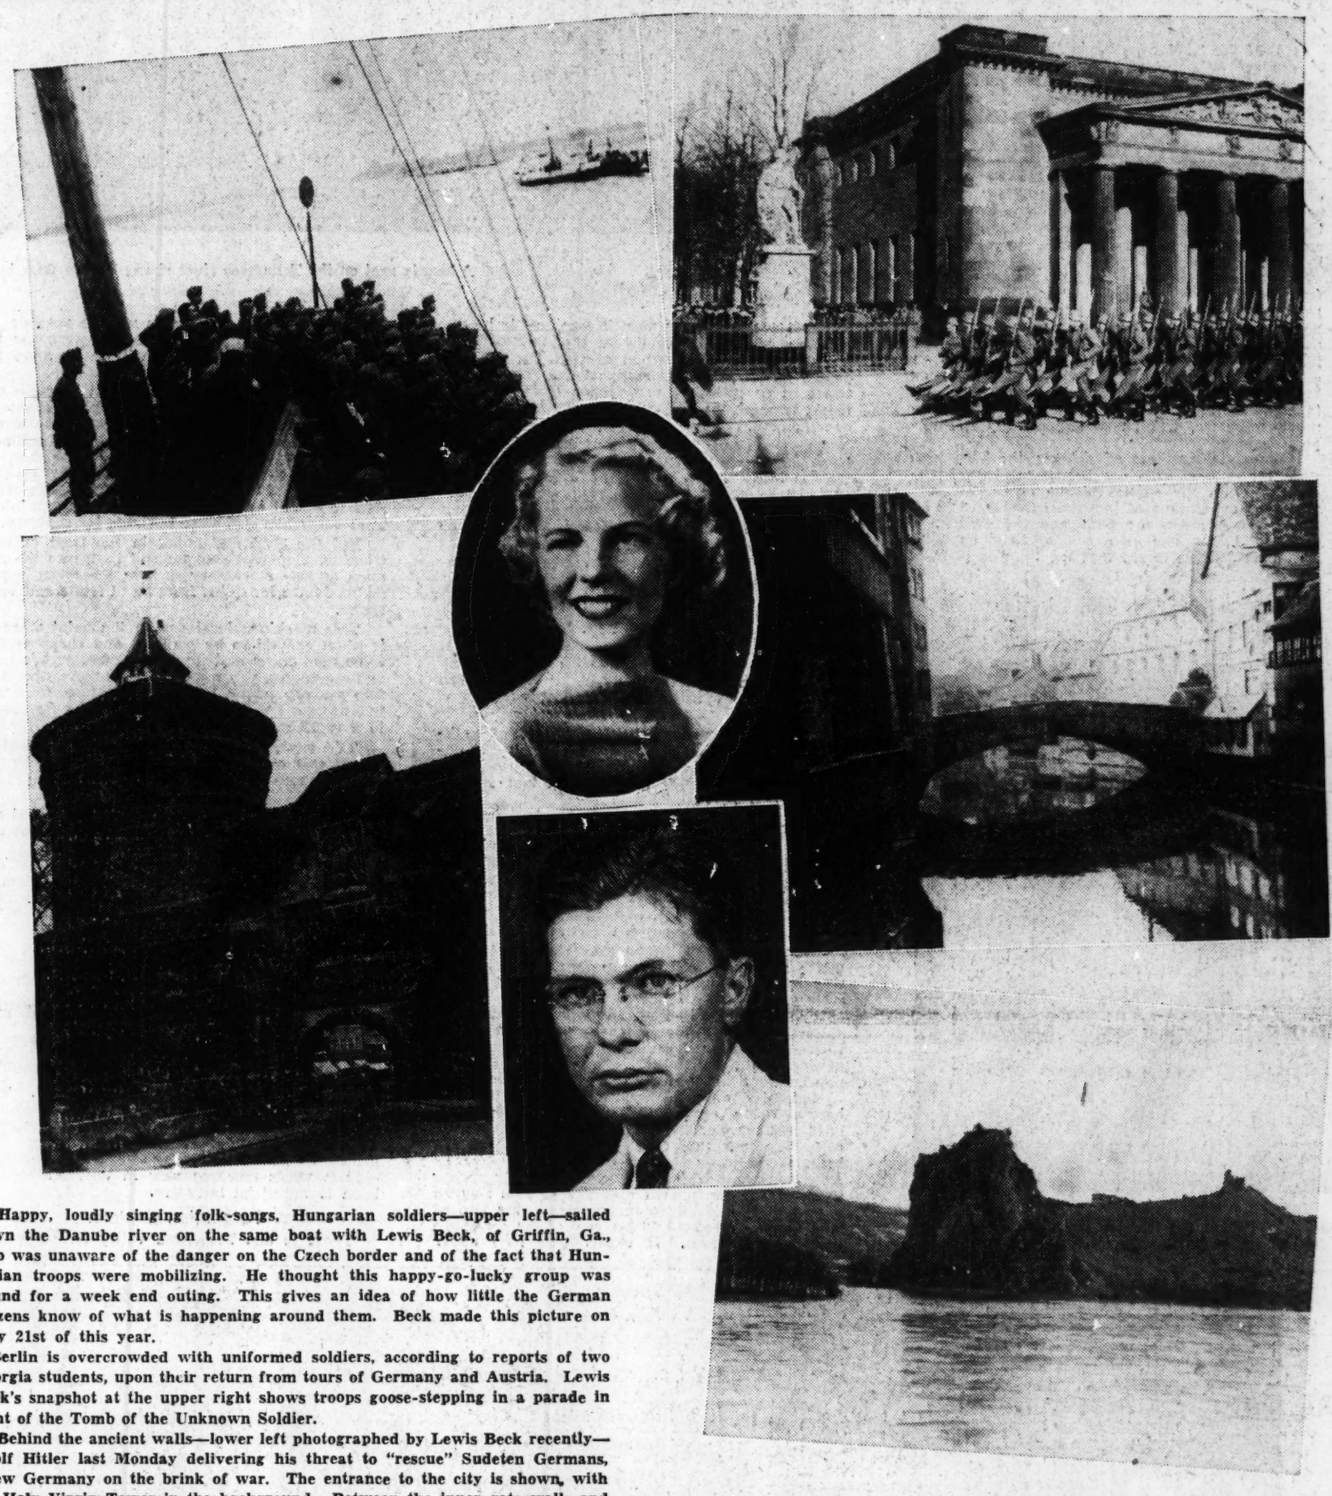

Even in August, the Czechs were staging native parades, Miss Flowers revealed. Native folk songs were the music. The spirits were gay. Soldiers were not parading the streets as in Vienna and Germany, though it was common knowledge the Czech war machine was poised and ready, well equipped.

The general impression among the natives is that Hitler is bluffing—would not go far enough to throw the world into a war—that is, not yet. Germans give him at least two more years to prepare for the war that will regain "respectable peace for the Rhineland."

Beck says, in spite of Monday's demonstration, he believes the German sentiment is still too "peaceful" (not pacifistic as in the United States, however) for Hitler to go to war—"unless something slips." He believes this attitude is a check that will keep Germany for some time to come on the brink of the war chasm and not in it.

Lewis Beck is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Beck, of Griffin, Ga. He graduated from Emory University in the class of 1934. Later he studied at Duke University. In the summer of 1937, Beck went to the University of Berlin to study under auspices of a Rosenwald fellowship. While there, he lived in the homes of German people and later in the school dormitories. He traveled Europe—especially Austria and Germany. He spent much time in Munich, Berlin and Vienna. Beck returned to the United States in early July and taught philosophy at Emory University this past summer.

Miss Margaret Flowers is the daughter of Mrs. W. H. Flowers, of Thomasville, Ga. Immediately upon graduation from the University of Georgia this past June, Miss Flowers and a group of friends left on a tour of Europe. There they plunged deeper into the affairs of the native countries than do most tourists and as they were traveling as tourists they obtained many concessions not always granted. She was in Austria and Germany during July and August, returning to this country the first of September.

Happy, loudly singing folk-songs, Hungarian soldiers—upper left—sailed down the Danube river on the same boat with Lewis Beck, of Griffin, Ga., who was unaware of the danger on the Czech border and of the fact that Hungarian troops were mobilizing. He thought this happy-go-lucky group was bound for a week end outing. This gives an idea of how little the German citizens know of what is happening around them. Beck made this picture on May 21st of this year.

Berlin is overcrowded with uniformed soldiers, according to reports of two Georgia students, upon their return from tours of Germany and Austria. Lewis Beck's snapshot at the upper right shows troops goose-stepping in a parade in front of the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

Behind the ancient walls—lower left photographed by Lewis Beck recently—Adolf Hitler last Monday delivering his threat to "rescue" Sudeten Germans, threw Germany on the brink of war. The entrance to the city is shown, with the Holy Virgin Tower in the background. Between the inner gate walls and the outer, there was once a moat. Today it is dry and trees and vegetation thrive there.

Miss Margaret Flowers, of Thomasville, Ga.—top center—returned from Germany and Austria two weeks ago. She tells of natives being gay, playing enthusiastically. She states that threats of war do not disturb them. Tourists are encouraged to spend freely and thus help fill the wanting state treasury with funds needed to finance a world war all Germans believe must come from necessity.

Lewis Beck—bottom center—spent the past 12 months attending school in Berlin under auspices of a Rosenwald fellowship. There the Griffin, Ga., boy lived in the homes of Germans, spoke their language and shared their thoughts. Beck brings back reports that the Germans, as a people, do not anticipate war before 1940 and that they worship Hitler as the "Angel of Peace."

It was in the old town shown at right center, built between 1300 and 1400 approximately, that Hitler spoke to the Nazi Congress Monday. This view of the bridge in Nurnberg was taken by Beck last spring.

Picturesque and quiet indeed, the Czech border appeared when this picture was snapped by Lewis Beck as he sailed down the Danube river, which marks the boundary between Hungary and Czechoslavakia. Now, troops are massed on both sides of the river.

THE TVA: AN INDUSTRIAL EMPIRE

Editor's Note: The foundation stones of what may become one of the greatest industrial empires in America are being laid in the Tennessee river valley by the TVA. The superstructure is still in the dream phase, like an architect's plan, and only the future can tell how it will grow. But the plans are vast and sweeping. John Lear, Associated Press reporter, tells what they are in the following story, the second of a series of three studies of the TVA. The final story, next Sunday, will tell of bigger TVA plans—plans for the lives of people

By JOHN LEAR.

NORRIS, Tenn., Sept. 17.—(AP)—The makings of a new industrial empire lie here in the Tennessee valley.

They are little known by-products of the TVA. If properly put together, they can build one of the greatest industrial regions in American history.

The task of assembling them is now beginning. When or how it will end are questions for time to answer.

The No. 1 "making" is the new navigation channel of the Tennessee river, which will be deepened to a year-round minimum of nine feet from its junction with the Ohio at Paducah, Ky., to Knoxville in east Tennessee—a distance of 648 miles—as a result of construction of TVA's series of power-producing, flood-controlling dams.

This channel will make the Tennessee a part of the largest improved inland waterway in the world, connecting with the Ohio and the Mississippi, the Gulf and the Great Lakes to touch a 5,700-mile network of port cities stretching from Florida, Louisiana and Texas to Illinois and Iowa, Minnesota and Michigan, New York and Pennsylvania.

As an avenue for goods moving to and from market, this water highway is intended to be the cheapest in existence. Here are some examples TVA engineers give of how freight rates on it compare with rail rates under present schedules of the Interstate Commerce Commission:

A 36,000-pound carload of iron and steel, from Chicago to Chattanooga, would cost 20 per cent less by water than by rail, a saving of $35.29. Chattanooga industries use 50,000 tons of steel a year. If all of this moved by water, its transportation would cost $98,000 less than by rail.

A 500-ton shipment of gasoline from Wood River, Ill., to Knoxville would cost $9.40 a ton by rail, $2.65 by water, a saving of 72 per cent.

A carload of canned goods, shipped from Newport, Tenn., to St. Louis, would cost 22 per cent less if moved by water and rail than if moved entirely by rail.

Drugs, medicines and chemicals could float from Peoria, Ill., to Decatur, Ala., at one-fifth less cost than by rail.

Business already is taking advantage of this lower marketing expense, although the deepening of the Tennessee channel will not be completed for at least nine more years. Wheat was shipped in by water this year from Kansas City, and gasoline from the Gulf, on big barges sharply in contrast with the picturesque packet boats of an earlier river boom. One tug can push three of these freighters easily, hauling as much as would two trainloads of 50 tank cars each. It is one way of beating rail freight rates which southerners say discriminate against them.

Industrial Development.

Up and down the river the first outlines of industrial development are taking shape. Terminal sites and waterfront locations for factories are being acquired along its banks, purchases being recorded to date at Chattanooga, Knoxville and Perrysville, Tenn., and Sheffield, Decatur, Gunthersville and Muscle Shoals, Ala. Inquiries on the prospects for navigation flow regularly into the offices of the TVA and the United States army engineers.

This growing activity is rooted in two historical facts:

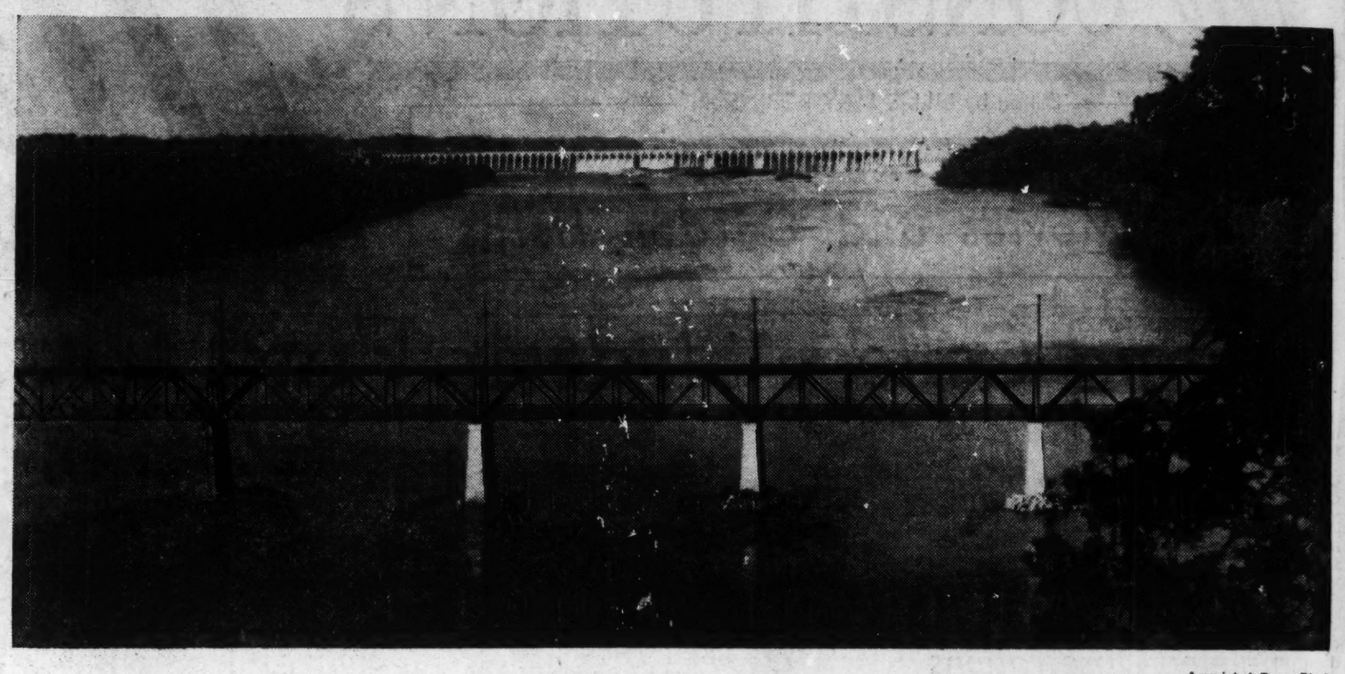

(1) Of the 3,071 counties in the United States, 39 produce 50 per cent of all the manufactured goods in the country and have 40 per cent of the nation's total effective purchasing power. Of the 39 counties, 35 have water transportation.

(2) Virtually all of the waterways that have been improved by the government since the World War have increased commerce by decreasing prices (transportation accounts for as much as 60 per cent of the price consumers pay for goods) and thus expanding consumption. Illinois river traffic multiplied 10 times in 10 years. The Mississippi System carries almost three times as much freight now as in 1920.

TVA traffic experts expect even better results from the navigation channel of the Tennessee than from other improved rivers. The high dams of the TVA, they say, mean fewer time-consuming locks and wider pools in which to navigate. The big lakes impounded behind the dams can absorb an ordinary flood with only a slight change in water level, providing a more constant shore line than is found in most rivers. Docks and loading equipment, therefore, will be correspondingly less expensive.

Contemplating these advantages, the TVA men go so far as to compare the Tennessee's inland possibilities with the coastal results of the Panama Canal, which stimulated industrial development all along the Atlantic, the Gulf and the Pacific.

The TVA is keeping a guiding hand on these vast potentialities to see that the thing is planned as much as possible for what it considers to be the best interests of the people of this territory. It has directed the acquisition of sites for publicly owned terminals. It is studying the relation between river transport and feeder lines, rail and truck, to reach into the back country in integrated development.

The one-time tiny Clinch river has spread into a vast lake behind the massive structure of concrete and steel which makes up Norris Dam, built by TVA. The lake eventually will cover 34,200 acres.

The resources of no section of the United States have been more thoroughly mapped than those of the Tennessee Valley have been in preparation for this unborn industrial empire. Without going further than 15 miles from the banks of the main stream or its tributaries, United States army engineers found:

Coal—1,835,000,000 tons of it.
Iron—169,047,000 tons.
Bauxite (aluminum)—700,000 tons.
Capper—8,000,000 tons.
Asphalt rock—17,000,000 tons.
Zinc—45,000,000 tons.
Phosphate rock—92,400,000 tons.

"Unknown but large" amounts of clay and marble and "inexhaustible" supplies of sand, gravel and limestone.

All these are easily available with existing methods of exploitation. When proper methods are developed, use can be made of even greater resources, including 2,768,072,000 tons of iron and 16,320,000,000 tons of coal.

From Clay to China.

The TVA says it has no plans for mining or processing these materials on a commercial scale itself. It is, however, conducting research to open the widest possible market for others.

Phosphate is one example of this. At Muscle Shoals, Ala., TVA chemists have taken an electric furnace method of producing "superphosphate," which had heretofore been used only in a limited way in laboratories, and developed it for large-scale production. Hundreds of thousands of tons of the stuff already have been produced for use as fertilizer on Tennessee valley farms. The fertilizer has been so successful in increasing the yield of crops that a steadily increasing demand is anticipated. That will mean big business for someone.

Ceramics is another example. In a laboratory here at Norris Dam, TVA researchers have developed another electric furnace method, this one to turn clay into fine china. The wares that are being produced do not compete with any currently American-made China or porcelain. They appear to equal the translucent qualities of fine English dinner plate and Japanese porcelains, the two of which now hold about 50 per cent of the American chinaware business. If experiments now under way succeed, mass production will be possible for certain types of high-grade dinner ware for the first time in history. That will mean more big business for someone.

In line with its power production program and its declaration of intention to raise living standards of the region, the TVA has encouraged the people of the valley to buy electrically powered machinery and other devices: pumps, milkers, separators, refrigerators, stoves, irons, radios, etc. New production will be required to feed this expanding market. And men will be needed to service the machines. That will mean still more business for someone.

But the TVA's planning in the field of electrical development goes beyond that, into the creation of new machinery such as the recently perfected device for quick freezing of fruits and vegetables.

This machine, developed to the point where it is small enough to be portable and cheap enough to be used on an individual farm, takes fresh fruits and vegetables, automatically slices them, dips them into a syrup whose temperature ranges from zero to 5 degrees Fahrenheit, and boxes them for market in 5 to 12 minutes.

TVA engineers say the advantage of this method is that only a thin film of syrup protects each slice of the frozen food and there is no waste in the package.

The farmer can control the time his output goes to market and, therefore, has greater control over the price.

In addition to developing this machine, the TVA research has brought forth a new type of refrigerated truck to haul the frozen food and what is reputed to be the first refrigerated barge in the world.

Soy bean and cottonseed processing are other lines of their endeavor in which TVA researchers say "there is no question . . . of the establishment of a new industry."

The region is covered with forest land, much of it pine, which in recent years has been hailed as the next source of paper pulp for the newspaper industry and the millions of dollars of investment it represents.

All these are industries of the future. Their development will take years. Business may consider TVA's hand in them, as it has considered TVA power, as government "interference" with private enterprise, or it may view the TVA activity—as it views research now in universities—as a boon to industrial initiative.

Recreation Centers.

There is one Tennessee valley industry, however, which already is partly grown: the business of helping people to have fun.

The big lake formed by erection of Norris Dam is rapidly becoming a playground. More than a million persons from all parts of the world visited it during the year which ended with June, 1938. Ten boat docks have been built along its shore. At one of them, $16,000 worth of boats is moored, and a recent count indicated that upwards of 1,000 boats were on the water the first half of the year. There is a great demand for commercial concessions along the 35,000-acre shortline, close to 1,000 applications being received by the TVA, which owns the land.

On wooded hills beside the lake, two recreation parks have been established, the first state parks in Tennessee. Located in them are 39 tourists' cabins which rent at $15 to $20 a week—all of them were rented this summer—in addition to ledges for large camping parties. Casual motorists can visit the parks and casual swimmers can reach the water on payment of a fee, for they operate on a pay-as-you-go basis.

The TVA people who manage the model town of Norris and the properties around it say the lake is already a rival to the Great Smoky mountains as a recreation resort. They expect an even greater popularity for the lakes produced by TVA's other dams on the Tennessee river itself (Norris dam is on a tributary: the Clinch river). Heavy excursion traffic is anticipated. The possibilities have been demonstrated by pleasure boats plying out of St. Louis and Cincinnati—floated upstream with the aid of an extra water output from Wilson dam at Muscle Shoals.

Fun never sounds very serious, but as an industry it is second biggest in the United. Only steel has a larger income. It is estimated that motor tourists alone spent $4,000,000,000 enjoying themselves this summer. It is an industry in which profits are shared all the way from food to bathing suits, from overnight shelter to automobile parts.

Those are the makings of the Tennessee Valley's industrial empire. With cheap electric power available not only from TVA but from private firms, and with cheap transport at hand, the possibilities are tremendous. A vast market is waiting, for the valley includes seven of the 10 states commonly referred to as "the south." And the south, with 20 per cent of the population and 11 per cent of the purchasing power, has plenty of room for industry. It packs only 2 per cent of the nation's meat, makes only 2 per cent of the clothes and 3 per cent of the farm machinery. President Roosevelt calls it "the greatest untapped market" in the land.

"Be Careful And Watch For Autos"

By FRANK DRAKE.

Every morning the mothers and fathers of Atlanta's and Fulton county's 90,000 school pupils give a warning to their children as they march off to school over streets teeming with traffic.

The little tots trotting off to school for the first times are the ones that need the warning most, but their older brothers and sisters have to be just as careful if they are to avoid death and injury from automobiles.

The simple rules for safety are:

1. Don't play in the streets.
2. Don't cross the street in the middle of a block.
3. Don't stand in the street thumbing rides.
4. Don't run out in the street chasing balls.
5. Don't hitch a ride on a car bumper.
6. Don't ride a bicycle in the center of the street, and take care when riding onto the street from a driveway.

Captain Malcom, who is appealing to children to be always careful, is also asking motorists to be extra watchful when passing schools and any place where children play. They may forget and dash out from behind a parked car directly under your wheels—to be killed or horribly injured.

The value of teaching children to watch out for themselves and to get into the habit of doing things safely is clearly apparent in Atlanta and Fulton county.

Two years ago the school boy patrol was started here. The drop in the accidental death rate of school age children has been startling.

Look at these figures, prepared by the Accident Prevention Bureau:

In the school year of 1936-1937, 15 children between the ages of 5 and 15 met death on Atlanta streets. Most of them were killed when they ran out in the street in the middle of the block.

Then, the school boy patrol was founded. In 1937-1938, only nine children between 5 and 15 were killed by automobiles. Three of these were bicycle deaths.

With one year's experience for background, the school boy patrol was further organized in Atlanta and Fulton schools. In 1938-39, only one school-age child met death on the streets.

This year, more than 1,000 boys are enlisted in the school boy patrol in Atlanta, Fulton and DeKalb counties. The patrols operate at 79 white schools and 13 negro schools. Patrolman Thomas is spreading the use of the school boy traffic officers rapidly.

Then too, the bicycle patrol has been formed recently. Rules are being made up for its members to teach them safety. Eventually, it will have its own judge and court to pass sentence on bicycle riders who fail to comply with the rules. Fewer bicycle accidents will be the result.

In the schools, safety rules are being taught children from the kindergarten grade up. Safety pictures are shown them. Lectures are made by school-boy patrolmen in the class rooms. Every effort is made to teach the children to do the safe thing automatically from force of habit.

It won't be long before regular classes in traffic safety are held in every school, just as first aid safety is taught in all grades now, traffic officers said.

"INVESTMENT IN YOUTH"

Toy Library, Sponsored by Atlanta Junior Chamber of Commerce, Pays Rich Dividends

By FAIN PEEK.

The Toy-Lending Library sponsored by the Atlanta Junior Chamber of Commerce is doing much to promote the welfare of children from infant age to that of 12 years.

The idea actually originated at the national convention of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce, held in Denver, Col., June, 1936. Several young men from various parts of the country were seated around a luncheon table waiting for reports of a special committee to get underway. From the formality of getting acquainted, casual conversation led to the discussion of different types of program work being conducted in the individual communities.

When Atlanta was especially commended for its Christmas tree activities for under-privileged children, it was agreed that although the Christmas programs were a most important phase of Jaycee work, but regretted no definite program had been worked out to serve children throughout the year. One remark led to the idea of an institution which was to be a reality in many cities throughout the nation. The remark was "If these children we help at Christmas time could only keep their toys the year 'round it would go far toward solving the problem." The response came, "They can have toys the year 'round. And not only the same toys, but a means could be devised whereby they might have new toys from time to time. After all, adults do not read the same books over and over again, and after a book is read once, there's a means of getting a new one."

There were no definite plans set up by this particular group, but all agreed the possibilities of the "Toy Library" should be investigated and brought before local bodies for investigation.

Several members of the Atlanta delegation talked briefly of the "Toy Library" on the return from Denver. The matter of securing toys would be simple, it was thought, but the matter of renting a building, paying a repair man, paying a librarian, buying paints, tools, lumber, nails, screws and supplies in general, naturally caused some of these young men to doubt the advisibility of such a program. And, as a matter of fact, they were absolutely correct, for the above mentioned items which require financing demand ten times the charity budget of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, or any other civic body, for that matter.

Nevertheless, there was one young man in this group who took to the "Toy Library" plan as these children were to take to the toys themselves. W. A. "Bill" Horne Jr., who later was elected president of the Atlanta Junior Chamber, offered to determine whether the idea was feasible

IDEA REFRESHED.

Much thought was given to the "Toy Library" as time went by, weeks and months of planning, as a matter of fact. Necessities were tallied much in the way a child would count his marbles. The one big question was how the money to carry on this program would be obtained.

Then Bill Horne Jr. found a special message of encouragement in a magazine article telling of other "Toy Libraries" were being operated by other Junior Chambers of Commerce in other communities. These local units had met the identical problems and explained how they were financing them.

A committee of four men, Bill Horne Jr., Johnny Phillips, Wilson Lavender and Charlie Rainer, took a copy of the magazine article to Jack Harne, director of the recreation department of the WPA, with the plan of having his department supplying the librarians, and the craftsman for the repair shop. The pictures accompanying this article tell the story. The pleasing part of this visit was the fact the WPA was overly enthusiastic about the project.

With Phillips, Lavender and Rainer serving as cochairmen, another committee meeting was celled to report the progress and to assign other members to phases of the project which would have to be worked out. Albert S. "Bert" Adams secured the location within two days' time. This came rent-free through the courtesy of Mrs. Ida Bressler. The 521 South Pryor street building was ideal.

A three-wheeled baby carriage, an odd wheel from another source, combined with the body of a wagon, are put together to supply hours of real pleasure for a gang of energetic boys in the Toy Library sponsored by the Atlanta Junior Chamber of Commerce.

RESTRICTED TOYS.

With a suitable building, a repairman and two librarians it would seem necessary only to scout about, gather up toys, then open the doors and let the kids pile in to borrow them. But it soon became apparent there was a great deal more to it than that.

First, there must be a list of toys which would be acceptable, as well as suitable and practical. There were certainly many which could not be used at all. Guns and other toys suggesting firearms were eliminated first. Then toys which were most likely to cause children to have accidents, and others which would tempt a child to enjoy most of his play in the street. Of course, these had to be banned. But there were still plenty of toys of different types to meet the most fantastic desires of the children.

TOY LUNCHEON.

The natural medium to look to for gathering of toys was the general membership of the Junior Chamber. Herbert Hayes, luncheon chairman of the organization, arranged a "Toy Library Luncheon," to which each member attending should bring a toy as the price of admittance. It could be either a second-hand toy or a new one.

Toys came in in large numbers. The resulting truck-load seemed ample for a start but it was soon discovered that to lend toys to children with the privilege of exchange requires a stock comparable to that of a toy store at Christmas time.

Local newspapers rallied to the proposition and people in large numbers phoned or carried toys directly to the library. Today there are more than 500 members of the "Toy Library," and the toys continue to come in.

The scope of the library can be understood when it is realized that the 500 children have borrowed exactly that number of toys and that there must be an equal number ready for exchange when they return.

It is not a simple process of giving a child a toy, then turning right around giving the one he brings in to another child, for each one must be completely disinfected before it goes out again. Every piece of a doll's clothing has to be laundered and pressed before another little girl takes it home to mother it for two weeks.

Then, a child often brings back a wagon with a broken handle, or a doll with paint scratched off its face. These have to be repaired, mended, or repainted before they can go out again. This doesn't necessarily mean the child has been careless, for the average child doesn't purposely abuse his treasure. But things do happen to possessions of even the most careful girl or boy.

CHILDREN GRADED.

Every child who is a member of the Toy Library has a numbered card, just as you have a card from your library. A complete record is kept on the member—the date when the toy is issued, when it is returned and the condition it is in when it is returned. Recently a "star" system has been adopted. When a child has shown extreme interest, and has taken unusually good care of a toy, a star is placed upon his card.

At Christmas time, the children having the best grades will be rewarded by Santa Claus. The little girls will be given Shirley Temple dolls and the boys, toys just as appropriate. These toys are already on hand and are being saved solely for that purpose.

Under the capable guidance of Miss McMichael, and Mrs. Deloach, the librarians, the child members have been taught the meaning of responsibility, appreciation and self-respect. In a diplomatic manner these two women school the youngsters in keeping clean and neat in appearance. A large group of smudgy, dirty faces and hands have been changed into bright, clean, shiny little youngsters.

Results of the early efforts have been so encouraging that it is the desire of the Jaycees to add several hundred more toys to the present library and to start another one in another section of town.

SECOND-HAND TOYS WANTED.

All toys, regardless of their condition, can be used. An odd skate, a couple of pieces of wood, a few nails and screws, and a coat of paint, and there is a scooter most boys would prefer to the "store-bought" models with all their new stream-lining. As many as four different dolls—an arm from one, a head from another, and the legs of the third and fourth—make up a doll which is as much appreciated as one just off a store counter.

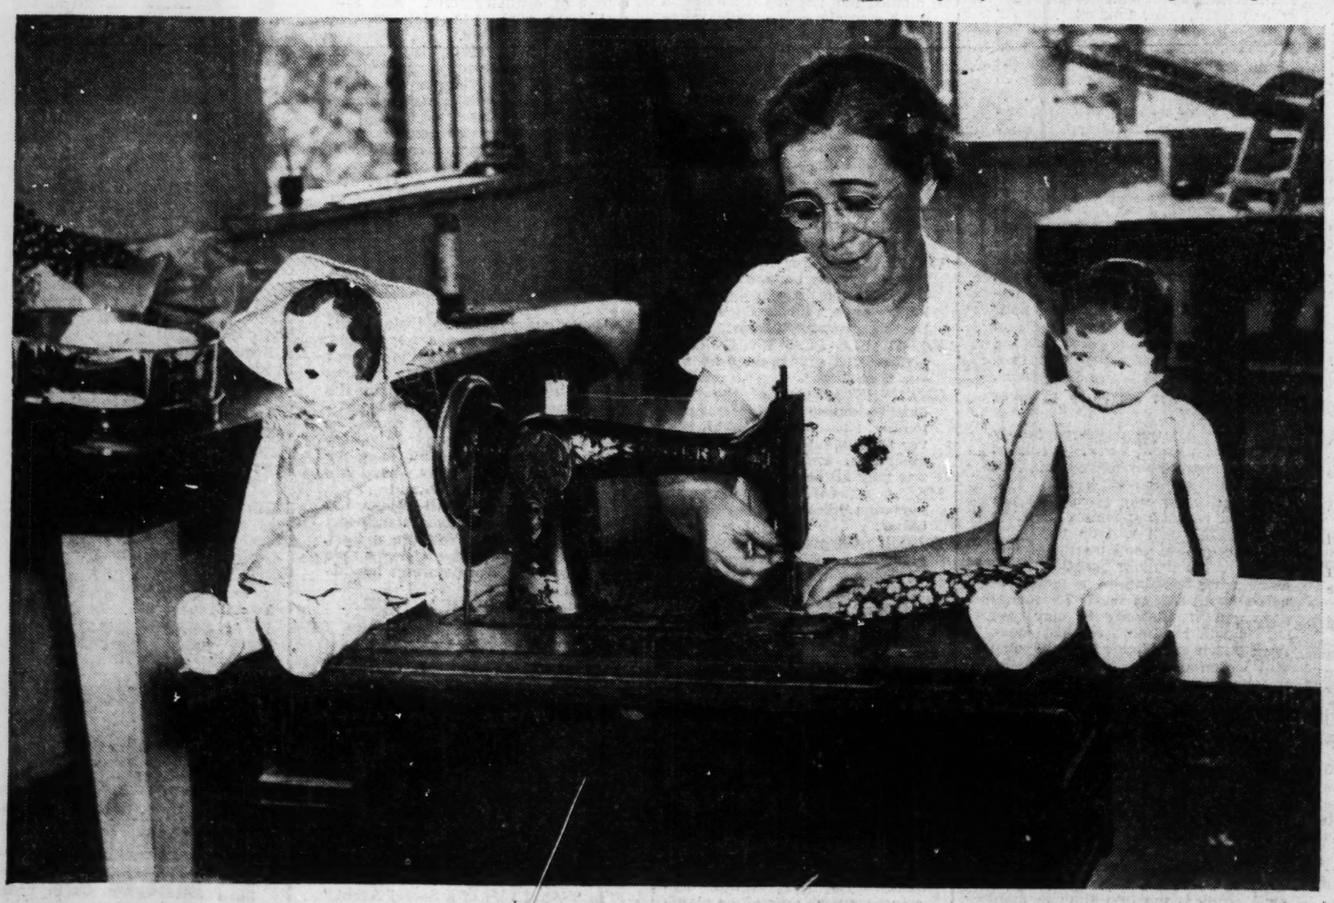

A three-wheeled baby carriage and an odd wheel from another source, combined with the body of a wagon, are put together to supply hours of real pleasure for a gang of energetic little boys. Waste cotton from rag dolls, excelsior straw, and other soft materials are made into a perfect mattress for a doll bed, and that doll bed probably has been supplied with a set of springs of fine chicken wire bordered with four little strips of molding. Sounds piece-meal, but the finished product is unbelievable. The boys and girls are proud of them. And the lessons they are being taught in the preservation of these articles is worth ten times the little trouble of making the lesson possible.

The Toy Library at 521 South Pryor street is open to the public for inspection between the hours of 2 p. m. and 3 p. m. each week-day, that interested people may see the great work being carried on and be encouraged not only to gather up used toys and contribute them, but to witness the courage being given to the hearts of the unfortunate children.

"Investment in Youth?" It's exactly that. Idle hours, which might have been spent in sneakish and impractical pranks, have been replaced with hours of good, healthy, constructive and wholesome recreation. With more than 500 members between infant age and 12, not a toy has been lost and comparatively few have been broken beyond repair.

Used and discarded toys can be put to no better use than that they become an investment in Atlanta's youth. Donors may take their contributions direct to the Toy Library or have them picked up by calling the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

It is in this way that youth may be better served in the addition of another Toy Library—another "Investment in Youth."

Mrs. L. L. DeLoach, one of the two librarians, is making a sewing machine hum as she turns out dolly wardrobes which will be adored by hundreds of "little mothers" who will cuddle rebuilt dolls secured from the Junior Chamber of Commerce Toy Library.

A FORGOTTEN FORT

By RACHAEL HUTCHERSON.

One would expect to find forts as headquarters of the army, or where wars have recently been waged, but that such a structure should stand in the quiet, red old hills of Georgia is unthinkable. Yet such a fort does stand in the upper end of Madison county near the Hudson river, with the date 1790 carved on one of the huge logs on the western side. What is most unthinkable is the fact that the fort was built to protect the early white settlers from the Indians.

Previous to the year 1733 when the colony of Georgia was founded, the only inhabitants of this section of the country were Indians, and for many years afterward, their number far exceeded the whites. Their settlements were scattered from the coast to the mountains. For the most part they were friendly, but at times the whites had great difficulties. The fort stands to substantiate this fact.

Built on one of the highest hills surrounding the little village which was named for it, the old hewed log fort offered a good outlook over the surrounding country. And, too, such a location would make an attack on it very difficult.

Tales are told of how the Indians camped in the enormous canebrake in the river valley below the fort in an effort to make a victorious attack of the little village, but the little fort always stood in the way.

For white men to even attempt to evacuate the swamp of the Indians would have been utterly impossible because the canes were from one and a half to two inches in diameter, and to become lost among them the easiest thing in the world.

That the fort was attacked can be readily verified by the bullet holes to be found today in the logs. It takes some imagination to smell the powder in them, though. Some of the older people of the community who can remember the fort before it was made into a dwelling say that numerous loopholes are to be found on the western side.

The fort was named for Captain Lamar who was a leader in the efforts to make the community, and to help make the whole colony safe for civilized people. And the little village is also called Fort Lamar.

The original fort had two rooms and an attic. The logs, measuring from about 12 to 18 inches in thickness, were, of course, hewed by hand, which makes the structure all the more interesting. Today the fort, having been weather-boarded years ago and claiming two additional rooms and porch, looks like an ordinary run-down, vacant renter's house, which is exactly what it is.

Where the weather-boarding has come off in one spot is where the date mentioned previously can be found. The many rainstorms that have beaten against it have caused the figures to become almost invisible. It was necessary to mark over the date with chalk in order to get a picture of it.

Except for strangers or former residents of the community, the little fort is left almost to itself. To reach the fort one must walk up a winding red clay road, bordered on one side by a pasture fence overgrown with weeds, and on the other side by an impenetrable strip of honeysuckle vines. The yard, or what was once the yard, is a mass of weeds and briars.

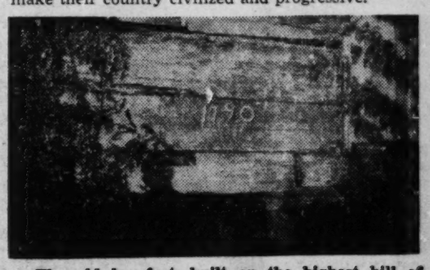

To one who knows the present peacefulness of the surrounding country it is hard to believe that at any time it was necessary for anyone to seek the protection of the fort in order to preserve his life. Fragments of pottery and arrowheads can still be found on these old red hills, as reminders that we are indeed fortunate to be at peace with our neighbors.

Several interesting stories are told in connection with the fort. One concerns the man who lived there during the War Between the States.

A fragment of Sherman's army was passing through, and, as is well known, they would take feedstuffs, horses and anything else they could use and burn the rest. After they had taken everything the man in the fort had, he pondered as to the best way to get back some of his property.

The thought which struck him was to go to the Union soldiers' camp and give the commanding officer the handshake of the lodge to which he belonged, in the hope that the officer was a member of the same lodge and would, therefore, have mercy. It worked. The officer had all the man's property returned.

The fort stands as a fitting memorial to those pioneers who braved the hardships of colonists to make their country civilized and progressive.

The old log fort, built on the highest hill of that section, offered an excellent look-out over the surrounding country and made an attack very difficult. The date, 1790, is plainly seen on one of the logs of the western side.

WHEN JUSTICE TRIUMPHED

Jealous Passion Turns Minister Into Murderer

By ED HARLAN GIBSON.

"We shall understand it better by and by," sang five fear-crazed wavering voices as an automobile careened down a dusty side road near Fisk, Mo., on the night of October 13, 1936.

The car stopped but the song went on as flame belched from a heavy automatic, carrying death to two of the singers. Then the car went on again, leaving the lifeless bodies of a girl and a young man in the road.

Fisk, a typical rural community of 350 inhabitants, nestles in the foothills of the Ozark mountains. The rich fields surrounding it provide the farm folk with their livelihood. As in most rural communities, church activities furnish the main interest outside the home. Consequently, the townspeople respected and depended on the guidance of the Rev. William C. Fain, ordained minister of the Christian faith.

Preacher Fain was a short, stocky man with a round, jovial face. During week-days he operated a sawmill on the banks of the St. Francis river to help provide for his sickly wife and their ten children.

When Mrs. Fain died early in 1936, the preacher was frantic with grief. Why had this thing occurred? He had worked hard and tried to follow the ways of God. He had preached to his flock these comforting words and now, what had he done to be punished so cruelly?

Day after day he walked the streets of the town, muttering Bible verses as if to reassure himself, seemingly trying to understand this tragedy that had come into his life.

The shock proved too great. Acquaintances and friends alike began to avoid him; his beloved church work was discarded. No longer did the people hear the hum of his sawmill on the river bank. Moreover, Preacher Fain took to drink.

HOMELESS GIRL OF 17 ENTERS PREACHER'S LIFE.

However, there was one soft spot in his heart—his children. Somehow he always managed to provide for them—and it was this solicitude that brought about the great tragedy.

By the middle of the summer, Fain realized that he must have help in caring for his brood, so he made it known that he was seeking a housekeeper.

At the same time fate decreed that lovely 17-year-old Beulah Evans should find life a difficult problem. Vivacious and attractive, she was extremely popular and her urge for gayety and the company of young men brought many reprimands.

Finally her recklessness so aroused her foster-parents that they ordered her to pack up and leave. The die was cast when friends suggested that she see the preacher.

Fain was elated at finding some one to look after his children. He promised Beulah room and board and $2.50 per week for her services.

The girl worked extra hard to show her gratitude. The little house fairly shone and the children were well cared for once more. It looked like a happy situation all around.

Shortly, residents of Fisk again heard the buzz of the sawmill as it echoed through the foothills. The preacher had taken a new lease on life. His wild orgies of drinking stopped and the townspeople noted that he was now spending all his spare time with his family. The heavy, haunted look left his eyes and he again became the jovial man he was before death visited his home.

But there was a reason, the gossips said. 'Twas whispered that the preacher and red-haired Beulah had become more to each other than employer and housekeeper.

Fain paid no attention to the wagging tongues; he did not even try to hide his passion for the girl. He constantly talked of her, bought her little gifts. Indeed, he hardly let her out of his sight.

Autumn came, with its many box socials and dances. Beulah grew restless; she yearned for the company of younger men in the community. She pleaded with Fain to take her out, but the 48-year-old lover had no desire to leave the comfort of his now happy home.

Finally, however, he was forced to allow her to go to the socials—but with her girl friends only.

Thus she returned to the whirl of excitement among her friends. The boys found Beulah even more desirable, more beautiful than before. They fairly rushed her off her feet.

Fain, noticing how she looked forward to each social event, became suspicious. Was she accepting the attentions of young men, he inquired. Beulah couldn't hide her guilt even though she denied it.

Furious, Fain threatened her. He told her it must not go on. He compelled her to sign an agreement promising she would not go out with boys.

But fate decreed otherwise.

At one of the socials Beulah met Ralph Affholder and fell madly in love with him. Before long they were seeing each other often. They talked about marriage.

Preacher Fain got wind of this, and one night caught the girl sneaking away to meet her sweetheart. Inflamed with insane jealousy, he moved toward her, his face contorted, his eyes burning murderously.

"You belong to me," he said. "I've possessed you and I'll kill you, understand? I'll kill you before I'll let another man have you!"

Terrified, Beulah fled to her room and locked the door. For three days she never left the house. Then, on October 3, she heard Fain leave.

As soon as the coast was clear, she slipped out the back door, and presently arrived, tired and dusty, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Loren O'Dell, four miles north of Fisk.

Georgia and Loren O'Dell, married only a few months, were extremely happy in their little farm home. They were glad to see her leave the preacher. Moreover, they knew that Affholder, then in Pontiac, Mich., planned to come for Beulah in the near future.

For nine days Beulah hardly left the O'Dell house. Meanwhile, Fain, with a set smile and a glazed look in his eyes, spent his entire time searching for her.

Unaware of these conditions at home, Myrtle, Fain's oldest daughter, returned for a visit, during which she revealed that she and her fiance, Clayton Wells, were planning to be married soon. To her amazement her father, who had previously expressed admiration for young Wells, flew into a rage and told her that he wouldn't have it.

"But why! I don't understand. We——"

"You'll stay here and take care of your brothers and sisters," he told her. "You'll not marry anybody. If you do"—he glared at her—"I'll kill you both!"

Myrtle was terrified. Father must be ill, she thought. Surely he couldn't mean what he said. Perhaps in a few days things would be different.

October 13 arrived. Beulah found hiding out a great bore. When the O'Dells announced their intention of driving into town she promptly decided to go along.

With the O'Dell house barely out of sight, Fain's 1925 Hudson coach loomed up ahead, blocking the roadway. There was nothing they could do but stop and face him.

"I knew I'd find you sooner or later," he said as he stepped from his car. "Are you coming home with me, Beulah?"

"No. I won't," she replied. "I hate you! Why won't you leave me alone?"

"You mean that? Even after what I told you?"

"Yes. I mean it. Now please let us pass."

But Fain wasn't giving up so readily. Finally he got Beulah to promise to come and get her clothes at least. Only then did he allow the wagon to pass and proceed on its journey to Fisk.

It was late afternoon when they reached town. Since Fain's car had crawled along behind them all the way, the young folks decided they had better go to his home at once so that Beulah could get her clothes. Then perhaps he would leave them alone.

A short while later the O'Dells and Beulah, carrying a battered suitcase, visited the Heffner general store at Fisk and bought some groceries. Felix Lashley, a neighbor of Fain, was also in the store. Loren O'Dell drew him aside.

"Say, Lashley," he asked in an undertone, "have you got a gun I could borrow for a few days?"

"A gun? What would you be wantin' with a gun, Loren?" Lashley asked.

"I'm thinkin' there's going to be some trouble, and I just wanted to be prepared."

"But shucks, you don't need no gun! Besides, I haven't got one."

HE DRINKS HEAVILY AND FLOURISHES GUN.

Just before starting home, they stopped in at the Jolly Cafe for a bite to eat. Beulah and Georgia found a secluded corner table and Loren stepped up to the bar.

"I'll have a beer," he told the bartender, Bryon Adams.

"Hello, Loren!" came a soft voice over his shoulder. "I could stand a beer, too.

O'Dell swung around and looked into the eyes of Fain.

Fain drank heavily. Soon he was laughing and joking with the other men gathered there. Thoroughly scared, Beulah huddled farther into the corner.

But perhaps, after all, there was nothing to fear. Perhaps Fain had forgiven everything.

Myrtle Fain entered the cafe with her 9-year-old brother, Charles, and made straight for the table where Beulah and Georgia sat.

Fain immediately took O'Dell by the arm and led him over to the table, too. With only a glance at Myrtle and Charles, he suggested that they all go to the pie social at the schoolhouse.

"But, Daddy," Myrtle protested. "I don't think they'd care to go. It's late and they have a long drive ahead of them."

Beulah jumped up. "Myrtle's right," she said. "We'd better get started home, Georgia——"

She didn't finish because she found herself staring into the barrel of Fain's automatic.

"Now," he said, "we are all going to the social, understand! One wrong move and Beulah gets it. My car is outside, let's go!"

THEY SING A HYMN BEFORE TWO ARE SLAIN.

Keeping his gun hidden, he herded them out to his car. O'Dell was placed in the front seat, the rest crowded into the rear. Then Fain headed for the schoolhouse.

O'Dell tried to think. At the school there would be a crowd—perhaps he could throw this madman off his guard long enough to get help.

But then Fain swung into a side road away from the schoolhouse.

"This isn't the way!" cried Beulah.

"Shut up, you dirty little double-crosser," said Fain. "You've said enough!"

The car sped down the dark road. Then, suddenly, the madman applied the brakes.

"Now, everybody sing with me, 'We'll understand it better by and by.'"

He raised his voice but there was no response from his passengers.

"SING!" he shouted, waving his gun. "SING, as you never have before!"

They began to sing—and Fain opened the car door and ordered Beulah to get out.

"Oh, please," she begged. "I don't want to!"

"Come on out! Move fast!"

He reached in and dragged her out. The broken voices sang on, the singers not daring to think what the next moment might bring. They could hear Beuluah arguing with Fain as he tried to take her into his arms.

"Please, please!" they heard. "Don't do that! I don't want to die!"

Loren O'Dell could stand no more. He leaped out of the car and started toward Fain, who was holding the struggling girl in his arms.

The preacher raised his gun and fired once. O'Dell dropped. Myrtle, Charles and Mrs. O'Dell jumped from the car and started running down the road. Fain fired several shots after them. Then his son, Charles, not understanding, turned back and pleaded with his father not to shoot any more.

But while the child looked on, Fain shot Beulah in the back as she broke from his grip and ran. The bullet went through her body. As she fell he knelt down beside her.

"I love you," he said, kissing her.

Presently, sighting Myrtle and Mrs. O'Dell cowering in the brush, he ordered them to enter his car. They did so. And then, to make matters worse, he turned the car around and started back. The headlights revealed the two blood-stained bodies in the road.

"You've killed him," cried Georgia. "Why did you do it? Loren never did you any harm! Let me out!"

He turned out enough to pass the bodies and said, "Forget him. Now you can marry me."

Thus indicating that Georgia was to be spared, Fain announced that there were still two persons he would kill—Myrtle and her sweetheart, Clayton Wells. A short time later he drew up before Wells' home.

PREACHER CONVICTED, SENTENCED TO LIFE.

Awakened, Wells opened the door to find Fain holding a gun in his hand and ready to kill.

"I've just killed two——"

But Fain got no farther, for Wells swung at him and the next moment it was all over.

Wells drove his captive to the sheriff's office at Poplar Bluff, where the witnesses told their stories.

Prosecutor Randolph H. Weber filed two charges of first degree murder and on February 8, 1937, Fain went on trial for the murder of Loren O'Dell. He claimed he shot O'Dell after O'Dell had killed Beulah and then threatened to kill him.

"I left my gun in the car when Beulah and I got out for a walk," he testified. "O'Dell got out with the gun in his hand and shot the girl. Then I took the gun away from him and shot him three times."

Testifying for the state, Mrs. O'Dell said:

"After Loren left the car, the rest of us got out and started down the road. We heard one shot over our heads, then another shot. We started to run. We heard Beulah crying; there was another shot. She stopped crying. Later there were two more shots. Later, when he found Myrtle and me and ordered us into the car, he said, 'I killed them both, and I'll kill you if you tell.' Then he drove back by the bodies——"

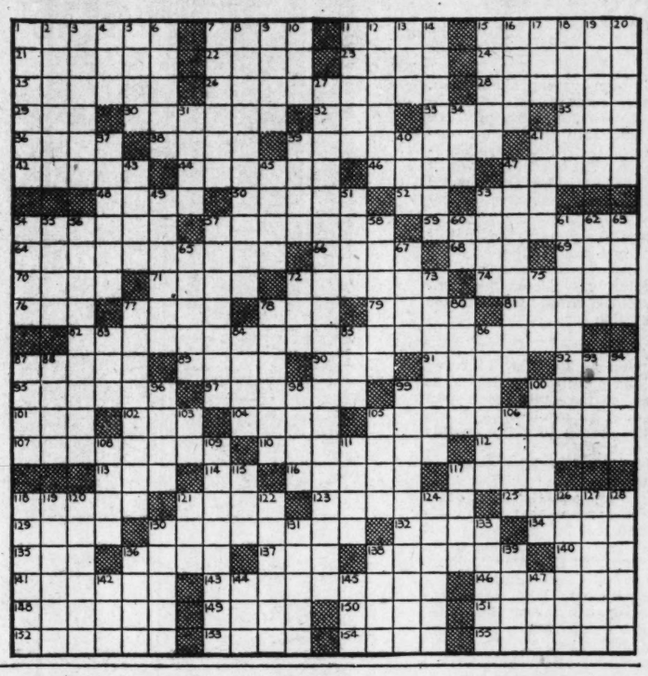

The case went to the jury at 4:15 on February 10. A guilty verdict was reached within a few minutes. The jurors were 11 to 1 for the death penalty, but later agreed on a life sentence without parole.

And so once more Justice triumphed, spelling finis to the career of the former minister of God whose unleashed passion and jealousy made him a minister of death.

Solution of Last Week's Puzzle

Questions, Answers On Garden Subjects

By MRS. FLETCHER PEARSON CROWN

Question: Is it too early to plant winter grass?

Answer: Judging from the weather today I would say quickly, "Plant." But there are modifications. If we should have a dry spell, would you be willing to do the necessary watering? We never quite know when fall will arrive here in Georgia. Sometimes we have a very dry October, sometimes a very wet, or a very hot month. I really like to plant winter grass early, for if the weather is favorable you will get an early start. My lawn is so small that it is no hardship to replant should nature give us a bad break. So if your place is not very big, go ahead and plant. Do your part towards keeping it watered and you will soon have a lovely green lawn ready for winter.

Question: Is it too early to plant narcissus?

Answer: All the narcissus family like to get planted early, in August or September. They make a big root growth during the early fall. This helps in their spring bloom. Do not make the mistake of feeling that any place or any soil will do for them. They appreciate good treatment and will give much more beautiful blossome when planted in a well-prepared spot. Dig at least 18 inches deep and if the soil is clay you should add leaf-mold or peat moss. Also, much sand added to the clay will loosen the soil. Strange to say, it takes much more sand added to clay to make it friable, than it does clay added to sand to give it body. Sifted coal ashes are also splendid to make the soil loose. Bone meal is an excellent fertilizer. Do not use any manure so that it will touch the bulbs. However, it can be placed in the bottom of the bed so that the roots will later feed on it.

Do not plant tulips yet, though it is a good idea to place your order early if you have a decided preference. Now is the best time to plant peonies, and next week I will tell you more about planting them.

Beauty of Hyacinths

By W. ELBRIDGE FREEBORN.

To get a true understanding of the beauty and usefulness of the hyacinth it is necessary to go back into French and Dutch history. More than a century ago the French garden idea was one of formality, of straight lines, not curves, and one of exact height in almost every case, so that the Dutch bulb growers were striving to give the French people just what they wanted in their conception of natural beauty. They worked for years toward uniformity. This uniformity was found in color and in shape. So we have inherited from our French neighbors a spring-flowering bulb of exact proportions that still may be used for formal effect, but one that in the recent striving for natural beauty, is being used more and more in borders and informal gardens.

And so this very fragrant, spring-flowering bulb was actually created, and for its purpose was ideal, being short, stocky and absolutely uniform and formal. At the same time that this was happening the other varieties of hyacinth bulbs were practically discarded and even today they are less widely known and less widely planted than the more commonly known bedding hyacinth. The Roman hyacinths and double hyacinths are hardly ever seen.

The hyacinth fills a very distinct need in making an almost ideal flower box plant. Now that our summer flowering plants, such as petunias, verbenas, ferns, and coleus are dying in our porch boxes, we are searching for some other things of beauty to fill these boxes for the winter. A great many of us turn to bulbs, and in thinking of bulbs, almost at once the mind goes to the hyacinth, with its short stocky growth making an ideal flower for this purpose. Oftentimes the window boxes are planted with evergreens, using boxwood, Chinese junipers, aucubas and golden arborvitae, planting around them the beautiful, fragrant Dutch hyacinths.

Whether hyacinths are planted in formal beds by themselves or planted in small groups in a mixed border, they will almost always be greatly improved by having planted in among them other spring-flowering plants.

After all, hyacinths are probably preferred more for their fragrance than for their form. Some of the plants that can be used to good advantage with hyacinths are arabis and sweet alyssum.

Outdoor Culture.

Probably the most important single cultural direction for hyacinths as in the case of almost every other bulb, is drainage. Hyacinths will not bloom satisfactorily, nor will they grow even at their second best if they are planted where water stands in soil about the bulbs.

There are several ways of providing drainage. The first, and in many instances the most advisable method, is to select a situation on a slope. The natural drainage will be sufficient to carry off the surplus water. If this drainage is not sufficient it may be necessary to take a fork and break up the subsoil thoroughly. This is done by removing the top eight or 10 inches of top soil and thoroughly spading subsoil to a depth of one to one and a half feet.

There are some instances where this method will not be sufficient and in such a case, the only practical procedure is to remove two or two and a half feet of soil and place at the bottom some five or six inches of ashes, broken pottery, and other drainage matter. In some cases drainage tile will be practical. This method may be used with very small beds. Still a fourth method that is very effective is that of raising the level of

WHAT TO PLANT IN SEPTEMBER.

VEGETABLES: For fall planting, include carrots, cress, corn, salad leek, lettuce, Aragon spinach, kale, rape, mustard, radish, Swiss chard and turnips.

VEGETABLE PLANTS: Cabbage and collard plants may be set out now.

ONION SETS: One of the best onion planting months is September. New yellow danver, silver skin onion sets, multipliers, eschellotes and Bermuda onion sets may all be planted.

MADONNA LILIES: The sooner madonna lilies are planted the better.

IRISES: German iris may be planted and preparation should be made for the bulbous iris which will soon follow.

PERENNIALS: Pansies, hollyhocks, delphinium, aquilegia, canterbury bells, shasta daisy, English daisy, foxglove, Oriental poppies, gypsophila, candytuft and rudbeckia may all be started from seed.

GRASSES: We will have to give our lawns immediate attention. Rye grass for the Bermuda lawn may be planted now and the lawn mixtures may be planted now too. Rye grass may be planted at the rate of 10 pounds to the 1,000 square feet and the mixtures at the rate of five founds to the 1,000 feet.

BULBS: Daffodils, tulips, hyacinths, crocus may all be planted now.

BOOKS

And Their Authors

When Kings Were Kings.

CRIPPLED SPLENDOR, By Evan John. E. P. Dutton & Co., New York. $2.50.

This splendid example of fictionized history presents the strange and exciting life, glorious romance, and terrible death of James Stuart, first of that name, companion-in-arms to Henry V, prisoner, poet, musician, soldier, lover and king.

"Crippled Splendor" depicts how a king's imprisonment changed a gentle boy into a stern ruler, his illusions gone and a revenging sword in his hand. Picture then an angry king, who smashed arrogant nobles, confiscated estates enriched by oppression, slew treacherous lordlings, flung savage highland clans back into their mountain hideouts, and brought law and order.

James I reigned but 12 years, but in that time he changed Scotland's grief to glory, and he wooed and won the girl he had first seen from his prison, and he cherished her to the end.

James I became king of Scotland in 1406. He was the first of the name to rule in that land, and ris descendant became James I, King of England and Scotland at the close of the Tudor reign in England. It was a most interesting period in history, and this James, royal in wrath and love, was every inch a King, the splendor of whose life was ended by a dagger thrust.

A Freshman In Africa.

BEATING ABOUT THE BUSH. By Brian O'Brien. Lee Frman, New York. 352 pp. $2.50.

When the young Irishman, Brian O'Brien, shipped to the Cameroons as an employe of the British Prince Trading Company, he was thirsting for adventure. In the African jungle he found terrifying tracks made by beasts never seen by man. He saw traders disappear from sluggish rivers, fashionably dressed women preening themselves in tiny out-stations. Mysterious white men came out of the gloom of nowhere, stayed a while, and then faded into the misty greenness of the forests.

O'Brien became the oracle and the judge of the natives. Some of them were but lately cannibals, and had been confusingly under the rule of three nations since the World War. They respected the Germans, liked the English, but could not understand the French.

A tale of high adventure and stolen romance that will take the reader into the heart of the continent that still holds adventure for the daring explorer.

Story Well Told.

FORBIDDEN PATH. By William J. Walters. Dodd, Mead & Co., New York. 236 pp. $2.

In the life of every prodigal there is a story. Here the author takes one life and weaves of its breath and blood and weaknesses a story that will grip and rend the heartstrings.

On the four walls of a cubicle in an exclusive mental hospital, Bill Wheeler sees the traceries of excitements and experiences he would like to forget—and remember. Yet, as days pass, he finds on those self-same walls a picture of brighter days ahead—a vision of a future blessed instead of damned.

"Forbidden Path" is not a preachment against fast living, nor an exhortation to follow the primrose path—yet it achieves that aim in a manner few but this author could employ and still retain the beauty of a story well told. —P. T.

Brilliant Story.

CHALLENGE FOR THREE. By David Garth. H. C. Kinsey & Co., Inc., New York. 282 pp. $2.

Remember them? "Four Men and a Prayer;" "Angels Are Cowards;" "Never Mind the Lady." And last year's popular "A Love Like That." David Garth comes now with still another absorbing novel to broaden the scope of his reader-public.

Few people know Fontaine Shaw. Her orbit lies far from the humdrum course of ordinary lives. And that makes her story all the more exciting for ordinary readers.

"Challenge for Three" is a story of Fontaine, of Professor Jock Pemberton, and of a burlesque dancer—a story filled with excitements, of recklessness and of loyalty. And there are the stark terms of Fontaine's father's will, which shapes the ultimate course of a story well written and brilliantly told. —J. T.

Folklore and Art.

Diego and Popo, two little Mexican boys, with Diego's pet parrot, Polly, find a tree lizard, the ancient iguana. This animal that "knows everything in the world" lives in the deep forest but would make a wonderful addition to Diego's zoo. The adventures of Diego and Popo, the capture and return of the iguana, the surprise findings of Polly weave into a story that pleases the reader.

Mrs. Armer, the artist-author, has lived in Mexico and understands and appreciates Mexican folklore and art. Wisely she makes her story simple and absorbing, her paintings beautiful and clear.

Behind the Scenes.

SECRET LIFE OF A SECRET AGENT. By Henry W. Lanier. J. B. Lippincott Co., Philadelphia. 307 pp. $2.50.

Here is another Georgian who has achieved and is holding a major place in literature: Henry Wysham Lanier, son of the poet, Sidney Lanier, and native of Milledgeville.

Innumerable readers know Lanier for his last books, "He Did Not Die at Meyerling," in which he collaborated with the mysterious "R."

In "Secret Life of a Secret Agent," Lanier collaborates again with a man of mystery, serving as biographer for an unnamed member of the underground service of an unnamed nation. He writes interestingly of the background of a spy in the making of the rigorous training undergone and of feats achieved in the service. He brushes aside some of the glamor of the service as others see it, and pictures it as the operative sees, yet not without its adventures and its thrills. —J. T.

Success of a Genius.

FROM CAPTIVITY TO FAME, by Raleigh H. Merritt, Meador Publishing Company, Boston. Illust. 230 pp. $2.00.

This book is a biography of Dr. George Washington Carver, of Tuskegee Institute, Alabama. The struggles of the young man, born of slave parents, failed to dim his ambitions and desire for learning. Industrious, resourceful and intelligent, the youth molded each opportunity into a pattern of usefulness.

In 1896 Booker T. Washington was instrumental in bringing Dr. Carver to Alabama where he has continued his experiments and research. Recognizing the possibilities and needs of the southern farmer, Dr. Carver has successfully established new industries in many localities. He found more than 200 products from the peanut and nearly as many from the sweet potato.

This book is written by one of Dr. Carver's friends, who intimately sketches the scientist's life. The appendix contains peanut and sweet potato recipes, menus and numerous suggestions valuable to farmers.

Buying on Credit.

THE FOLLY OF INSTALMENT BUYING. By Roger W. Babson. F. A. Stokes & Co., New York. 248 pp. $1.50.

Instalment buying is the rather shaky foundation upon which American business is largely built, and the instability of such business is likely to cause not only financial catastrophe but political disaster, according to the report of Roger W. Babson on the evils of instalment buying as it is practiced today in America.

People are too prone to take advantage of an enticing advertisement offering something close to the heart's desire at only a nominal down payment, without considering the responsibilities attached. As a result they are mercilessly fleeced, and all old saws such as "A burnt child dreads the fire" notwithstanding, permit themselves to be fleeced over and over again, simply for the satisfaction of "getting things at once."

To alleviate this dangerous situation, Mr. Babson suggests simply that buyers teach themselves the wisdom of instalment saving. Such a course would not only save them 10 per cent of the original price of the merchandise but also banish the dread of collectors and stop the continual drain upon the buyer's resources.

Juvenile.

LAZY LIZA LIZARD. By Marie Curtis Rains, illustrated by Vera Neville. John C. Winston Co., Philadelphia. 184 pp. $2.

Though Lazy Liza Lizard is a character full of schemes and tricks, she is interesting and lovable. Liza plots her way into the happenings of every neighbor—Mr. Snake, Old Mr. Frog, Old Lady Field Mouse, the Field-Mouse children, and Dr. Doodle-bug. Wise Mr. Frog is always on to her tricks and has a diplomatic cunning way of causing Liza to aright the mischief.

Marie Rains' knowledge of children is apparent in "Lazy Liza Lizard." The repetition of words, the fanciful characters, the quick moving incidents, the subtle but desirous victory of right over wrong are such to delight the young reader. Vera Neville gives emotion and action to her drawings and pictures each character with a deft quality that makes them alive.

"Lazy Liza Lizard" will make many new friends who will soon be requesting more adventures of Liza.

The Way of Justice.

SO I WENT TO PRISON. By Edna V. O'Brien. Frederick A. Stokes Company, New York. 282 pp. $2.50.

If you, though holding a fulsome respect for ordered society, should feel the stern, cold hand of the law fall unexpectedly on your shoulder; if you should find yourself arrested and found guilty on a charge of grand larceny—what would you do?

When Edna O'Brien went to Bedford Prison, she went as you, no doubt would go. It was an experience unreal—like a bad dream. And what she found behind those grim bars was to prove even more like a bad dream. But Edna O'Brien held a firm grip on her personality, and lived through those days materially unscathed by her drab experience—and the story she has to tell, the convictions she has to express, and the theories she has to expound on the rightness and the wrongness of justice's uncertain ways, constitute a

Milady Must Be Fashion-Wise

By YOLANDE GWIN.

Hair is on the up-and-up this season.

To be smartly coiffured, the glamour girl must pin up her long bob. The page-boy is out. She must pile up hair high on her head like the fashion when mother was a girl and went riding with father on a bicycle-built-for-two in the gay nineties.

Gone are the days of the informal hair style. The glamour girl is out and her aristocrat sister is in. Milady has gone sentimental with a new elegance that comes with doll hats, plumes and muffs. It's now a case of on-with-the-upswing and off-with-the-down-beat.

Hair is brushed high on the head with masses of little curls. Leading Atlanta hair stylists say that a woman MUST have a well-shaped head, an attractive neckline and pretty ears—she will show them, too—in wearing the new hair style.

With the revival of upbrushed hair, coquetry and a romantic attitude has come to the fore, according to hair dressers here. They say that the women are having their hair piled higher and higher to wear the new hats tip-tilted dangerously over the right eye, to show their curls and also the coquettish gleam in the left eye.

Atlanta hair dressers are featuring three styles—the new up-style which is very extreme; the up-and-down, which features curls piled high on the head and behind the ears, and a modified up-style which is not as extreme as the new up-style.

Atlanta women are trying the new upward arrangement, but as one hair stylist says:

"This new headdress is very formal. Will the Atlanta women want it for a day-in and day-out style? Will they want to have their long hair clipped for proper arrangement of the upward swoop? Last week we had over 200 women in our shop for the new style. They were back in three days for a re-combing. This new fashion cannot be done right and with the proper style at home. It means at least two trips a week to the beauty parlor, and sometimes three. It's going to take the Atlanta women several weeks to realize that to be properly coiffed they must suffer the consequences. We can fashion an aristocrat or a glamour girl. It's up to them. It's a case of the queen is dead—long live the queen!"

Here are some tips on the up-and-up style, now that everything seems to be going to milady's head:

Don't try the onion skin peel unless your hairline around your ears is perfect.

Don't leave your ears entirely nude unless they are the kind the poets rave about—which means they are pink and perfect.

Don't pile your hair all on top of your head in the daytime unless you are brave enough to venture boldly forth with an almost nothing-type hat. A regular hat has no place on a nest of curls.

Don't forget there will be the great open spaces on the back of your head if you don't have the correct swoop of curls and waves.

Don't forget that the career girls demand an easy-to-keep hairstyle. (If you are a trained nurse you'll want short upward flares at the side and temple; a crisp upturned roll at the neck for the business girl, and for the school teacher, a coiffure stressing feminine side waves and fluffy curls massed on the forehead.)

Don't forget to be fashion-wise—and if you must be a fashion queen of 1938 it's your crowning glory that will keep you on your throne.

Amelia Earhart Held "Hero Racket" Victim

"An adviser to heroes," the man who "discovered" Amelia Earhart, tells here of his experiences in managing the noted aviatrix's first transatlantic flight. Captain Railey, New Orleans-born nad a descendant of the seafaring Raleighs of Devonshire, also managed Admiral Byrd's first expedition to the Antarctic and has himself roamed far and wide around the globe on varied missions.

By CAPTAIN HILTON H. RAILEY.

(Copyright, 1938, for The Atlanta Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

NEW YORK.—On the slight pivot of my casual conversation with George Putnam turned the whole career of Amelia Earhart—her transformation from an obscure social worker, absorbed in the lives of polyglot gamins at a Boston settlement house, to a world figure in aviation and the honored guest of kings and queens.

By the same slender hazard my own affairs, with Amelia's as a springboard, were tumultuously affected: I was induced to leave New England. I became adviser to Commander Byrd, Sir Hubert Wilkins, Lincoln Ellsworth and other heroes, major and minor; to airplane manufacturers and transportation lines. I tested American sentiment for the League of Nations and locked horns with Old World munitioneers.

If it hadn't been for that conversation with George, the chances are Amelia Earhart would still have become a constructive factor in the industry to which she was so passionately devoted—and that she would be alive today.

It was in the spring of 1928 that I dropped in to see George in New York. I had always liked G. P. in a mellow mood; on this occasion he was particularly ingratiating.

He told me that Commander Byrd had recently sold his tri-motored Fokker to "a wealthy woman who plans to fly the Atlantic." He didn't know her name or anything more about it, except that he believed floats were being fitted to the plane at the East Boston airport. Why not investigate?

"What if it's true?" I asked. "What then?"

"Hell!" said he. "If it's true, we'll crash the gate. It'd be amusing to manage a stunt like that, wouldn't it? Find out all you can. Locate the ship. Pump the pilots."

At the Copley Plaza in Boston, before midnight, I had cornered Wilmer ("Bill") Stultz, the pilot, and Lou ("Slim") Gordon, his co-pilot and mechanic. Stultz admitted he was getting ready for a transatlantic flight but stoutly maintained that he knew only his backer's attorney, David T. Layman.

In New York, some days later, I got in touch with him and learned that Mrs. Frederick E. Guest, of London and New York, whose husband had been secretary of state for air in Lloyd George's cabinet, was the mysterious sponsor who had planned to be the first of her sex to fly the Atlantic. Her family, said Mr. Layman, was much concerned. Soon it was agreed that if I could find the "right sort of girl" to take her place, Mrs. Guest would yield.

On the merest hunch, when I returned to Boston, I telephoned my friend, Rear Admiral Reginald K. Belknap, U. S. N., retired. "Why, yes," said he, "I know a young social worker who flies. I'm not sure how many hours she's had, but I do know that she's deeply interested in aviation—and a thoroughly fine person. Call Denison House and ask for Amelia Earhart."

Guardedly, when Miss Earhart came on the wire, I inquired whether she'd like to participate in an important but hazardous flight. I had to come out with it because she had declined an interview until I stated the nature of my business. That afternoon, accompanied by Miss Marion Perkins, head worker at Denison House, she appeared at my office.

At sight convinced that she was qualified as a person, if not as a pilot, I asked forthwith, "How would you like to be the first woman to fly the Atlantic?"

Only a flicker in her cool eyes betrayed the excitement this question must have aroused; calmly she asked for details—whatever I was at liberty to tell her. Miss Earhart had owned several planes and had flown more than 500 hours. She said the role of passenger didn't appeal to her much, and hoped that, weather conditions permitting, she could take her turn at the controls. At the time, however, she was unable to fly with the aid of instruments alone, and her experience with tri-motored ships had been inconsequential.

With intense interest I observed and appraised her as she talked. Her resemblance to Colonel Lindbergh was so extraordinary that I couldn't resist the impulse to ask her to remove her hat. She complied, brushing back her naturally tousled, wind-swept hair, and her laugh was infectious. "Lady Lindy!" Most of all I was impressed by the poise of the boyish figure at my desk. Mrs. Guest had stipulated that the person to whom she would yield must be "representative" of American women. In Amelia Earhart I felt that I had discovered not their norm but their sublimation.

In the light of subsequent events—in the tragic shadow of the last—I quote a letter addressed to me by Amelia on May 2, 1928:

"It is very kind of you to keep me informed, as far as you are able, concerning developments of the contemplated flight. As you may imagine, my suspense is great indeed.

"Please, however, do not think that I hold you responsible, in any way, for my own uncertainty. I realize that you are now, and have been from the first, only the medium of communication between me and the person, or persons, who are financing the enterprise. For your own satisfaction may I add, here, that you have done nothing more than present the facts of the case to me. I appreciate your forbearance in not trying to 'sell' the idea, and should like you to know that I assume all responsibility for any risk involved."

Satisfaction that I had not attempted to persuade her was real enough then; today it is immeasurable. Her formally explicit note relieved me, but how did she herself feel about it? Had she no qualms as to the outcome? Some weeks after Mrs. Guest had retired in Amelia's favor, Julie, my wife, in daily touch with our secret preparations, broached the subject and, woman to woman, urged her to back out if she felt in the slightest degree uneasy. Her reply was characteristic:

"No, this is the way I look at it: My family's insured; there's only myself to think about. And when a great adventure's offered you—you don't refuse it, that's all."

As a rule, when gate crashers are caught in the act they are thrown out, as well as they deserve to be; George and I enjoyed the unique experience of being asked, instead, to manage the performance—and cast a new leading lady. Indeed, at Mrs. Guest's request, G. P. agreed to act as the producer—to step into the spotlight, when the curtain rose, as the "backer" of the flight. It was at Amelia's request primarily, however, that I agreed to see her through the rumpus in Europe. About the middle of May, accompanied by A. K. Mills, of my own organization, I set out for London. Mrs. Guest had preceded us.

Fortunately for our purposes, the attention of the newspapers was focussed on the aspirations of "The Diamond Queen of Broadway," Miss Mabel Boll, whose preparations for an Atlantic hop had been more or less openly conducted. Stultz and Gordon, the press still believed, were Byrd's men—grooming the giant Fokker (named Friendship by Mrs. Guest) for the trip to the South Pole.

Toward noon on June 17 the Friendship cracked the ill luck which had glued her pontoons to the "steps" of the bay at Trepassey, Newfoundland, for more than two weeks. News of the take-off was flashed to the world. That night, Allen Raymond, of the New York Times, young Mills and I motored to Southampton.

Early the next morning we heard that the Friendship had circled the S. S. America, a few hundred miles out, to get her bearings; silence through the night—one of the longest I've ever endured—had meant only that her radio was out of commission. After some hours I received direct word from Gordon that they had come down safely at Burry Port, Wales. I telegraphed them to remain aboard ship until I arrived, and then chartered an old flying boat from Imperial Airways.

That afternoon, landing a few hunderd yards from the Friendship, I caught a glimpse of Amelia—seated Indian fashion in the doorway of the fuselage and with Indian composure indifferent to the clamor ashore.

"Congratulations!" I sang out, as our dory drew near. "How's it feel to be the first woman to fly the Atlantic?"

She flipped a listless hand. "Hello!" she said.

I hailed Bill and Slim and jumped aboard. After a filght of 20 hours and 40 minutes they were all dog-tired, but there was something else in Amelia's expression—disappointment.

"What's the matter?" I asked. "Aren't you excited?"

"Excited? No. It was a grand experience but all I did was lie on my tummy and take pictures of the clouds. We didn't see much of the ocean. Bill did all the flying—had to. I was just baggage, like a sack of potatoes."

"What of it? You're still the first woman to fly the Atlantic and, what's more, the first woman pilot."

She smiled philosophically. "Oh, well, maybe some day I'll try it alone."

The next morning we boarded the Friendship and flew to Southampton, where, for the first time, Amelia met Mrs. Guest, the generous woman to whom she owed the position which, thereafter strengthened by her own steady hands, she was to turn to such brilliant account.

As Amelia's escort I felt increasing pride in her natural manner, warmed, as it was, by humor and grace. Whether confronted by dozens of cameramen demanding over and over, "A great big smile, please!" or asked to wave at crowds (a gesture she used sparingly); whether laying a wreath at the Cenotaph or before a statue of Edith Cavell; whether sipping tea with the Prime Minister and Lady Astor at the House of Commons, or talking with Winston Churchill, she remained herself, serious, forthright, with no bunk in her make-up. Even in those days I sensed that for all her lack of ostentation she would yet write drama in the skies; her simplicity would capture people everywhere; her strength of character would hold her on her course; in calm persuit of an end not personal she would achieve greatness. Above all—and it was her fate—she had a quality of imaginative daring that was to wing her like an arrow. "Courage," reads a verse of Amelia's, is the soul's "release from little things."

Aboard the mayor's yacht, Macom, during Amelia's welcome in the harbor at New York, Commander Byrd told me that he needed help in the financing of his projected expedition to the Antarctic, and urged me to join him as soon as I could cut loose from the Friendship's show. After a day or two I did.

In the years that followed, with pride and sure knowledge of Amelia's motivations, but with a tinge of fear as to the outcome, I watched her gain distinction in aviation.

Genuinely, as a tribute to her sex rather than for her own glorification, she accepted the honors that accrued—for the participation of women in aviation, which at all times she strove to encourage and pace, was the obsession which lured her to her death. After she had flown the Atlantic as the first woman passenger, it was inevitable that she should attempt to fly it alone. Having done so—having established, seriatim, transcontinental records of one kind and another—there remained the Pacific. Long before she mentioned it I knew that next, and perhaps fatally, must come her globe-circling adventure. Why—when even to her it must have seemed a stunt without constructive benefit to the aeronautical industry—did she attempt her hazardous expedition?

She had to. She was caught up in the hero racket which compelled her to strive for icreasingly dramatic records, bigger and braver feats that automatically insured the publicity necessary to the maintenance of her position as the foremost woman pilot in the world. She was a victim of the era of "hot" aeronautics which began with Colonel Charles Lindbergh and Admiral Byrd and which shot "scientific" expeditions across continents, oceans and polar regions by dint of individual exhibition.

THEATER NEWS

Comedies, Musical, Two Dramas Featured by Atlanta Theaters

'Gladiator' at Rialto; 'Fast Company' at Rhodes; Barrymore at Paramount; 'Smashing the Rackets' at Capitol; 'Boys' Town' at Loew's; Musical at Fox.

By LEE ROGERS,
Motion Picture Editor.

With due respects to the new motion pictures playing in Atlanta this week, the holdovers—"Alexander's Ragtime Band" and "Boys Town"—are the best film entertainment of the week.

Of the new shows, "Hold That Co-ed," at the Paramount, contains more honest laughs and comedy. The picture makes a farce of present-day political campaigning and pokes a bit of fun at college football.

Departing this week from its announced custom of showing holdover pictures only, the Rhodes theater is playing a comedy of the "Thin Man" type in "Fast Company," starring Florence Rice and Melvyn Douglas.

"Smashing the Rackets" features Chester Morris at the Capitol.

Collegian Joe E. Brown Clowns At Rialto Theater This Week.

Joe E. Brown goes to college to make things ridiculously funny for patrons of the Rialto theater this week. The vehicle is titled "The Gladiator."

In an attempt to impress the campus belle, June Travis, Joe, by nature a shy weakling, goes out for football. He is badly beaten. As rival Robert Kent appears to be running off with the affections of the campus queen, a professor picks upon Brown to test an experiment. He doses him with a serum that has strange effects, making Brown a bold, powerful man.

Under influence of the serum, Brown runs wild on the football field and the picture reaches a climax when Brown battles Man Mountain Dean in the wrestling ring. It's a riot of a match with Brown, of course, throwing the Norcross mountain man.

Twelve-year-old Dickie Moore again displays great acting abilities, this time as the little boy befriended by Brown. Shorts, news reel and comedy round out the week's program.

Political Farce at Paramount Theater Stars Barrymore as Comedian.

It is too bad the Paramount theater didn't bring "Hold That Co-Ed" to Atlanta before the senatorial primary was completed. This political farce would have provided the laughs the heated campaign needed.

This satire finds John Barrymore in the comical role of a budget-balancing Governor who promises anything to voters, but to the students at state university he takes everything "because they can't vote." Led by Coach George Murphy, the students rebel and march on the capitol to demand funds for a football team.

Secretaries Marjorie Weaver and Jack Haley see the students are in earnest and persuade the Governor expenditure of funds on education would be great campaign publicity. Barrymore sees a great football team as the medium for attracting large crowds to hear his campaign addresses. He has Joan Davis placed on the team as the only girl football fullback in the world—and she kicks the extra points.

This musical farce will provide you laugh after laugh. It's a picture most everyone will thoroughly enjoy.

'Smashing the Rackets' Featured At Capitol This Week.

"Smashing the Rackets," opening today at the Capitol theater in conjunction with an eight-act stage show, is another of the currently popular moving picture portrayals based on the career of New York's young district attorney, Thomas Dewey.

In the role of the prosecuting attorney is Chester Morris, graduating from the tough boy type role he usually plays. Others in a good cast are Frances Mercer and tough boy Bruce Cabot. The picture is another in the $250,000 Movie Quiz Contest.

On the stage is the "Ritz Carleton" vaudeville revue with a cast of 25.

Next attraction at the Capitol will be "Bar 20 Justice," featuring Bill Boyd in another Hopalong Cassidy show.

'Alexander's Ragtime Band' Continues at Fox.

Alexander's music continues. Atlantans have given their approval of the musical cavalcade, "Alexander's Ragtime Band," and the Fox announces attendance records are being set.

This picture of the movement from ragtime to swing features the music of yesterday and today as written by the master composer of Tin Pan Alley, Irving Berlin. Music makes the picture and music is the picture, so to speak. Persons going to see it should keep that in mind.

"Alexander's Ragtime Band" is one of the motion picture industry's closest approaches to making a film that will be universally popular. The music of this show will appeal to most everyone and make you forget that the principal characters fail to age during the three decades of musical history.

Cast as Alexander is Tyrone Power and his girl singer is Alice Faye. Don Ameche writes the music and gives up the girl to "the leader of the band." The supporting cast is good.

Mickey Rooney, Spencer Tracy Score Again in 'Boys' Town.'

Continuing a second week at Loews' Grand theater, "Boys Town" presents Spencer Tracy and Mickey Rooney in one of the year's finest films—the story of a kindly priest's love for humanity, and the part he plays in the redemption of a tough young hoodlum.

"Boys Town" takes on drama from the fact it is about a real place. Boys' Town is situated on the outskirts of Omaha, Neb., established by Father Flanagan, and built from a humble beginning into a powerful influence today on the lives of the young men who find protection there.

To provide the boys in the slums with a refuge, Father Flanagan built Boys Town. The film relates the priest's struggles to establish Boys Town on solid foundations, and tells how the influence of the community affected the life of one of Father Flanagan's most difficult charges. This role is played by Mickey Rooney with memorable skill, while Spencer Tracy brings to his role of priest the same sincerity which distinguished his work in "San Francisco" and "Captains Courageous."

Errors Are Found In Contest Quiz Book

There are four errors in the Movie Quiz contest booklets, it was announced yesterday, but don't be alarmed. These mistakes due to slips in proof-reading, are really going to prove a boon to contestants in this national $250,000 contest.

The contest committee has announced every contestant will be automatically credited with the correct answers for the four pictures involved, regardless of what they may have checked in their contest booklets. All the contestants need do is fill in the name of the theaters where they saw "The Crowd Roars," "Gateway," "Give Me a Sailor" and "The Texans"—and they will be credited with 100 per cent correct answers on all four of these pictures. Which means that instead of 30 contest quiz questions to answer, they need only answer 26.

The errors, due to the rush in getting out these millions of booklets, are very easy to spot. In "The Crowd Roars," for example, the quiz question is "What are the first words Robert Taylor speaks to Maureen O'Sullivan in the picture?" The correct answer would be "Hey! Come in and rub my leg." In this case the contest booklet makes an error in anatomy and lists, "Hey! Come in and rub my back." But, you're going to be credited with the right answer, regardless of what you write or check.

For the answer to the "Gateway" quiz the contestant is asked to identify the person Arleen Whelan comes to America to join. The list, due to typographical erros, includes just about every possible answer except the right—her sweetheart.

In "The Texans" the question asks how Randolph Scott came to Texas. There is space for the right answer, "By steamboat," but it doesn't show up in print. So here's another free answer for every contestant.

The correct answer for "Give Me a Sailor" is rather involved. The question is "What kind of contest does Martha Raye win"? Actually, she enters a cooking contest, but her entry gets mixed up and she finds herself in a leg contest. (That word "leg" again).

The contest committee reports the demand for contest booklets has far exceeded expectation. From present indications this national Movie Quiz may set a new high in contest popularity.

'Vivacious Lady' Opens Today At Center

Opening Sunday, "Vivacious Lady," featuring Ginger Rogers and James Stewart, will play for The lively story revolves around three days at the Center theater. the usual romance of a vivacious night club beauty and a studious botany instructor which starts in New York, progresses through a whirlwind courtship and is climaxed with marriage.

"The Count of Monte Cristo," starring Robert Donat and Elissa Landi, plays Wednesday. It is the story of a man who for 20 years in a living grave he educated himself, steeled himself for a daring escape; then emerged as the Count of Monte Cristo, with wealth and power to drive three men to their graves as they had driven him.

"Kidnaped," with Warner Baxter, Freddie Bartholomew and Arleen Whelan, is booked Thursday. The story concerns Alan Breck's leading the clans in revolt against union of the North Country with King George's domain.

"The Nurse From Brooklyn" stars Paul Kelly, Sally Eilers and Larry Blake, Friday.

"Between Two Women" will feature Franchot Tone, Virginia Bruce and Maureen O'Sullivan Saturday in a gripping drama within the walls of a great medical institution.

'Vivacious Lady.'

Ginger Rogers appears in "Vivacious Lady" at the Center theater today and tomorrow.

Here they are. The stars of "Boys' Town," which has been held over at Loew's for another week. Mickey Rooney, left, is billed as a star for the first time in this picture in which he co-stars with Spencer Tracy, right, his favorite male star.

Mr. Alexander's ragtime music will continue at the Fox theater for another week. This scene shows a quarrel between the leader of the band and his singer. Tyrone Power plays Alexander and Alice Faye is the girl he builds to fame and with whom he falls in love. Don Ameche is also in the cast.

Clark Gable and Myrna Loy are reunited in a fast-moving action film, "Too Hot to Handle," coming to the Grand theater next Friday.

MAN, 70, CLIMBS PEAK, ATTEMPTS LONG SWIM

William Tait, 70, Scottish-born resident of Trenton, N. J., recently climbed Ben Nevis, highest mountain in the British Isles, and also attempted to swim Loch Linnhe, "just to show a 70-year-old can do it."

Tait has been vacationing with relatives at Nevis Cottage, Fort William, near the foot of Ben Nevis. He climbed the 4,406-feet peak on a sweltering afternoon. The last time he made the ascent was in Queen Victoria's diamond jubilee year, 1897. This time, however, he found the track up the Ben much rougher and steeper.

He attempted to swim the four-mile wide swirling tide-race of Loch Linnhe, near Fort William, on the previous afternoon, but gave up near the opposite shore when he was stricken with a cramp.

'Fast Company' Is Feature At Rhodes

Melvyn Douglas, who has recently climbed to new screen heights with his deft comedy portrayals, adds new laurels to his career as a modern rare book sleuth in "Fast Company," which is now playing at the Rhodes theater.

Florence Rice, as the feminine lead, plays the ultra-modern wife of Douglas, who believes that domestic and business life can be combined.

The plot presents a novelty background for a fast moving blend of romance, mystery, drama and thrills. An inside revelation of the little known traffic in stolen rare books provides a diverting series of incidents leading to a murder and the breaking up of an international racket.

Miss Rice and Douglas share the adventures of the picture with a delightful tongue in the cheek spirit that defies the villainous attempts of the book gang to stop their efforts to solve the mystery.

Claire Dodd provides blond allure in the role of an inside member of the book gang, who finds that romance is more dangerous than a knowledge of gang secrets. Her revelations to Melvyn Douglas, who masquerades as a roving swain with the knowledge of his wife, finally breaks up the book racket.

MIRIAM HOPKINS PLAYS HILTON ROLE

Georgian To Star in 'We Are Not Alone.'

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 17.—Miriam Hopkins has been signed by Warner Brothers to a two-picture contract, under the terms of which her first starring vehicle will be "We Are Not Alone," James Hilton's best-seller.

Miss Hopkins, in signing her contract with Warners, stated that she had delayed her return to the screen pending discovery of a suitable screen play. She expressed the belief that the screen play of "We Are Not Alone" was such a vehicle.

Search for a second Hopkins starring story is under way at the studio, where plans are being made to complete her next screen play by the time camera work on the popular Hilton novel is ended.

The prosecutor takes times out for his lovely socialite fiancee. Chester Morris will appear in the Capitol theater's "Smashing the Rackets," opening today, as the special law and order prosecutor. His leading lady is Frances Mercer.

Atlanta Federal Theater Moves Quarters to Erlanger Building

Removal of the Atlanta Federal theater unit to the Erlanger theater on Peachtree street was assured and arrangements have been completed for presentation of ". . . one third of a nation . . ." October 31, Sara S. Thomas, supervisor, announced yesterday.

Simultaneously, it was learned Albert Lovejoy, director, will leave today for New York to select ten actors from the Federal theater there to augment the group now engaged in Atlanta.

Under terms of the lease on the Erlanger, completed yesterday through Virlyn Moore Jr., all bookings will be in the hands of the Federal theater administration and the policy of bringing road shows to Atlanta will be continued.

In moving from the downtown Atlanta theater, the Federal group goes into larger, more modern and more convenient quarters. A corps of WPA workers now are engaged in a complete renovation of the Erlanger and far-reaching improvements are anticipated before the initial production in October. Offices of the Federal theater will occupy quarters adjacent to the Erlanger.

An ambitious winter program will be inaugurated with the presentation of ". . . one third of a nation. . . ," the much-discussed Broadway play of last season which deals with that portion of Americans once referred to by President Roosevelt as "ill clothed, ill housed and ill fed."

While in New York, Lovejoy will arrange with producers for presentation in Atlanta of last year's successes which will go on tour during the winter months.

J. Howard Miller, associate national director of the Federal theater, and Josef Lentz, regional director, are in Atlanta conferring with the local administration over details of the removal which will be accomplished this week.

Satire on Politics, College Opens Movie Season at Paramount

'Hold That Co-ed' Puts Barrymore In New Political Campaign Farce

"Motion Pictures' Greatest Year" Program at Paramount Includes "Gateway," Ritz Brothers, "Mother Carey's Chickens," "Racket Busters" and Others.

The greatest fall movie season in the history of the industry was opened officially at the Paramount theater Friday with the showing of "Hold That Co-Ed," the most recent Darryl Zanuck production featuring John Barrymore as a co-ed kissing governor who takes over the state college football team for the "cockeyed-est" campaign that ever was screened.

Marjorie Weaver, the movie fans' latest crush; George Murphy, Joan Davis, the only female fullback in the world, and others complete the cast.

Although not called a musical, Twentieth-Century Fox has punctuated the hilarious proceedings with several lively new songs. For those who take their football seriously, there are some exciting gridiron sequences. And for those who don't, there is Joan Davis, who turns out to be the world's best goal-kicker.

"If 'Hold That Co-Ed' may be considered as an example of what the studios mean when they say 'motion pictures are your best entertainment,' " says Manager Tommy Reed, "there can be no argument whatever with the industry's current slogan. Cleverly conceived, the film is a half satire and half farce that moves along without a dull moment. George Marshall has done a splendid job of directing and Darryl Zanuck was in charge of production. This is one of the $250,000 movie quiz contest pictures. Also included in this program is the latest issue of the March of Time which features the subjects: Hitler's prelude to conquest and Father Divine, two very timely topics which at the present time are very much in the public eye."

The Paramount theater, being a participant in the motion pictures' greatest year campaign and also the $250,000 movie quiz contest, has booked an array of good feature pictures and short subjects for movie-minded Atlantans.

Leading the list of coming attractions is "Racket Busters," with George Brent and Humphrey Bogart cast in the starring roles. Next will be "Gateway," starring Don Ameche, Arleen Whelan, Binnie Barnes and Gregory Ratoff. Following will be R.-K.-O.'s "Mother Carey's Chickens," taken from Kate Douglas Wiggins' story of American girlhood, with Fay Bainter, Ann Shirley and Ruby Keeler.

Then the Three Ritz Brothers will come in "Straight, Place and Show."

"It's a touchdown for Gabby." But "Gabby" (John Barrymore, second from right directly above) appears a bit bewildered. The scene is from "Hold That Co-ed," which opened the fall movie season at the Paramount Friday. From left to right are Quinn Williams, Jack Haley, Barrymore and Marjorie Weaver. It is another quiz contest picture.

Arleen Whelan and Don Ameche have the leading roles in "Gateway," another of the fall attractions coming soon to the Paramount in the center oval Humphrey Bogart, right, and George Brent seem to be having difficulties. They are featured players in the Cosmopolitan production, "Racket Busters," which the Paramount will show next month. Others in the cast are Gloria Dickson and Allen Jenkins.

"Mother Carey's Chickens" is another of the hit pictures to play at the Paramount this fall. From left to right are Danny Dunigan, Fay Bainter, Ruby Keeler and Ann Shirley.

Atlanta Music Notes + + +

By MOZELLE HORTON YOUNG

Jose Iturbi, brilliant Spanish pianist, who will open the Atlanta Music Club's 1938-39 season with a concert at the Atlanta Woman's Club auditorium on the night of October 6, will play a program that will be of paramount interest to both musician and layman.

The first half of his program opens with "Air With Variations—The Harmonious Blacksmith," by Handel, followed by "Chromatic Fantasy and Fugue," Bach; closing with the difficult and brilliant "Etudes Symphoniques," by Schumann.

The second half opens with a Chopin group, "Fantaisie Impromptu" and "Scherzo in B-Flat Minor;" two Debussy numbers, "Poissons d'Or" (Goldfish), from the second series of "Images," and "Feux d'Artifice" (Fireworks), from the second book of "Preludes." The program closes with "Ritual Fire Dance" by DeFalla.

Membership in the music club—which entitles one to admission to the Iturbi concert, the concert to be given by the Kolisch string quartet on December 13, and the concert by Sigrid Onegin, contralto, on February 21, as well as to nine concerts by local artists, six morning musicales and three evening musicales—may be obtained any day this week at the club's headquarters, 235 Peachtree street. The membership campaign, which started last Monday, is proving most successful, with most of the memberships already engaged, but there are still a few left. Any music lover is invited to become a member.

Complete "Sell-Out."

Surpassing anything in the history of Atlanta concert presentations is the announcement made yesterday by Marvin MacDonald that the entire auditorium has been completely sold out in season tickets for the All-Star Concert Series.

Stage seats and seats in the orchestra pit for the Lily Pons concert will go on sale tomorrow. These will be the only single seats available for any concert during the season, and, of course, even these seats will not be available for the Monte Carlo Ballet Russe concert or the concert by the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra.

Such an early "sell-out" certainly must indicate that Atlanta is more appreciative of fine music than ever before!

Two Added Attractions.

Manager MacDonald also announces two added attractions for this season, not included in the regular series. Nelson Eddy, stage and screen star, will be presented in concert at the city auditorium on March 29. Marian Anderson, negro contralto who has attained fame throughout the world for the glorious beauty of her voice, will be presented in concert, also at the city auditorium, on April 5. Tickets for these concerts will go on sale in October.

News About Lily Pons.

Lily Pons, coloratura soprano, who will open Atlanta's concert season October 3, returned last week from a concert and opera tour in South America, where she was hailed everywhere she appeared with unstinted praise, and everywhere was greeted by capacity audiences.

With her, she brought a collection of 13 birds of rare species. Two parakeets, part of the collection, have been detained by the United States Public Health Service at the customhouse, pending their deportation. The parakeets, it seems, are members of the parrot family, banned from this country.

Miss Pons imported the parakeets from Buenos Aires, and had planned to take them to Silvermine, her Connecticut estate, as an addition to the aviary which she has had built. However, learning that the parakeets are considered a health menace in this country, Miss Pons has co-operated with public officials in hastening the birds' departure, and they will be shipped back to South America this week.

Eleven of the other birds, all of rare species, have been installed in birdhouses in Connecticut.

After a few weeks' rest Miss Pons will begin her eighth annual concert tour in the United States. She will make her first appearance of the season in Atlanta.

Cara Hinman to Sing.

Mrs. George B. Hinman has issued invitations to a musicale to be given by her daughter, Cara Hinman, soprano, at their home, 923 Piedmont avenue, N. E., at 8:30 o'clock tonight.

Miss Hinman will open her program with an Italian group, including "Care Selve," Handel; "Pastorale," from "Rosalinda," by Veracini; and "Alleluia," by Mozart.

Her operatic aria will be Nedda's aria from "I Pagliacci," by Leoncavallo. Next she will sing a French group, including "Clair de Lune," Szulc; "Chere Nuit," Bachelet, and "Les Papillons," by Fourdrain.

Her English group lists "Wings of Night," Watts; "Pierrot," Rybner, and "Song of the Open," Frank LaForge.

Isabel Mawha Bryan will be Miss Hinman's accompanist.

For the past several seasons Miss Hinman has studied in Washington, D. C., under Edouard Albion, noted voice teacher.

Four Organists in Recital.

Four talented young organists—Mary Hill Oatley, Frances Waddill, William Baker, and Julian Barfield—will give an organ recital at 5 o'clock this afternoon at Westminster Presbyterian church. They will be assisted by Mrs. Howard Beckett, soprano.

The public is invited to attend.

Mr. Barfield will open the program with a group of compositions by Johann Sebastian Bach, including "Arioso in A," chorale, "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," and "Prelude and Fugue in D Minor."

Miss Oatley's numbers will be "Air in D," Bach; "Hymne a Sainte Cecile," Gounod, and "March," Chauvet.

Mrs. Beckett will sing Gounod's "O Divine Redeemer," with Eda Bartholomew at the organ.

Miss Waddill will play "Andante Grazioso," Dethier, and "Processional," by Jepson. Mr. Baker will close the program with a group including "Ave Maris Stella" of Nova Scotia fishing fleet, Gaul; "Benediction Nuptiale," Dubois, and "Psalm XVIII," Marcello-Dubois.

Music Club Officers.

Mrs. Harold Cooledge, president of the Atlanta Music Club, announces today the chairmen of the various departments of the club's activities. Other officers elected in the late spring to serve with Mrs. Cooledge are Mrs. E. Raymond Johnson, first vice president and membership chairman; Mrs. Lillian Rogers Gilbreath, second vice president and chairman of evening musicales; Mrs. J. O'H. Sanders, third vice president and chairman of morning musicales; Margaret Fraser, fourth vice president and chairman of the junior division; Mrs. Jane Mattingly, recording secretary; Mrs. W. W. Anderson, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Cliff Hatcher, treasurer.

Appointments to the various chairmanships are as follows: Mrs. Harold McKenzie, finance; Mrs. Mary Nelson Ream, publicity; Mrs. Charles E. Dowman, programs; Mrs. Charles Chalmers, advisory; Mrs. D. R. Peteet, public school music; Mrs. Waldo Oettinger and Mrs. Paul Bryan, club bulletin; Ethel Beyer, music in religious education; Mrs. Lewis Hirsch, radio and speakers; Mrs. Stanton Therrell, current events; Mrs. C. C. Covey, assistant membership chairman; Mrs. William Elsas, ushers; Mrs. Hal Davison, entertainment; Nana Tucker, historian; Mrs. Katherine Connerat, 25th anniversary plans; Mrs. Lee Edwards, hostess for boxes; Mrs. M. E. Patterson, telephone; Mrs. William C. Key, scrapbook; Mrs. Mason Lowrance, extension; Mrs. DeLos Hill, federation contact; Martha Galt, MacDowell colony; Mrs. Fred Thomas, posters; Mrs. Ed Cauthorn and Mrs. Clem Powers, decorations; Mrs. Trimble Johnson, morning hostess; Mrs. Alex C. King Jr., evening hostess; Elizabeth Jackson, president Young Artists' Club; Mrs. Armand Carroll, director Student Concert Guild; Eugenia Snow, president Student Concert Guild; Marvin McDonald, manager All-Star concert series.

Past presidents of the club are Mrs. Armand Carroll, Mrs. Charles Dowman, Mrs. DeLos Hill, Mrs. George Wight, Mrs. Cliff Hatcher, Mrs. Wilmer Moore, Mrs. Walter Bedard, Mrs. Howard Smith Jr., Mrs. Harold McKenzie and Mrs. Thad Morrison.

Elizabeth Allen's Recital.

One of the lovely events of midsummer was the piano recital given by Elizabeth Allen at the home of Mrs. John William Ware, on Huntington road. A large group of friends and music lovers assembled on the hot July night to be refreshed and pleased with the beauty and charm of the program. Miss Allen played with excellent musicianship, fine poise, a clean and sure technique, and genuinely interesting interpretations. Her program was exceptionally and consistently fine.

Voice Graduate.

Florence Modena, soprano, of Atlanta, graduated at the summer quarter commencement of the University of Georgia with a bachelor of fine arts degree, being one of those who had the honor of having as a "fellow graduate" our President Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

Miss Modena gave a song recital at Phi Kappa Hall in July. The Athens paper said of her recital, "Miss Modena possesses a lovely voice charming in its simplicity and beauty, and she fulfilled her requirements as a candidate for a B. F. A. degree with a major in music with creditable success . . ."

Numbers she sang on her program were "Voi Sapete," from Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro;" "Morgen," Strauss; "Gedichte," Wolfe; "Im Wunderschone Monat Mai," Schumann, and "Frulingsacht," Schumann. Michael McDowell, of the music faculty, was her accompanist.

British Murder Play Is Best of Lot As Broadway Drama Season Opens

By MARK BARRON.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(AP)—The first week of the new drama season on Broadway opened with brave promise of five plays, but the uncertainties of the industry maimed three of them out of the running. Of the survivals, one is "Come Across," a somewhat fragile murder import from London.

Had the British authors of "Come Across"—named as Guy Beauchamp and Michael Pertwee—made a more careful study of our movies, they would have known that one thing we cannot abide with our homicides is leisureliness. In this case, its tranquility was fatal. Conditioned to machine gun fire and police sirens, we are not likely to be entertained by puns and casual romancing between felonies.

The authors began with a rather serviceable idea—a wounded Chicago mobster fleeing all the way to England to have an incriminating bullet removed from his chest. The London doctor is understandably reluctant to perform the surgery. His son is kidnaped and the child's safe return is promised upon successful extraction of the lead.

From that point the dramatists go mistakenly playful. Their Chicago gangster is a creature alien to our eyes and ears. He speaks a species of comic strip slang—and seems much more intent on winning laughs than ridding himself of the bullet or shaking off two enemy gunmen.

The preoccupation of authors, director and players with what we used to know as "comic relief" accounts for the play's leaden pace.

A number of players have been summoned across the sea for this, the season's inaugural. Cameron Hall has a decided talent for comedy, and it is hoped he will linger long enough to express it in something more suitable.

Arthur Vinton, as the bullet-burdened gangster, suffers an additional burden in the cumbersome slang. Helen Trenholme is lovely and expert as the romantic nurse of the clinic.

Tonight's announced show was "Once Upon a Night," which was docked for repairs after a try-out in Wilmington, Del. It is a comedy by Milton Lazarus and Lawrence Schwab, concerning, according to reports from the south, the misadventures of a Hollywood scenario writer plus a night's highballs. It will make its belated appearance in November.

GIRL, 13, IS VERSATILE ON PLAYGROUND NINE

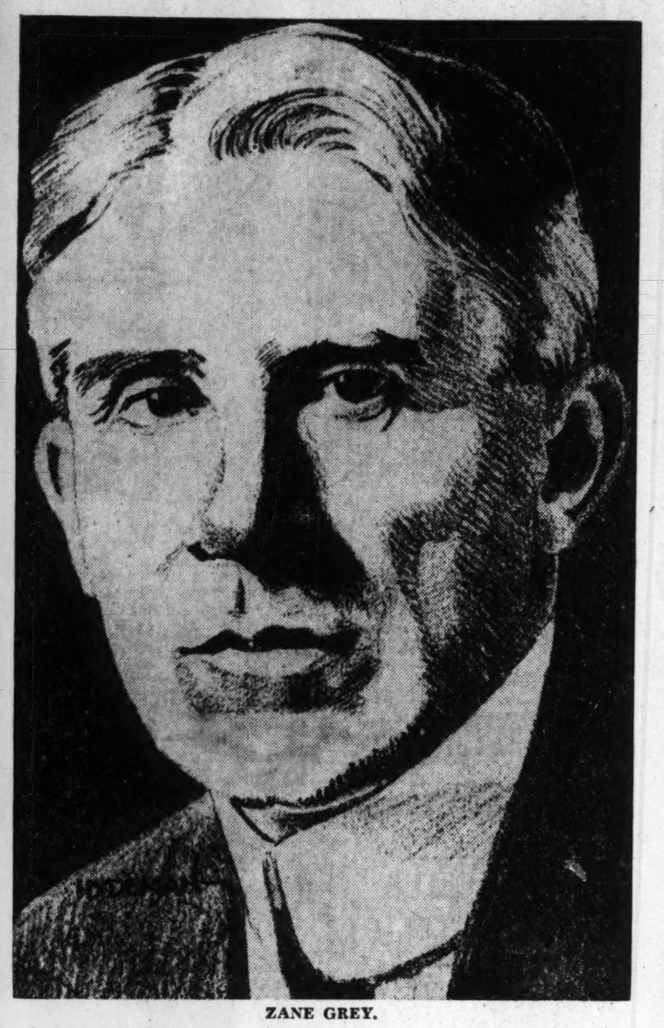

By spurning frilly dresses in favor of denim overalls, 13-year-old Josephine Hasham is winning an enviable reputation as an ace southpaw at the O'Donnell playground in Brockton, Mass.

Known as "Feeney" to her teammates, she is a versatile baseball player—as capable a fielder and catcher as she is a twirler. She also enjoys horseshoe pitching, basketball, swimming, track—and even football.

Little Known Facts About Well Known People

Zane Grey—He Dreamed of Punching Cows While Yanking Teeth

ZANE GREY.

His fingers were numb with cold as he wrote.

By DALE CARNEGIE.

This is another in a series of features by the author of "How to Win Friends and Influence People."

Zane Grey battled his way up from discouragement and poverty to the position of being one of the most widely read novelists on this planet. And he did it while living in the little village of Lackawaxen, Pa., on the banks of the Delaware river.

Editors have frequently paid Zane Grey $75,000 for only the magazine rights to a story, even before the story was written; yet he couldn't sell his first few books for 75 cents. His publishers tell me that they have sold more than a million copies of Zane Grey's books each year, for three successive years; but when he started writing, he was such a failure that he went cold and hungry.

His father insisted that he study dentistry. Zane Grey had no more desire to be a dentist than he had to be a coal miner. But orders were orders; so this man, who was destined to become world-famous as a story teller of two-gun men and cattle thieves, studied dentistry, opened an office in New York, and spent years of his life filling people's teeth. But his heart wasn't in his work.

While his hands were busy grinding molars, his mind was out west with the riders of the purple sage. If a horse trotted over the cobble stones under his window, he instantly thought of mail robbers and the pony express.

As the years went by, Zane Grey found himself face to face with a daily tragedy. He despised his profession. He had to whip and drive himself to go to his office every morning, like a galley slave scourged to his dungeon. The only happiness that he found in life was in his day dreams.

So, determining to become a writer, he abandoned his profession and moved to Lackawaxen, where he could live economically and hunt and fish while he was learning to write.

He would toil and struggle for months, sometimes for a whole year over a story, writing and revising, changing the plot, altering the characters. Then, when he had finished a tale, he would read it through, from beginning to end, read it with a wild rush of enthusiasm. It sounded magnificent. He believed he was on the verge of becoming a great author. But no one else believed it. In all New York city, there wasn't a single publisher who wanted his stories.

He devoted all his time, for five long years, to writing stories—and his income during those five years was absolutely zero. He made a little money occasionally by playing professionl baseball in the summer time, but he made nothing from his writing.

One day, when he was in New York, trying to sell a story, he met Colonel Buffalo Jones. Colonel Jones wanted someone with a flair for words to go out west with him and write about the trip. It was the first encouragement Zane Grey had had. He jumped at the chance, his heart thrilling at the prospect of a real adventure.

After spending six months among the cowboys and wild horses of the west, he came back home and wrote a novel entitled "The Last of the Plainsmen." This time he was positive he had a winner. So he sent his manuscript to the publishing house of Harper—and waited two weeks. Unable to endure the suspense any longer, he hurried to New York and called on the publishers.

They handed him his manuscript and said, "We are sorry; but there is nothing in this story to convince us that you can ever write fiction." He was absolutely crushed. He was dazed. This was the fifth book they had rejected. He couldn't have been more stunned if someone had hit him over the head with a club. Reeling down the stairs, he grabbed a lamp post to keep from falling; and with his manuscript under his arm, he leaned against that lamp post, and wept.

He returned home, beaten and crushed. He had been living on a little money his wife had; but that had practically all melted away by the end of five years, and they had a baby to support. They were desperate. But his wife encouraged him to write still another novel. It was in the dead of winter. The tiny stove wasn't large enough to heat the room, and his fingers grew numb with cold as he wrote. He had to stop every few minutes and open the stove door and thrust his hands close to the flames to get them warm.

All through that winter, and far into the next summer, he toiled over that story; and when it was finished, the publishing house of Harper again turned their thumbs down. Frantic with despair, Zane Grey pleaded with the editor to take the manuscript and read it himself. Two days later, Zane Grey returned, and the editor was all smiles. He said, "My wife sat up last night until almost daybreak reading your story. She thinks it's great. And so we're going to publish it."

The title of the book was "Heritage of the Desert." It was an immediate and immense success.

At last, after years of poverty and failure, Zane Grey was on his way to become one of the biggest money-making writers, and one of the most popular novelists in America. For, since that time, he has published 54 books, and more than fifteen million copies have been sold in the United States alone.

Beauty of Hyacinths

This question of drainage seldom gets the attention that it deserves and very often the wonderful success that some people have with spring-flowering bulbs is due to the fact that they have properly prepared their beds with good drainage.

Hyacinths prefer a sunny situation, in fact, the sunnier the better. This is particularly true of the colored hyacinths. A comparatively light soil seems to suit them best, although it should be a rich, light soil rather than a sandy, light one. If your soil is heavy clay, the easiest method to lighten it is by the use of peat moss.

"Humus" is a word that is used more in garden discussions than any other one word, and there is probably more misunderstanding over this term than over any other. It is decayed vegetable matter and there is no medium that can hold water to better advantage for gardening work than the proper amount of humus in the soil.

For numbers of years we have depended upon animal fertilizer to supply us with humus, but the time has come that at least in our cities we have to look to some other sources for this magic. To supply the food that was formerly obtained from stable or animal fertilizer, our fertilizer companies have supplied us with commercial fertilizers that contain the necessary plant foods. The plant food that is not in the proper medium is almost worthless and in some cases more than useless and really harmful. In this search for humus there has been found peat moss and peat humus.

By the incorporation of this material into the soil, we find that it helps to bind together light soils and on the other hand to break up heavy clay soils. In light soils the over necessary moisture soon evaporates and in heavy soils it usually runs off the surface, but with the soil in its proper mechanical condition this moisture will stay in the soil for long periods of time.

A wide range of colors can be found in hyacinths, for their colors vary from the white d'Innocense to the deep purplish blue of the king of the blues, including yellows, pinks, reds and lavenders.

WHAT TO DO IN SEPTEMBER.

STRAWBERRIES: Now is the time to prepare the strawberry bed, using large quantities of stable manure thoroughly worked into the soil. This bed should be allowed to stand for about two to four weeks before the plants are set out.

GRASS: Continue to mow the lawn at least once each week to encourage stooling; fertilize once each month for steady growth. If the drouth has killed a large part of your lawn, make your preparations for resowing. As soon as the weather is a bit cooler plant the mixtures, Kentucky blue grass and rye grass. Remember to roll the seeds in with a lawn roller.

LILIES: As soon as you have planted the madonna lilies prepare a bed for the Japanese lilies which will be planted during the dead winter.

PRUNING: It is always time to cut dead wood out of all of your plants, shrubs, roses, shade trees, etc. This is particularly true just after a bad drouth, such as we have just been through. The sooner this dead wood is removed the quicker will the plant recover itself.

BUGS: Our old friends will be with us for a month or six weeks. The old rule that is hard to beat for bugs, although it is an old-fashioned one, Black Leaf Forty for the sucking insects, arsenate of lead for the chewing insects. Spray rather than dust.

Bernice Denton Pierson, eminent astrologer, has prepared this forecast in brief for a handy reference convenient to Constitution readers. This guide will aid you, for it indicates the most auspicious time to begin any new endeavor, whether it be business, social or domestic.

SEPTEMBER 18.—SUNDAY: If you get up before 9:40 a. m. this morning, you are likely to find affairs quick and interesting. People will be energetic, and a great deal can be accomplished in a short space of time. Between 9:40 a. m. and 11:46 a. m. misjudgments in finances, religious and philanthropic ideas will be easily encountered. Between 11:46 a. m. and 7:10 p. m. relations with others should progress happily. After 7:10 p. m. anything you begin will develop slowly.

SEPTEMBER 19—MONDAY: During the morning hours and until 1:36 p. m. you should steer away from the unconventional. You are apt to run into people who are head-strong, or you may be too determined. New beginnings now are subject to disappointments and setbacks. The remainder of the day is a good time to seek favors and deal with people in authority, finances, and professional activities.

SEPTEMBER 20—TUESDAY: The entire day favors work that requires sound judgment, real estate, dealings with older and conservative people, and those things that require the long pull for consummation. This is a day to deal with practical and worldly things, and is not auspicious for the emotional and social affairs.

SEPTEMBER 21 — WEDNESDAY: You are likely to have too much optimism before 2:02 p. m. A desire to take risks, especially in travel, in financial matters, in legal ideas, and around machinery, should be checked. While your enthusiasms may urge you to go ahead, you stand to gain more by remaining as you are. The remainder of the day favors laborious work, cleaning out the rubbish. At this time, some old condition or some older person may prove a burden, and you will have to yield to others. Do not expect affairs to be fast. Postpone dealings in land.

SEPTEMBER 22 — THURSDAY: The morning begins with vibrations which tend to bring misunderstanding, confusion, delay, disappointment or loss. Before 3:50 p. m. is not a favorable time to deal with those in high positions, or in matters concerning property. The remainder of the day favors communications, general business activities, unusual pursuits, and dealings with original people.

SEPTEMBER 23—FRIDAY: The early morning hours, especially until 10:33 a. m., favor general activities, but caution should be observed to avoid sudden decisions or making radical departures from the usual. During the remainder of the day, fear or nervousness may cause you to feel that you must change your methods. However, this is a most unfavorable period for assuming heavy obligations and for new and important undertakings.

SEPTEMBER 24 — SATURDAY: Affairs are apt to get off to a wrong start before 7:33 a. m. but can be rectified suddenly through unexpected ways. There will possibly be too much talking, so use care in conferences, and communications. The entire day indicates undue activities, which are badly directed.

HOW TO USE THESE INDICATIONS TO BEST ADVANTAGE.

Should you receive an important telephone call, giving you the first news you have of a certain thing, look and see if the influences at that particular time are friendly or unfriendly. The outcome of that call will be colored by the influence prevailing then.

revelation and a challenge to modern minds.

"Why do we keep deluding ourselves, that herding people behind bars prevents crime?" she asks. "Why do we keep following a system started in the dark ages?" These are but two of the questions that will arise in your mind when you've read "So I Went to Prison"—and perhaps, between the covers of Edna O'Brien's book, you may find the answers.

Indian Story.

COSEL WITH GERONIMO ON HIS LAST RAID. By Therese O. Deming, illustrated by Edwin Willard Deming. F. A. Davis Co., Philadelphia. 125 pp. $1.25.

This is the true experience of an Apache Indian boy, Cosel. Though Cosel made minor errors (according to the United States records) in his version of the last raid, the author has retold the story as the boy remembered.

Courageous loyal Cosel traveled ahead with women and children and did not witness the misery and fear caused by Indian warriors as they attempted escape. He experienced fear, hunger, sorrow, beauty, adventure as he rode over plains and mountains.

Having lived among the Indians, the author has captured the pathetic struggle of the Apaches against conforming to a civilization so foreign to Indian understanding. The black and white illustrations, and six color plates, were done by the artist, noted for Indian pictures, E. W. Deming.

RUTH M. GREEN.

Notable Work.

THE RIME OF THE ANCIENT MARINER. By Samuel Taylor Coleridge. Illustrations in color by Gordon Grant. The Heritage Club, New York. 70 pp. $5.

Every once in a few years some critic of great sagacity rises to remark that the late Mr. Coleridge's Mariner is a cerbose and tiresome fellow without any merit whatever. Having heard this for 140 years we may safely believe it. And yet the old ninny, with his "long gray beard and glittering eye" is curiously alive after all these years, just as full of gory superstitions and just as quotable as ever. Whether we read it seriously, as a record of man's temptation, fall and expiation, or whether we regard it merely as a melodious flight of fancy, it still remains a notable work of art—not a great poem, perhaps, but a true one. Not even Mr. Masefield could distil the safty fragrance of the sea more convincingly.

In this new edition by the Heritage Club the hunter of the Albatross appears in appropriate costume. For this thanks are due mainly to Gordon Grant, painter of note and marine painter extraordinary. He has executed eight full-page color drawings and in addition has furnished a wealth of line drawings, printed in a sanguine ink, for the prose commentary added by Coleridge some 20 years after the poem was first printed. Mr. Grant's conception of the memorable lines "As idle as painted ship upon a painted ocean" is a phantasy almost equal to the author's. The volume is bound in Bancroft linen, a material with which the Heritage Club and its parent, the Limited Editions Club, have had a full and varied experience. This time the result is good. The type is the rarely seen Bell, in the 18-point size, and the format is a small and squarish quarto, measuring 8 1-2 x 11 inches. Altogether, these are worthy "Sunday - go - ashore togs" for ye Ancyent Mariners; he looks at home in them.

OLE H. LEXAU.

This Is India.

THE RAINS CAME, by Louis Bromfield. Harper & Brothers, New York. 597 pp. $2.75.

That country of extremes, of most exotic sunsets, luxuriant nature, and teeming life; yet that land where nature is also most hostile, where ignorance is an enemy more stalwart than disease itself, and stark terror lurks everywhere—this is India as Bromfield knows it. This terror, which every native and European comes to feel, was born of Hindu contemplation and exaggerated, not by the people, but by India herself—a character as real as the Brahmin doctor, Major Safti.

Even in Ranchipur artificial social standards and petty racial prejudices have built up a false world. But this false world, the chief contribution of British and American, is by no means less absurd than India's caste system. Bromfield sees men suffering here as elsewhere from boredom and mental weariness. They want so intensely to escape. Fern Simon, Baptist missionary's daughter, wants to flee to Hollywood; Tom Ransome has just left England for India. Miss Hodge, old maid teacher, wants to leave her tyrannical friend, Miss Dirks, and Lady Esketh wants to be rid of her husband.

The author shows all these, first in their imaginary world, then India sets them free by stripping away all their pretenses. For the rains come, the hot pouring monsoon. The whole plot has as its unity in the disaster of the breaking dam and the consequent death of hordes who have no desire to live. Yet it is the best thing which could have happened to Ranchipur because Brahmin and Untouchable, Baptist and Mohammedan, European and Indian all work together as thinking people facing a real problem. They learn the "glory of human relationships which only comes when men rise above the pettiness of daily life." Prejudices are forgotten, boredom is gone in a crisis, for insurgent life is stronger than these and will always persist as one stream of strong silent energy.

GWENDOLYN McKEE.

JOE AND JUNE.

THE MACHINE AGE.

Now you can be hypnotized by machine. Fred Astaire demonstrates this newest scientific device in his role of a psychiatrist in "Carefree," RKO-Radio's new musical romance bringing Astaire and Ginger Rogers back to the screen together.

LUCILLE IS REWARDED.

As a result of her brilliant work in "Stage Door," "Joy of Living" and "Go Chase Yourself," Lucille Ball now is starred with Jack Oakie in RKO-Radio's new comedy, "The Affairs of Annabel."

STOOGE STEALS SHOW.

The Hollywood stooge, or hanger-on-man, for the first time gets recognition on the screen in RKO-Radio's "Fugitives for a Night," featuring Frank Albertson and Eleanor Lynn.

ROMANCE AND REVENGE.

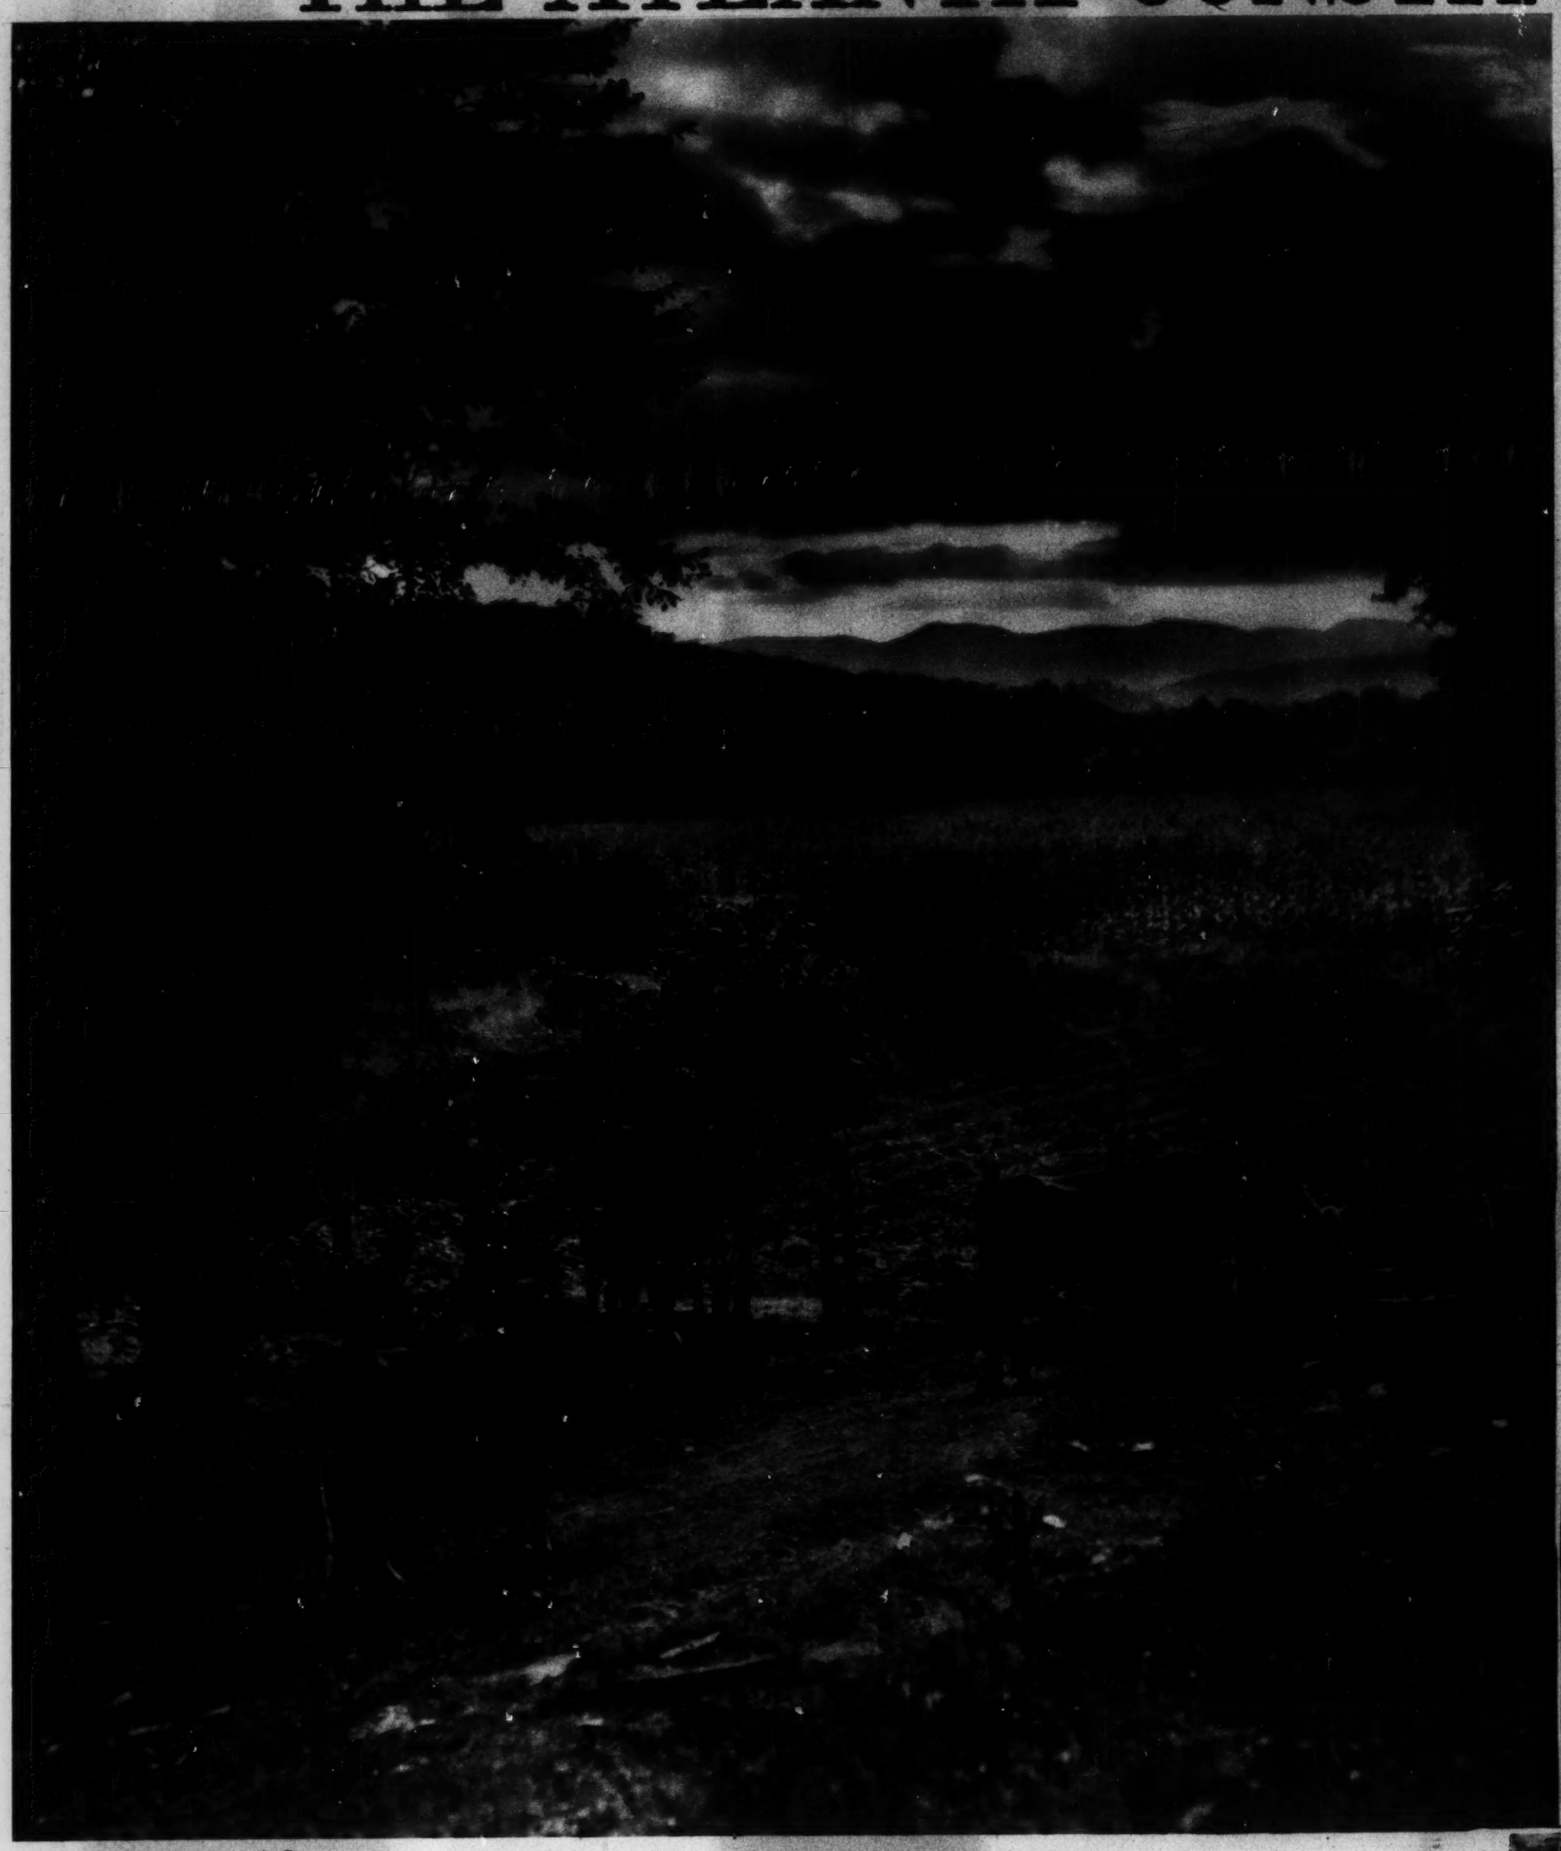

Romance and revenge along the Mexican border motivate "Renegade Ranger," new RKO-Radio western starring George O'Brien. Rita Hayworth, noted Spanish-American actress, has the feminine lead.

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1938.

Nature turns artist as first signs of autumn descend on famous Nacoochee Valley in North Georgia's mountain region.

Photographs by Kenneth Rogers

ARTISTIC SYMPHONY—This rural scene is typical of the peaceful solitude of the famous Nacoochee Valley. It is a symphony of trees, clouds, rising mountains and setting sun.

(Right)

(Right)
RECREATION CENTER — The beautiful bathhouse and beach at the lake at Vogel Park lure many city dwellers into the mountains for restful holiday jaunts and vacations.

FALL FASHIONS

THE IMPORTANCE OF FUR as a trimming is noted in this full-skirted evening dress of pale coffee beige heavy silk faille with its square decolletage outlined with stone marten. A Victorian-looking star and pearl earring and necklace set complete the ensemble.

SILK MOIRE, the news in the Paris openings, is used in this teal green evening dress. The skirt is full with corded flounces in hoop effect. The new "old-fashioned" effect is achieved by a yellow feather boa, silver mesh gloves and feathers in the hair.

A PETAL MOTIF is predominant in the treatment of this two-piece suit of black, bunny wool worn by Maureen O'Sullivan, who appears in the movie production "Hold That Kiss." A series of three petals on the jacket front are set with petal buttons, three buttons on the top petal, two on the second, one on the third.

THE BOLERO, in various adaptations continues in popularity. This two-piece costume designed for Virginia Bruce, movie star, is of black wool, revers and vestee are of white pique; the cummerbund of flame-colored silk crepe.

FOR RESTAURANT AND "LITTLE DINNERS" wear a green silk canton crepe dress with three-quarter sleeves featuring the raised shoulder line and trimmed with gold embroidery. The muff, newly smart for autumn nights, is of ostrich feathers with a matching feather in the hair.

(Left)
ROWS OF WHITE LACE in minute ruffles accent this black crepe dinner gown worn by Joan Crawford, actress. Interest centers in the unusual neckline and skirt slit to the knee, with hem and slit border of lace.

THE MOUNT OF OLIVES—On the soil made sacred by the Prince of Peace, a civil war now rages between Arabs and Jews who have returned from all parts of the world to the long-forsaken Holy Land. This peaceful scene showing the historic Mount of Olives, gives little indication of the bitter hatreds now expressed in daily bombings and shootings.

(Right)
AN ARAB stands beside a section of "Tegart's iron wall," erected by Sir Charles Tegart to keep marauding Arabs out of Palestine. The fence, three strands of barbed wire on angular iron supports, stretches for 60 miles on the Syria-Lebanon borders and cost $500,000.

"MOTHER, WHAT A LONG NECK YOU HAVE," says this newly arrived baby llama at Grant park zoo, Atlanta, as it opens its curious eyes for the first time in a strange world. (Pete Roton)

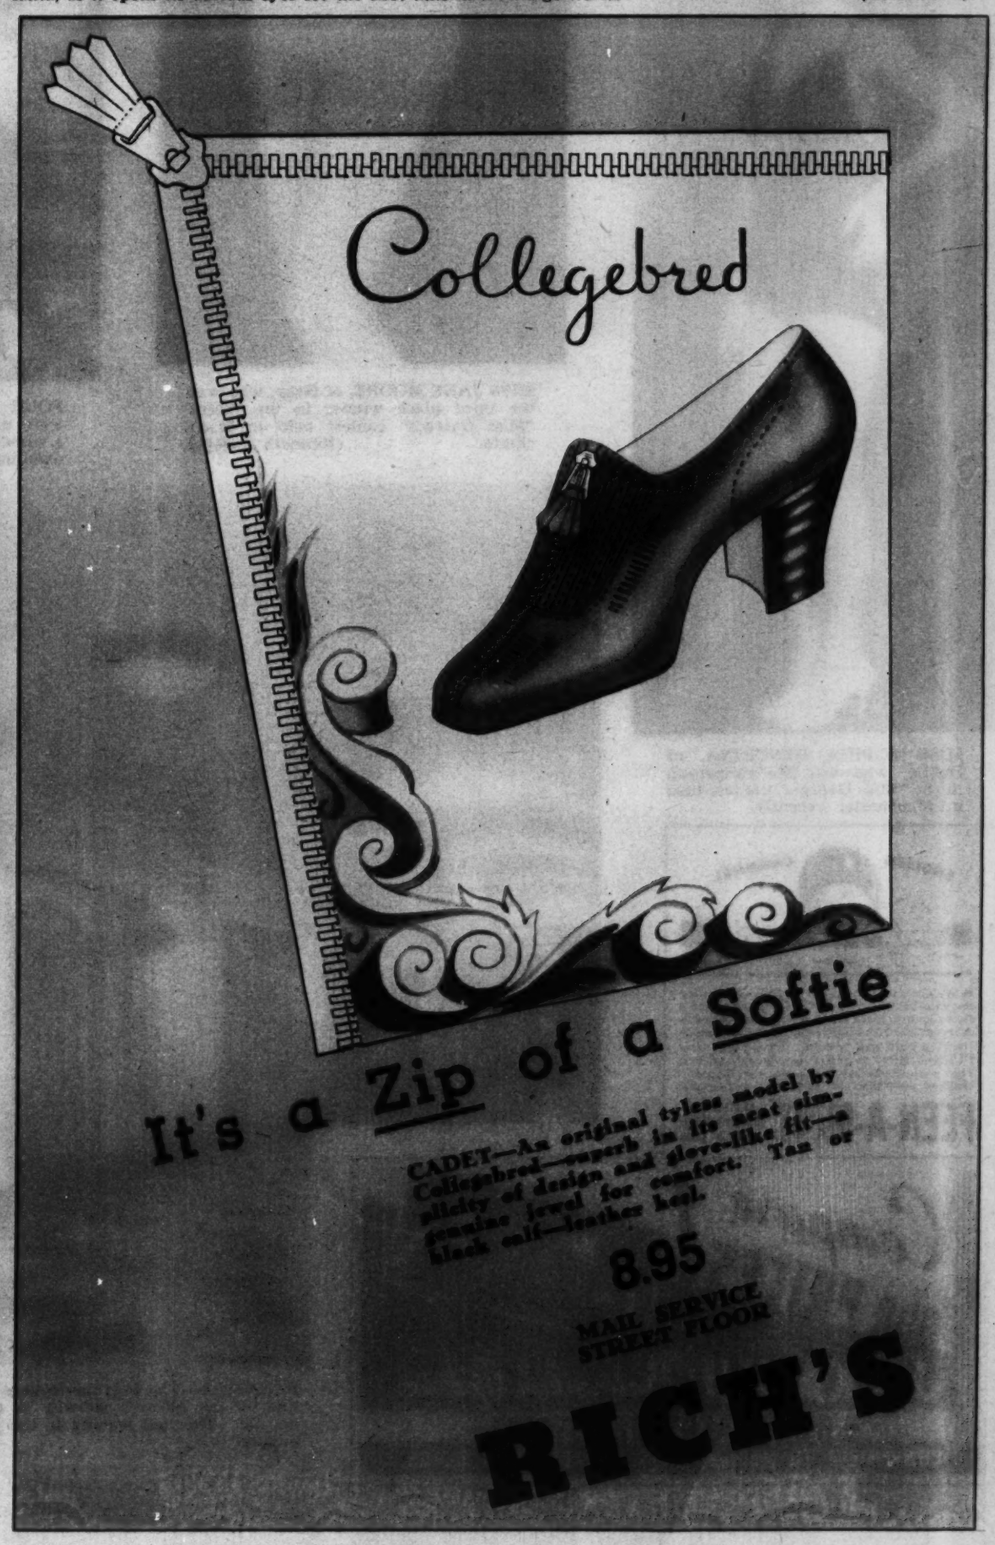

CURTIS DALL, New York broker and former son-in-law of President Roosevelt, photographed with Miss Katharine Miller Leas, of Hanover, Pa. Their engagement has been announced.

(Right)
WHITNEY'S DAUGHTER AT POLO MATCHES—Nancy Whitney, daughter of Richard Whitney, former head of the New York Stock Exchange, now serving a term in Sing Sing, is shown as she attended the national polo tournament at Meadow Brook, N. Y., recently.

CONTESTANTS IN ATLANTIC CITY BEAUTY PAGEANT—A few of the beauties who sought the title of "Miss America" are shown in this photograph. It was won by Marilyn Meseke, a blonde from Marion, Ohio.

MISS GEORGIA—Miss Emma Minkovitz, of Sylvania, winner of the "Miss Georgia" contest held at Manchester recently. She will compete with other state winners at the national event in Miami in February. (Kenneth Rogers)

MISS SOPHIA BENCHINA, of Dublin, who was the runner-up in the "Miss Georgia" contest held in Manchester recently.

BLAMED — Half a dozen prison guards were among the 14 blamed for the "oven cell" deaths of four convicts, cooked to death at the Philadelphia county prison. A coroner's jury charged them with "criminal negligence".

(Left)
MIDGET COW — Otto Gray, farmer, of near Stillwater, Okla., is shown milking one of his herd of eight midget cows, 33 inches high. He says they give five gallons of milk a day and that the butter fat content is high. He hopes to breed them successfully. They weigh about 400 pounds each.

MISS JANE MOORE, of Gray, who was the third place winner in the recent "Miss Georgia" contest held in Manchester. (Kenneth Rogers)

FOUR ALARM—Because the structures had no windows, firemen were unable to withstand the heat and smoke as five warehouses, a three-story brick structure and two three-story unoccupied frame dwellings at Rochester, N. Y., were gutted by fire.

BEST TEETH—Miss Betty Grable, who already had the title of possessing the best figure in Hollywood, America's movie capital, now has another — "Miss Dental Health"

PALATIAL—The Sverdlov square station of the new Gorky line of the Moscow subway is a handsome structure of marble. The hall leading to the platform is shown in the picture.

DICK TRACY

GANGWAY, BOYS-WE'VE GOT A COUPLE OF STICKY CUSTOMERS HERE.

SET THEM ON THAT BENCH. AND YOU, GILLIS, TURN ON THE SHOWER—THEY NEED BATHS.

WHAT'RE THE DETAILS, DICK?

JOJO NIDLE, WHOSE BODY IS ON ITS WAY TO THE MORGUE, HAD IMPRISONED JUNIOR AND BRIGHTON IN A TANK CAR.

TELL THE CHIEF ALL ABOUT IT, KID.

JOJO THOUGHT WE WOULD SMOTHER FROM THE GASOLINE FUMES—BUT THE TANK CAR DIDN'T HAVE GAS IN IT.

INSTEAD, IT HAD JUST BEEN EMPTIED OF A CARGO OF SORGHUM MOLASSES. THERE WAS ABOUT A FOOT OF MOLASSES STILL IN THE CAR.

YOU MEAN YOU LITTLE SQUIRTS LOCKED HORNS WITH A PROFESSIONAL ROBBER AND GOT TOSSED INTO A TANK CAR?

RIGHT.

—AND BY A STROKE OF LUCK, CHIEF. ONE OF THE LOCK NUTS ON THE CAR'S HATCH COVER STUCK AND LEFT ABOUT AN INCH OF SPACE FOR AIR TO GET THROUGH. THAT'S WHY THEY DIDN'T SMOTHER.

HERE'S TWO GLASSES OF WARM MILK. GET THEM INTO YOUR STOMACHS AS SOON AS YOU'RE OUT OF THE SHOWER.

MR. TRACY—THERE'S A LADY IN THE FRONT OFFICE TO SEE YOU.

A LADY??

YES, SHE'S WAITING RIGHT IN THERE.

HELLO. DO YOU WISH TO SEE ME?

I DO. LISTEN CLOSELY—I HAVE ONLY A FEW SECONDS.

IN CLOSING A RECENT CASE AGAINST A RING OF FREIGHT CAR THIEVES, YOU ACCIDENTALLY CAME ACROSS A TANK CAR THAT HAD BEEN FILLED WITH MOLASSES.

YES—TWO RUNAWAY YOUNGSTERS HAD BEEN TOSSED INTO THAT CAR—BUT NO HARM WAS DONE.

DIDN'T IT STRIKE YOU RATHER ODD THAT MOLASSES SHOULD BE SHIPPED IN BULK BY TANK CAR?

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.: Copyright, 1938, [illegible]

WHO ARE YOU? WHAT DOES THIS TIE UP TO?

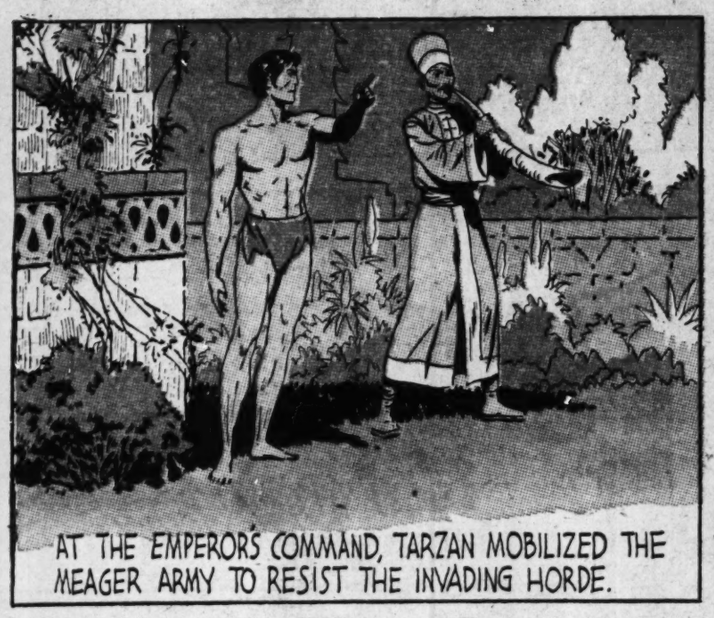

IT DOESN'T TIE UP! I'M JUST GIVING YOU THE BIGGEST TIP OF YOUR CAREER! INVESTIGATE THE CONSIGNEE OF THAT TANK CAR OF MOLASSES YOU'LL BLOW THE LID OFF THE BIGGEST RACKET YOU EVER DREAMED OF. GOODBYE NOW.

PAPER PLAYMATES
FALL STYLE SHOW

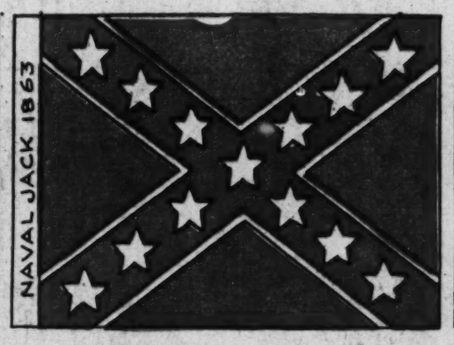

THIS WEEK THE GIRLS ARE SHOWING CLOTHES FOR THE COLLEGE MISS AND AUDREY IS THE MODEL. THAT IS VERY APPROPRIATE BECAUSE AUDREY IS GOING AWAY TO A GIRL'S SCHOOL THIS FALL AND WILL NEED THESE CLOTHES.

"AW! NERTS!"

TRUMAN THE TERRIBLE

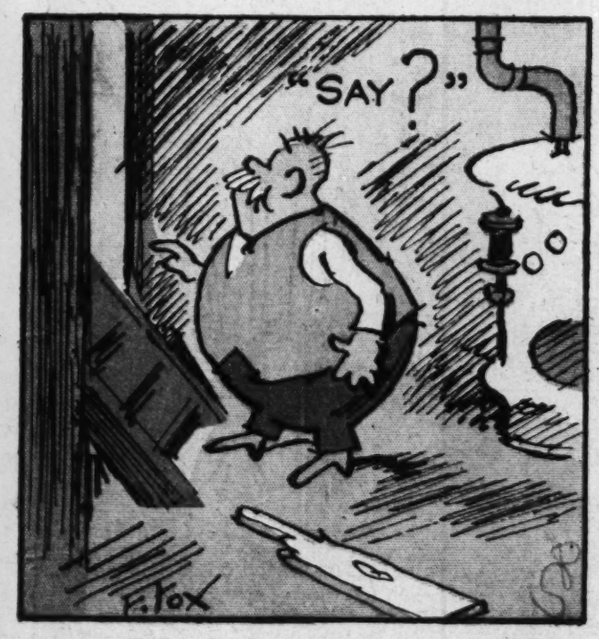

Just as you like to start the fall with newly upholstered and painted furniture in your home, so do you like a slender, supple figure for your new fall clothes. If you have neglected your figure during the summer, Ida Jean Kain will tell you in her article appearing daily in The Constitution how to quickly and effectively get "in shape" for fall.
